DOUBLE DANGER OF STATE'S NEW NRA LAW TOLD

Fears Persecution of Business.

BY JOSEPH ATOR.

A doubting Thomas arose yesterday in the ranks of the business men summoned to Chicago for instructions from state NRA officials as to how the code authorities of which they are members shall use the new state NRA act to enforce compliance with the plan for regimented industry.

He was Donald P. Blake, member of the authority for the retail monument code. He pointed out two dangers that Illinois business men face from the state NRA law. First, the possibility of prosecution under the state anti-trust laws if they seek to use the law to enforce the codes; second, the danger that NRA proconsuls will usurp from business the promised right of policing itself under the law.

Cassidy Denies Danger.

Danger of either of these developments was denied by John E. Cassidy, state compliance director, and members of his staf. Throughout the day's discussions at the Congress hotel they used temperate language. They sought to assure industry's representatives in code administration that recourse to the state law, under which code violators may both be jailed and put out of business through injunctions, would be comparatively rare and would be taken only after exhaustive investigation and efforts at conciliation outside the courts.

Mr. Blake brought forward his objections during a question period conducted by Seymour Ellison, legal adviser of the Illinois NRA office. Mr. Ellison told the code authority members just how to go about invoking the provisions of the state and national NRA laws against refractory individuals in their industries.

Points Out Anti-Trust Laws.

"The state NRA law," said Mr. Blake when he arose, "exempts from enforcement any provision of a code which may be in violation of any other law of the state of Illinois. Now, the state anti-trust laws have not been repealed.

"Suppose we go in, as code authorities, and prove up a case of refusal to file prices under the code. [While the codes do not provide for direct price fixing, the speaker pointed out later that price filing may be a basis for later price fixing.] May not the court turn the defendant free and proceed against us for violation of the state anti-trust laws, which would be easily proved by our own evidence?"

Ellison Defends Law

"I don't think so," replied Mr. Ellison. "The judge could take care of that, and that's what we have the Supreme court for."

Later Mr. Cassidy asserted that collection of data on prices under an NRA code could not be construed as a violation of an anti-trust law, since the crime which those laws forbid is conspiracy in restraint of trade. He contended that operations under the authority of a code could never be held to be conspiracy.

"Another point," continued Mr. Blake. "Under this state NRA law any person may start a prosecution, subject to the approval of the compliance director and the attorney general of Illinois. No reference to the code authority, representing the industry involved, is provided by the law. Industry will not be able to regulate its own business."

Promise Full Investigation.

E. L. Roberts of the NRA staf, chairman of the meeting, told him then that Mr. Cassidy had given assurance in an earlier talk before the meeting that no prosecution would be started in Illinois courts "until the code authority has operated exhaustively to investigate and report."

"I wanted that definitly made a matter of public record, as the policy of the state compliance director," said Mr. Blake. "For they told us when we went into these codes that industry would regulate itself."

While he promised to refer all cases, before prosecution, to the code authority representing the business involved, Mr. Cassidy made it clear that business is not to hold any veto power over such prosecutions.

Won't Permit Delays.

"When people come to our office with a complaint," he said, "and it is sent back on reference from us to the code authority, we won't permit delay and we won't permit dilatory tactics.

"Please bear in mind that the state NRA law has not changed the law of evidence nor the rules of judicial pro-

HEAVIEST RAIN SINCE OCTOBER DRENCHES CITY

Heavy rains, which were general throughout the middle west, drenched a grateful Chicago yesterday, keeping the thermometer below 70 degrees. It was the heaviest downpour the city has experienced since last Oct. 21, when precipitation was 2.23 inches, and it delivered a real blow to the long continued drouth in this area.

The south side of the city and the south and southwest suburbs had the heaviest showers, although all Chicago benefited to some extent. At the University of Chicago station of the weather bureau official precipitation of .88 of an inch was recorded.

At the airport there was a fall of .74 of an inch, while in the loop the total downpour was .24 of an inch. The main showers lasted from two to three hours, beginning before and lasting until after noon.

More Rain Expected Today.

And the rain isn't over yet, according to Forecaster W. P. Day. His forecast is for unsettled weather today, with possible showers. The thermometer will climb to the upper 80s under the influence of winds shifting to the south and southwest, he said. There also is a possibility of showers tomorrow, Mr. Day added.

Chicago's south side experienced severe electrical storms along with the rain, and one death by lightning was reported. Andrew Clemensen, 44 years old, a carpenter, was killed as he walked within a block of his home, 7313 Lafayette avenue.

Miss Frankalena Taylor, 24 years old, of 57 West 74th street, narrowly escaped a similar fate. She was walking a short distance behind Clemensen when the lightning struck the tree under which he had momentarily taken refuge.

Lightning Strikes Houses.

Two houses in the southern suburb of Flossmoor were struck by lightning. In the home of E. R. Leighty on Evans road the 9 year old son, Richard, was eating his luncheon when a bolt shattered the roof. The boy was unharmed, but his face was spattered with pudding which he had been eating.

Just across the street lightning struck the home of Joseph A. Leuver as Mrs. Leuver was putting her baby to bed. She and the child were knocked to the floor, but were not harmed.

Several thousand dollars' windstorm damage was reported from Winchester, Scott county. Other sections of the state benefited from the rain. Joliet reported .66 of an inch and .83 of an inch fell at Springfield.

Storm Damage Downstate.

A high wind also swept over Vermilion county, uprooting trees, unroofing several buildings, and blowing down a number of telephone poles and windmills. Most of the damage was in the region south of Danville.

Jacksonville reported .59 inch of rain, bringing the total for the month to more than two inches.

Wind, hail, and electrical disturbances accompanied the rain. Bloomington and vicinity drew .59 inch of rain and some hail fell, but it was of insufficient size to cause damage.

Rains during the last twenty-four hours have fallen in the Dakotas, Nebraska, northern Minnesota, northern Missouri and Kansas, southern Iowa and Indiana, and western Kentucky.

Heavy Rains Outside State.

Precipitation of from one to three inches was reported, the heaviest falls being at Evansville, Ind., with 3.38 inches, and Owensboro, Ky., where 3.42 inches was reported.

In Illinois the June rainfalls, while benefiting crops, have not been adequate to drive away the chinch bugs which have infested 91 of the 102 counties, and Agricultural Statistician A. J. Surratt says that crop prospects are still uncertain.

Corn is making good growth after the rains, he said, but northern stands are spotted because of inadequate moisture for germination and the chinch bug menace. Farmers are continuing to build field barriers topped with crude oil and creosote.

Woman Drags Husband in Front of Train; She Dies

New York, June 22.—[Special.]—A man and his wife, both unemployed dress operators, plunged in front of a B. M. T. train today in Brooklyn. Both were crushed between the first two cars and the platform before the train could be stopped. The wife was killed and the husband was injured seriously. The woman was Mrs. Giordano, 35 years old. Her husband, Anthony, 36, was taken to Harbor hospital. According to the police, Mrs. Giordano had dragged her husband with her when he attempted to hold her back.

BRITAIN CUTS OFF DEBATE ON U. S. DEBT PAYMENT

LONDON, June 22.—(AP)—The government invoked parliamentary tactics today to shut off debate on the debts, which several members of the house of commons tried to renew with demands that Great Britain meet her obligations to the United States.

Neville Chamberlain, chancellor of the exchequer, indicating that there will be no change in the policy of nonpayment, took advantage of a ruling of the speaker that the debt question could not be debated because it was not germane to the finance bill, which was under consideration.

Members of the Labor and Conservative parties joined in an attack on the delay in the settlement of the debt problem, which some members asserted was harming Anglo-American relations.

Col. Josiah C. Wedgwood, Laborite, took advantage of a debate on the finance bill to declare:

"I want from the chancellor a definite assurance that, be difficulties what they may, England is going to meet her bond in the long run and pay her debt to America."

Capt. Victor A. Cazalet, Conservative, suggested that the government consider a lump sum payment offer.

Great Britain has invited Germany to "talk over" her debts and the six month moratorium.

The invitation is contained in a strongly worded note from Sir John Simon, foreign secretary, to Baron von Hoesch, the German ambassador to London.

BATTLE IN VAIN TO SAVE LIFE OF HANGING VICTIM

Although doctors and a fire department inhalator squad battled for more than an hour to save him, Kenneth B. MacKenzie, 35 years old, secretary of the Welding Engineers Publishing company, 608 South Dearborn street, died last evening in St. Luke's hospital after hanging himself in his private office.

MacKenzie was divorced on June 14 by his wife, Evelyn. Before his suicide attempt he telephoned her five times at her home, 7456 South Shore drive, pleading for a reconciliation. On the fifth call he told her if she did not return he would end his life.

He then stood on a chair in his office, looped a rope about his neck, tied the other end over the transom, and kicked the chair from beneath him. The body was discovered by a bookkeeper, Miss Margaret Onda, 1826 Newport avenue, and MacKenzie's sister, Jean, who works for the company.

They summoned an inhalator squad, which worked over MacKenzie for forty-five minutes. A sign of life was noticed as they were about to give up and he was taken to the hospital, where doctors used a respirator in vain. MacKenzie was then pronounced dead.

The publishing company is owned by MacKenzie's mother, Gertrude, with whom he lived at 7321 South Shore drive.

Jury of Men Finds Powner Cruel to Wife

BY VIRGINIA GARDNER.

A jury of 10 married men and two bachelors with a bridegroom as a foreman last night found Willard E. Powner, 46 year old publisher, guilty of "extreme and repeated cruelty as charged in the complaint by Ruble Riddiford Powner" in the Superior court of Judge Rudolph F. Desort.

W. E. POWNER. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

It was the only divorce case heard by a jury in Cook county since 1926, according to lawyers, and had been demanded by Attorney Jay J. McCarthy, counsel for Powner, who denied his wife's charges. Powner recently served 13 days in the Cook county jail for contempt of court when he was in arrears in support money for an 11 year old daughter to the extent of $80, which included $37 lawyers' fees to his wife's counsel.

Deliberate Over Two Hours.

The jurors deliberated from 7:30 o'clock last night to 9:40 o'clock, during which time their voices could be heard from the jury room, loudly arguing the merits of the case. Judge Desort had ordered a night session and arguments to the jury began about 5:30 o'clock. After listening to considerable oratory the jurors ate a hearty meal while deliberating. Four ballots were taken, the jury standing 8 to 4 for guilty on the first.

E. L. White, blond and immaculately dressed foreman of 4253 North Francisco avenue, a dispatcher for the Commonwealth Edison company, and bridegroom of eight months, was the first of the 12 jurors to allow the comely red haired plaintiff, who is 37 years old, to shake his hand after the jury was polled.

"Four of the jurors didn't think there was enough evidence of cruelty," said White later, with some indignation, "but I don't know how much they want. I explained to them that if Mrs. Powner had been faking she could have brought in any number of witnesses to lie about it."

New Trial Hearing July 5.

When the verdict was read Attorney McCarthy made a motion for a new trial. Arguments will be heard by Judge Desort July 5. Attorney McCarthy then made a motion that the court disregard the jury's verdict, which, he said, was only advisory under the law. Judge Desort said he would hear arguments on that motion at the same time, but told newspaper men later that under the law the verdict was mandatory and called for issuance of a decree.

Attorney McCarthy announced later that if his motion for a new trial is denied he will appeal the verdict.

While the jury was deliberating Mrs. Powner, dressed in a black crêpe dress with a square neck trimmed with a frilled net collar and cuffs and a black and white hat, sat with her daughter, Suzanne, and Mr. and Mrs. William Fry, with whom they live at 1210 Astor street. Near by sat the father.

Attorney McCarthy asked the child, who was a witness against her father during the trial, if she would go over and speak to him. She tossed her head and replied that she never wanted to speak to him again.

Called "Gold Digging Husband."

During the arguments Attorney Robert E. Cantwell Jr., counsel for Mrs. Powner, alluded to Powner as "the gold digging husband" and reviewed testimony of Mrs. Powner that he had repeatedly demanded that she borrow money from her father, the late W. H. Riddiford, whose estate she alone inherited. When she refused she was struck and beaten, according to her testimony.

Attorney Cantwell pointed out that, despite Powner's testimony that he was worth several hundred thousand dollars when he married Mrs. Powner and was now reduced to living in a $4 a week room, his property was estimated at $34,000 at the time of the marriage in 1921.

Attorney McCarthy countered with quotations from the Bible, a declaration that Attorney Cantwell was a "society lawyer" while he himself was an old-fashioned lawyer from back "o' the yards," and a statement that Powner's father was a former railroad section foreman.

"What's more, Mrs. Powner has Ganna Walska and Peggy Hopkins backed off the map," he said loudly.

Police Uncover Odd Weapons in Vienna Flat

VIENNA, June 22.—(AP)—Evidence which police said indicates that Capt. Ivan Poderjay engaged in weird practices, involving the infliction of pain, was disclosed today as the authorities continued their investigation of the European angles of the disappearance of Miss Agnes Tufverson.

In the apartment of Poderjay, who married Miss Tufverson shortly before she was last seen in New York, police reported finding a "sadistic room," furnished with strange implements and decorated with queer pictures and photographs.

Leopold Bestermann, attorney for Susanna Ferrand, who lived in the apartment as Poderjay's wife, advanced the theory that Miss Tufverson might have been fatally injured during the practices indicated, but police rejected this theory.

Find Relations Were Similar.

The newspaper Tageblatt said tonight that the contents of books signed by Miss Tufverson and found in Poderjay's baggage indicated that his relations with the missing woman were similar to relations indicated by his letters to Miss Ferrand.

A fair sized library, consisting almost entirely of strange books, also was found in the apartment.

Meanwhile a careful check of the list of possessions of Miss Tufverson, received from New York, revealed that many things Miss Ferrand claimed belonged to her were the property of Miss Tufverson.

At the police station where she is held she was made to try on all the clothing taken from the apartment, and many articles proved too big for her. Others had been altered to her size. One trunk of Miss Tufverson's was found in the apartment.

"Suspected of Murder."

Poderjay was turned over to the court investigator today with a police memorandum which stated that he is "suspected of murder and bigamy."

This does not mean that he is charged with these offenses, but that the investigator will examine evidence which might connect him with the crimes.

Miss Ferrand already has been placed under court investigation as "suspected of profiting by another's crime."

It was discovered today that the marriage ceremony between Miss Ferrand and Poderjay in London was in March, 1933, rather than a year later, as previously supposed. This reverses the bigamy suspicion, since he married Miss Tufverson in December, 1933.

Asks Scotland Yard's Aid.

New York, June 22.—(AP)—Scotland Yard was asked tonight to locate the two witnesses to the marriage of Capt. Ivan Poderjay and Miss Susanne Ferrand in March, 1933, nine months before Poderjay's second bride, Agnes Tufverson, mysteriously disappeared.

If the witnesses will consent to appear in New York, Capt. John H. Ayres of the missing persons bureau said, charges of perjury will be filed against Poderjay. It is an extraditable crime.

When Poderjay married Miss Tufverson here last December he swore he had not been married before.

Boston police sent a report here that a woman believed to be Miss Tufverson had been seen in a cleaning establishment there in May and again in June, but Capt. Ayres discounted the possibility.

Sister Is Skeptical.

Miss Sally Tufverson, a sister of the missing woman, shook her head and said:

"Absolutely not. No, that's not she."

Her sister, she said, wore size 36 clothes, smaller than the garments the woman had left to be cleaned.

An unidentified woman was projected briefly into the investigation, but Capt. Ayres said extensive inquiry had convinced him she was no more than a casual companion of the

HIS CREW LOSES, BUT ROOSEVELT HAS GOOD TIME

Watches Son's Team in Regatta.

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.

Coast Guard Academy, New London, Conn., June 22.—[Special.]—Entirely forgetting the cares of state for a few hours, President Roosevelt today became one of the tens of thousands of rowing enthusiasts attending the annual Harvard-Yale crew races.

He saw his son, Franklin Jr., a member of the Harvard freshman crew, wilt from weariness in his position at No. 6 oar after his eight had lost a bitterly contested two mile race with the Yale freshman crew. The freshman race was a close struggle until the final 100 yards, when Yale spurted and won by a length and a half.

Parental Alarm Visible.

Disappointment was mirrored on the President's face at the result of the contest and some parental alarm was visible also until he saw his six foot four inch son straighten up in his rowing seat.

After Yale's junior varsity crew also won over Harvard, the President pinned his hopes for a Harvard victory upon the varsity race, which was not rowed until sundown. He was again doomed to disappointment when the Yale crew whizzed over the four mile course in 19 minutes 51 4-5 seconds to set a new course record. However, the Harvard crew also broke the old record of 20 minutes 2 seconds set in 1916. The Crimson crew stroked the distance in 20 minutes 1 3-5 seconds.

"A Splendid Day."

"It was a splendid day all around," commented the President after the evening race. "I have been waiting for years to see the record broken and both teams did it."

[Details of the Yale victories over Harvard in the regatta events are told in the sporting section.]

While refusing today to discuss governmental problems, the President stated that he probably would have "some very interesting information" tomorrow.

Pressed for further details, he replied that his information would concern some of the bills recently passed by congress, which he is now studying.

Elaborate Guard Set Up.

Elaborate precautions were taken to guard the President against possible harm while he is here. A half dozen coast guard cutters, armed with one pounders and machine guns, hovered about the presidential yacht, Sequoia, on which the chief executive has established headquarters. Secret service men were about him continually, especially when he boarded the referee's boat which followed the crew races.

Airplanes were forbidden to fly over the course while the President was present and requests for permits to take aerial photographs were denied.

Yachts Fill River.

The presence of the President almost overshadowed the race itself, which draws thousands to this old whaling town each year. The hundreds of yachts and smaller craft in the Thames river cruised back and forth near the Sequoia while their occupants sought for a glimpse of the President.

Tomorrow the President goes to his Hyde Park, N. Y., home for a week-end stay, leaving for Washington Monday. Less than a week later he plans to embark on a cruise to Hawaii.

ORDERS STRIKE ACTION

New London, Conn., June 23.—(AP)—President Roosevelt notified Gov. Frank Z. Merriam of California by telegraph tonight that he was laying the appeals for federal aid in the west coast longshoremen's strike before Secretary of Labor Perkins.

The President acted through Col. Marvin H. McIntyre, White House secretary, after having studied the latest appeal from business and civic groups in the strike area.

It was understood here that word from the coast warned of violence and possible bloodshed unless action was taken.

Mr. Roosevelt is expected to hear further reports on the strike when he reaches his Hyde Park, N. Y., home tomorrow and also to hear advice from the department of labor as to efforts at conciliation.

Mob Attacks Workers.

San Francisco, Cal., June 22.—(AP)—A fierce attack by 300 howling men on 65 workers loading a freighter at San Pedro and minor disturbances elsewhere today broke a temporary calm in the Pacific coast strike of longshoremen and marine workers. Four nonstrikers were hurt at San Pedro and four officers were downed and trampled. A fire started in the transit shed of the pier during the fight and the attackers fled at approach of police cars and fire apparatus.

TUGWELL TO MAKE TOUR

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 22.—[Special.]—Prof. Rexford Guy Tugwell, the new undersecretary of agriculture, is about to set forth on a personal appearance tour of the hinterlands.

Next Sunday, it was learned today, the No. 1 brain truster will forsake the sophistry of the capital to preach the gospel of planned economy and the New Deal in the farm belt. At the same time, it was understood, he will survey conditions now existing in the Americas which he "rolled up his sleeves to make over" some time ago.

Two speaking dates have thus far been arranged for him, and others are probable. At Des Moines, it was learned, he will address Iowa state bankers in convention assembled; and two days later will expound his principles to farmers at a picnic in Brookings, S. D.

That Mr. Tugwell goes out as an advance guard in the Democratic campaign, primed to recite the benefits of the New Deal, the AAA denies. But the beginning of his tour so soon after he became a figure of national prominence during hearings before a senate committee on his qualifications for his new office was regarded as a definite administration effort to lend a hand in bringing about the election of Democrats to congress.

SISTER GREETS DILLINGER WITH A BIRTHDAY AD

Maywood, Ind., June 22.—(AP)—Mrs. Audrey Hancock, sister of John Dillinger, the much sought desperado, today inserted in the classified columns of a newspaper this birthday greeting to her brother:

"Birthday greetings to my darling brother, John Dillinger, on his 31st birthday. Wherever he may be, I hope he reads this message."

Mrs. Hancock said it was only through a message in the newspaper that she could get word to her brother.

"John has sent no letters home," she said. "He's smarter than that."

THIRD GIRL DISAPPEARS.

The third of the three Dillinger gang girls under federal surveillance for weeks has disappeared from the city, it was learned yesterday. She is Marian Conforti, 21, reputed sweetheart of Homer Van Meter, Dillinger machine gunner. She was seized in the Wisconsin search for Dillinger. Nabbed with her were Jean Crompton, sweetheart of Tommy Carroll, and Helen Gillis, wife of George [Baby Face] Nelson.

Charged with harboring fugitives, the girls were sentenced to one year and a day and were placed on probation and ordered to live in Chicago. It was hoped they might be visited eventually by the hoodlums. Miss Crompton eluded federal watch and went with Carroll to Waterloo, Ia., where he was slain by peace officers. Then the Gillis woman disappeared.

HELD FOR SELLING AN AUTO UNDER NRA CODE PRICE

New York, June 22.—[Special.]—Gordon S. Harris, accused of selling an automobile at a discount, in violation of the NRA code for the motor vehicle retailing business, was held for Special Sessions by Magistrate Van Amringe today. Bail was fixed at $1,500.

The case was the first brought on the complaint of the local code authority, of which John B. Hulett is administrator, against alleged violators of the code provision which forbids underselling.

Harris was called by Harold H. Straus, attorney for the code authority, "the outstanding automobile bootlegger in the industry," whose operations, he declared, had cost regular dealers considerable loss of business. This was denied by Defense Attorney Jacob Marx. Mr. Marx asserted that Harris was not a dealer and had no show room.

Howard A. Boyd testified that on Feb. 5 he had bought from Harris a sedan at a $50 discount from the regular delivered price. He was employed at the time on the code administrator's staf. He said he had made the purchase in Harris' office, and had signed a contract which, however, had been voided by a later agreement. The purchase price agreed upon, he testified, was $627.72. The price at which, under the code, the car had to be sold by dealers, another witness asserted, should have been $677.72.

BATTLES THIEF ON WILD RIDE; REGAINS PURSE

Mrs. Anna Abair, 32 years old, of 637 York place, is a persistent woman, as one purse snatcher learned last night. Mrs. Abair was walking in Barry avenue near Broadway when the thief, driving an automobile, stopped at the curb near her, jumped out, grabbed her purse, and jumped back in the car.

The purse contained several dollars. Mrs. Abair leaped at the thief as he was about to start away, and in the brief tussle he wrenched her left arm. She still grappled with him and held on even as he started driving away.

For several blocks, while he was driving, Mrs. Abair fought with the man. In front of 2958 North Halsted street Mrs. Abair tried to jump from the moving car, but the hoodlum held her by the wrist and she was dragged along the street for 100 feet. Finally she wrenched free. Her clothing was torn, she was severely bruised, and both arms seemed out of place. But she recovered her purse.

Eugene Plant, 5400 South Michigan avenue, and a companion, both Negroes, snatched the purse of Mrs. Anna Libke near her home at 5046 Ellis avenue last night. She chased Plant until she met Policeman James Cody of the Hyde Park station. He arrested Plant. Mrs. Libke then punched Plant on the chin and took back her purse and $14.

DENOUNCES NRA AND ROOSEVELT FOR SOCIALISM

J. M. (100%) Nichols Talks Before Executives

Scorching criticism was heaped on President Roosevelt, the administration and the present congress, which was termed a collection of "yes men," yesterday by J. M. (100 Per Cent) Nichols, president of the First National bank of Englewood. Mr. Nichols spoke before the Executives' club at a luncheon in the Hotel Sherman.

J. M. NICHOLS.

He is the lone holdout among the nation's bankers in joining the government's bank deposit corporation. He has attracted considerable attention recently because of the financial condition of his bank, the liquid assets of which slightly exceed deposits.

Mr. Nichols in his talk charged the President with insincerity and declared him the greatest "socialist" of all, not barring even Lenin. The audience, composed of some 200 Chicago business men, indicated approval to much of the speaker's remarks, chuckling at his reference to the NRA administrator as "blustering, bulldozing Gen. Johnson releasing blue chicken coops all over the country."

Subject to Whims of Men.

"Roosevelt has no respect for the constitution of the United States," Mr. Nichols said. "He has surrounded himself with impractical politicians and college professors. I have no respect for the man, although I do respect his position.

"He has set upon the country a dictatorship. He has defied the honored traditions of our country. We are subjected to whims of a group of men instead of being subjected to a group of laws.

"The Federal Deposit Insurance corporation is a device to protect political favorites. The sound conservative bank is obliged to pay the same premium as the top-heavy, mismanaged, frozen institution possessing enough political drag to tell the examwhere to head in."

Welcomes Prosecution Over FDIC.

It was reported yesterday that prosecution will soon be started against Nichols for his failure to pay his assessment to the FDIC, of which he is automatically a member by virtue of being a member of the federal reserve system. Nichols denied knowledge of the move, but said he would welcome it.

"I've put myself in a spot many times recently in an attempt to get action," he declared. "Nothing happened. I'd welcome a chance to tell what the situation really is in federal court, and I'm prepared to do it. But I don't think they dare.

"I would give half the money I have to see Al Smith in the White House despite the fact I voted for Hoover," Mr. Nichols continued. "Smith is a man of the people and, like Wilson, believed in the constitution.

"There is hardly a man in congress who is fit for his job. Americanism has been lost. The foundations of this country are crumbling and the United States can fall, just as have other powerful nations."

FIVE SOUTH PARK BEACHES READY; WILL OPEN TODAY

Five south park beaches will be opened to the public today. Thirty life guards will be assigned to patrol them, James L. Nolan, personnel director, said yesterday. The 16 pools maintained by the park system will be opened July 2, after repairs are completed and the force of guards will be increased to 70.

While all facilities of the beaches at 49th, 57th, 63d and 98th streets will be available today, formal dedication of the new playgrounds and beach equipment installed is scheduled for next Friday, Mr. Nolan said. At that time the Woodlawn Business Men's association and the East 63d street council will sponsor a field day and water carnival on the Jackson park beach at 63d street, followed by a community dance in the evening at the Jackson park beach house.

The south park rules for bathing suits will be similar to those of the city and Lincoln park beaches, Mr. Nolan said.

ASKS ATTORNEYS TO DRIVE RASCALS FROM PROFESSION

Waterloo, Ia., June 22.—(AP)—Earle W. Evans, Wichita, Kas., president of the American Bar association, speaking here today before the fortieth annual convention of the Iowa State Bar association, called on its members to join a national bar program with two objections:

1. To purge the profession of rascality and rewin the confidence of the public.

2. To lead the public to a renewed interest in government, which he declared essential to the preservation of popular government in this country.

Evans said many inquiries have been received as to whether it is ethical for a lawyer to help his client plot or commit a crime, or plan his escape from prison, or procure perjured testimony.

"These inquiries reveal the low estate of our profession in the public mind," he said.

Labor Board Orders Illinois Utility to Re-Employ 10 Men

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 22.—[Special.]—Declaring that the Illinois Power and Light company violated the President's reemployment agreement by discharging ten union employés in the Champaign-Urbana district, the national labor board today ordered the company to reinstate the men.

The board handed down its dictum to the company even though the company is no longer subject to the President's reemployment agreement and has not yet come under any NRA code. Since the discharge of the union workers took place while the company was under the NRA, the government still can dictate to it, the board held.

Based on Union Evidence.

A long recitation of "the company's continued attempts to discourage the self-organization of its employés" was recited in the board's decision, all based on testimony given by the complaining union. The company has steadily denied the right of the board to intervene and has not presented evidence in its own defense.

Orders 10 Rehired.

The board's decision closed as follows:

"The national labor board therefore holds that the following employés should be reinstated to their former positions as rapidly as possible, and in any event reinstated before the company hires any new employés to perform work which they are qualified to perform:

"Clarence Phillips, Karl Zech, Ray Neill, Forest Rowdin, L. Radenbaugh, Vincent Palmissino, Morris Bailey, Carl Baker, Elmer Hampel, Claude Barber."

DOUBLE DANGER OF STATE'S NEW NRA LAW TOLD

Business Persecution Is Feared by Delegate.

cedure. We can't get anywhere in court with hearsay or suspicion. We must get away from sweeping gestures. We must have a bedrock of facts, and when we have them there will be no ifs, ands, or buts.

"We appreciate that the development of this program requires the fire of constructive criticism. Every institution, including the constitution, had to go through that stage to burn out the dross and refine the gold."

Up to Business.

In general the speakers yesterday sought to impress on the business men before them that it will fall upon the latter to enforce the provisions of the codes rather than the government. This attitude was summarized by John Swope, chief of the field bureau of the NRA at Washington. He is the son of Gerard Swope, the industrialist.

"We are trying to stress that business take over and administer its own codes," said Mr. Swope. "It was the trade practice sections that industry wanted in its codes, as recompense for the labor provisions, some of which industry didn't like. The government cannot possibly trace all violations of trade practices.

"Unless industry takes over the enforcement of trade practices, gets its own cost accounts, eliminates distress selling and regulates prices, those [trade practice] sections might as well fold up."

Wages and Hours.

Outside the meeting Mr. Swope advanced the view that wage and hour provisions are perhaps the most important trade practice to be standardized under the codes. He contended that standardized wage costs within an industry will place its units on a common level from which they must rise or sink according to their individual management and sales ability.

Another somewhat discordant note in the meeting was struck by a delegate from Springfield, who arose and asked A. F. Cook, chief field adjuster for the state NRA staf:

"Can you suggest anything to create more interest in the Code Eagle? We got 200 and have had calls for only three."

"To answer that," said Mr. Cook, "I would have to steal some of Gen. Johnson's thunder, which he will release within the next thirty days. But perhaps the lack of interest is due to the assessments for code administration."

"No," said the delegate. "We have been quite successful in collecting assessments."

"In many parts of the country," Mr. Cook then suggested, "lapse of interest in the Blue Eagle and Code Eagle has been due to lax enforcement. When the Blue Eagle ceases to mean what it was intended to mean it loses effect."

FARMER LEADERS HIT AAA RED TAPE; ATTACK WALLACE

Federation Demands End of Delays.

BY FRANK RIDGWAY.

Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace and Chester C. Davis, administrator of the agricultural adjustment act, were severely criticized yesterday in a resolution adopted by the executive committee of the American Farm Bureau federation and made public at the federation's offices at 58 East Washington street. The resolution, which was telegraphed to Agricultural Adjustment administration officials at Washington, called for immediate action to cut the red tape that has resulted in delays in administering the AAA program.

Officials of the farm organization who have been friendly to the AAA program hold the secretary of agriculture and Mr. Davis accountable for the delay. Instead of these two leaders exercising their own judgment, the resolution declared, economists and legal specialists appear to be too eager to make their estimates and opinions the basis of all activities.

Urge End of Contrary Orders.

The seven members of the farm federation's executive committee, headed by E. A. O'Neal, president, urged Secretary Wallace and Administrator Davis "to more definitly assert themselves and to end the issuing of conflicting, repealing, and confusing orders and regulations," and "to terminate legal opinions becoming operating policies and to expedite the issuing of benefit payment checks."

Technical requirements are causing serious delay in putting into effect the corn-hog program, the resolution charged. The farm bureau officials ask the administrators of the AAA to immediately end the present period of uncertainty by announcing definitly and finally what policies and practices are to prevail in the corn-hog section of the act.

Attack Questioned Integrity.

Another criticism of Wallace and Davis was that these two federal officials have permitted the honesty of farmers to be questioned in connection with their production reports to the government.

"We can no longer condone impugning the veracity of corn and hog farmers and county allotment committees set up by such farmers, in orders from Washington or from state administrators," said the resolution, "when, in our best judgment, such orders have for their major purpose the justifying of preliminary statistical estimates as to hog population in a county or state. We have no hesitancy in stating that with a reduction of hogs from preliminary contracts that were not properly supported with information a further reduction is indefensible and wholly unnecessary."

Two Cent Robbers Nearly Club Victim to Death

Two Negro robbers, who obtained only 2 cents and an inexpensive gold watch, critically injured their victim, Louis Jamieson, 33 years old, 352 West 37th place, yesterday. The bandits leaped on Jamieson as he was passing an alley at 35th and Dearborn streets, and one struck him on the head with a club. At the county hospital it was found his skull had been fractured.

CONTRACT SHIFT NOT IMPROPER, WOODRING SAYS

Quizzed on Plan for Sale of Army Supplies.

BY JOHN HERRICK.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 22.—[Special.]—The special house subcommittee investigating the war department summoned Assistant Secretary of War Harry H. Woodring before it today in order to inquire into the "peculiar" circumstances surrounding a contract for the sale of surplus army supplies.

HARRY WOODRING.

From Assistant Secretary Woodring and Lieut. Col. Joseph I. McMullen of the judge advocate general's office committee members drew the details of conferences which resulted in amending a contract made with Joseph Silverman, who later was barred from dealing with the government.

Much of the testimony given publicly for the first time today was given in secret last February, when the District of Columbia grand jury investigated alleged irregularities in the letting of war department contracts. The jury issued a caustic report criticizing lobbying conditions in the department, but failed to return any indictments.

Questioned on Contract.

Members of the committee questioned Col. McMullen closely as he told how details of the Silverman contract were arranged at meetings held at Secretary Woodring's orders between himself, Robert Jackson, former treasurer of the Democratic committee, and Ralph O'Neil, former national commander of the American Legion. O'Neil was acting as Silverman's attorney, while Jackson represented a Boston firm. Previously Col. McMullen had refused to testify concerning the meetings with O'Neil and Jackson on the ground that it might incriminate him.

It was brought out that "convenient changes" later were made in the original contract with Silverman.

Chairman William N. Rogers [Dem., N. H.] suggested that the activities of the war department officials in making the contract were peculiar.

"Didn't you think it queer," he asked, "that you, the chief of the patent section of the judge advocate general's office, should be instructed to draw up a clothing contract?"

"Not necessarily," replied Col. McMullen, sandy haired, and given to smoking a pipe.

Legal Fees Bared.

At yesterday's session it was brought out that the colonel had accepted legal fees from a manganese company while on active duty in the department.

Secretary Woodring denied that the changes made in the Silverman contract were in any way improper. The contract specified that materials bought by Silverman were not to be sold in the United States, he explained. Unable to find a foreign market, Silverman first tried to cancel the contract; then, being compelled to take delivery, Woodring testified, he petitioned for permission to sell in this country. Such a change in the contract was made.

"But there was nothing unusual about it," Secretary Woodring said. "Similar changes were made in dozen of other contracts."

NEW YORK TO GET 25 MILLIONS FROM PWA FOR SLUM CLEARANCE

Washington, D. C., June 22.—[Special.]—The Public Works administration, now plunging again into the task of alloting funds, is prepared to set aside 25 million dollars for New York slum clearance, along lines contemplated by New York City officials.

This information came from an authoritative source today. It was not revealed whether the task of ripping down dilapidated buildings and erecting modern low cost housing would be carried on by the government through the Federal Housing corporation, a PWA subsidiary, or by the New York housing authority.

The answer to this depends, PWA officials indicated, on how quickly Langdon W. Post, New York tenement house commissioner, could hand in a written plan upon which PWA officials could act. Two low cost housing projects already are being carried on in New York with the aid of PWA funds.

NAZI EXCURSION SHIP SURVIVORS SAIL FOR HOME

STAVANGER, Norway, June 22.—(AP)—With flags at half-mast in tribute to the two women who lost their lives in the wreck of the steamship Dresden, her sister ship, the Stuttgart, started back to Germany today with the survivors.

Some were picked up at Kopervik, Karmo island, where the majority had remained since the wreck Wednesday night, and the others went on board here. The passengers—Nazi excursionists—sang the Horst Wessel song as the ship pulled out.

Each of the excursionists carried home a little Norwegian flag, gifts of the residents of Karmo island, to whom the wreck was a thrill in a rather isolated and uneventful existence. German salvage experts believe the Dresden cannot be raised.

AAA Violator Now Faces Bankruptcy Proceedings

Bankruptcy proceedings were filed in federal court yesterday against L. V. Shissler of Lombard, already under citation for contempt of court before Federal Judge William H. Holly. The contempt case arose from proceedings which followed the revocation of Shissler's milk license by Secretary of Agriculture Wallace for violation of agreements under the AAA. The bankruptcy case, in turn, arose from disclosures at the milk hearing that Shissler had assigned his holdings to his two sons. This action, according to the petition, is in defiance of the rights of creditors. The bill was filed by the law firm of Locke & Titzel on behalf of three creditors whose claims aggregate $625. A hearing on the contempt citation is set for June 30.

NewDeal Organs Recant; Fight Newsboy Ruling at Hearing

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 22.—[Special.]—Newspapers which have been urging President Roosevelt's New Deal on the rest of the country today ran out on the administration when the National Recovery administration sought to apply the New Deal's child labor standards to them.

A proposed amendment to the newspaper code which would raise the minimum age for newsboys from 12 to 14 years today met the solid opposition of such rabid New Deal missionaries as the Scripps-Howard chain and the Chicago Daily Times.

The only New Deal editor to appear today at an NRA hearing in favor of the amendment was J. David Stern, publisher of the Philadelphia Record and the New York Evening Post. Going farther than the NRA proposal, Stern advocated that the minimum age be set at 16 years.

Stern Not Questioned.

Unless they accept the NRA'S amendment New Deal newspapers are in no position to criticize industries for their use of child labor, Stern told the editors and social workers gathered here today for the first hearing on the amendment.

Stern, second witness to be heard at the hearing, was not questioned by Administrator George Buckley, the presiding officer, about reports that Stern's papers are sold by minors under the code age limit. Philadelphia social workers who appeared at the hearing told reporters that they had not heard of such rumors and that they had had no trouble thus far with Stern's paper in that city on child labor grounds.

Though he failed to pursue reports that the Stern paper, the Milwaukee Journal, the St. Louis Post Dispatch, and other New Deal papers are violating the child labor sections of the code even as it stands, Administrator Buckley allowed testimony to be presented against the Washington Post, an anti-New Deal paper. A carrier appeared at the hearing to testify that he is 11 years old and delivers papers for the Post.

Stern Stands Alone.

Leaving Stern as the only New Deal editor advocating the new regimen for newspapers, the other pro-administration papers either sided actively with the American Newspaper Publishers' association, which is opposing the amendment, or failed to commit themselves for or against.

Scripps-Howard chain newspapers, loudest national champions of the New Deal, not only asked that a man from their central office be heard against the amendment, but also sent representatives from several of their individual sheets such as the Cleveland Press and the Pittsburgh Press. Several Hearst newspapers also asked to be heard against the code.

The Chicago Daily Times, administration backer, asked that J. F. Shanahan be heard against the New Deal proposal for the newspaper industry. Merrill Lord and Walter Parker of the Chicago Herald-Examiner and American were also slated to appear against the proposal.

2 CLUB GROUPS DRAW 8 POINT CIVIC PROGRAM

The liaison committees of the City club and the Woman's City club have recommended eight joint civic objectives, it was announced yesterday at the annual meeting of the City club at 315 Plymouth court.

The proposed joint planks of the civic program are: a constitutional convention for Illinois; honest elections and revision of election laws; a system of educational administration free from partisan politics; simplification of local government; uniform accounting and independent audit of public funds; honest and competent public officials and application and extension of the merit system; an effective and equitable system of taxation; and a social welfare program adequate for the times.

In the meeting the City club elected its board of directors for the next twelve months. New directors are Dr. Nathan S. Davis III., John A. Lapp, Arthur E. Holt, Clarence E. Ridley, Arnold R. Baar, Herbert Bebb, Rabbi Solomon Goldman, Henry L. McCarthy, Philip L. Seman, Paul Darrow, Mitchell Dawson, Walter T. Fisher, and Joseph M. Kraus.

HOSIERY CODE CHIEFS REQUEST MILLS TO CLOSE FOR TWO WEEKS

New York, June 22.—(AP)—The hosiery code authority unanimously recommended today that every hosiery plant in the country be requested to close for two weeks between July 1 and Sept. 1.

The announcement was made by Earl Constantine, executive director of the authority, at the conclusion of a two-day session of the board.

"Each plant," he said, "will be free to select the two weeks it prefers and such two weeks need not be consecutive.

"The authority also decided to recommend that the length of shifts of productive operations be reduced from forty hours to thirty-five, including full fashioned footing equipment operated on a two-shift basis, effective July 16."

ASHES OF A RICH WOMAN REVIVE AN OLD MYSTERY

Casket of "Hetty Green of La Salle Street" Found.

Yakima, Wash., June 22.—[Special.]—Mystery of the disappearance of the wealthy Mrs. Sarah E. Smith Scollard, known here as the "Hetty Green of La Salle street, Chicago," was solved dramatically today with the discovery of the woman's ashes in a silver casket concealed in the home of the late Reese B. Brown, Yakima capitalist. She was about 63 years old.

The bizarre turn in the five year old mystery came during the hearing of a suit by the guardian of Mrs. Scollard's estate against Brown's estate, charging Brown took five million dollars from the wealthy woman while acting as her attorney and while she was mentally incompetent.

Mrs. Scollard vanished in April, 1929, after withdrawing $500,000 from a bank in Seattle.

Death Certificate Found, Too.

Papers found with the casket today included a death certificate of the province of Quebec, saying Mrs. Scollard died of pneumonia in the Mount Royal hotel there, July 24, 1932, and a certificate from an undertaker that the body had been cremated and the ashes turned over to Brown.

It was fear of prosecution by the United States government on income tax charges, Mrs. Brown said today, that caused Mrs. Scollard to hide herself in Canada. During her absence numerous lawsuits were filed involving her estate, said to amount to $14,000,000.

Brown was killed last Jan. 27 in an automobile accident. At the time of his death he was under indictment on federal income tax charges and was involved in numerous civil and criminal actions.

Tells of Finding Ashes.

Mrs. Brown, telling today of the discovery of the woman's ashes, said that Brown's apartment had been kept locked most of the time since his death. It was their son, Fred, prowling through his father's lavish quarters on the estate where the capitalist lived like a feudal baron, who found the silver casket carefully hidden.

The widow said she would ask the court for permission to place the ashes of Mrs. Scollard in the mausoleum beside Brown's body.

"While Mrs. Scollard was in Canada I heard from her at least once a week," she said. "She was a wonderful person and I visited her several times in Montreal. I did not go as often as I wished, for she feared that federal agents might follow me and find her hiding place.

"When I received word that Mrs. Scollard was ill I notified Mr. Brown.

"He was in Chicago when word came that she had died. I do not know why Mr. Brown did not wish to give out news of the death and as soon as I found out about the ashes I brought them here to Yakima."

Mrs. Brown was calm as she took the witness stand in the courtroom this afternoon. Attorney George H. Rummens of Seattle placed a package on the desk of Commissioner W. R. Milroy containing a crimson bag which held the tiny casket.

In a matter of fact voice the widow of Mrs. Scollard's business manager identified the package as containing Mrs. Scollard's ashes.

The undertaker's certificate was produced. It read: "Montreal, July 29, 1932. To whom it may concern:

"Mr. R. B. Brown of Seattle, Wash., the bearer of this letter, has in his possession a silver urn containing the cremated remains of the late Sarah Peterson Smith, who died in Montreal on July 24, 1932, and was cremated on July 28."

RECALLED HERE.

Several Chicago real estate operators last evening recalled the career here of Mrs. Scollard. While living here prior to her marriage to George F. Scollard in 1926, she was known as Mrs. Sarah E. Smith. It was under this name that she gained fame as "Hetty Green of La Salle street."

Mrs. Scollard's first husband was James E. Smith, who discovered the Hecla silver mine near Burke, Idaho, twenty years ago. They were married in 1908, when Smith was on his deathbed. In 1916 she married Ralston T. Wilbur, San Francisco jeweler, but obtained a divorce a year later.

DIVORCE PLANS ARE CONFIRMED BY MRS. STROTZ

Mrs. Maxine Stresenreuter Strotz last night formally confirmed reports that she will file suit for divorce against Harold C. Strotz, La Salle street broker. Mrs. Strotz, who is modeling in a fashion show, said that the bill will be filed as soon as her attorney prepares it.

The Strotzes, who are socially prominent, were married Feb. 23, 1929. She previously had been married to Gene Culver, whom she divorced in 1926. Strotz was divorced in 1928 by Mrs. Eugenia Vandeveer Strotz.

Mrs. Strotz said that the divorce will not be contested by her husband. While she did not reveal the grounds, she stated that a financial settlement had been reached, and she would have the custody of her son, Harold Courtney, 1 year old, nine months of the year. Strotz will have the child during the summer.

Mrs. Strotz is living with her sister, Mrs. Marjorie Stresenreuter Butler, on the Hinsdale farm of Paul Butler, vice president of the Butler Paper company, whom the sister divorced last November. Mrs. Strotz will take an apartment in town after the divorce.

FRANK R. M'NINCH RENAMED POWER BOARD'S CHIEF

Appointed by President as New Row Arises.

Washington, D. C., June 22.—(AP)—Frank R. McNinch today was renamed federal power commission chairman by President Roosevelt, an appointment that by chance coincided with a new challenge to the power claims of the federal government.

FRANK R. M'NINCH.

In reappointing McNinch to a five year term, Mr. Roosevelt ignored the demand of Senator Joseph W. Bailey [Dem., N. C.] that McNinch, who opposed the election of the Democratic presidential nominee of 1928, Alfred E. Smith, be dropped from appointive office.

To Proceed with Dam.

The Appalachian Electric Power company meanwhile notified the power commission that it intended to proceed with construction of a dam on the New river in Virginia. The commission, in a previous case involving the same company, had contended the federal government had control not only over power plants on the navigable portions of streams but over their non-navigable headwaters.

Upon the outcome of the Appalachian's challenge may repose the question of whether the federal government can license or claim the right to lease power sites on many streams.

See Injunction Request.

Members of the federal power commission indicated tonight an application for an injunction to restrain the Appalachian from proceeding with its plan probably would be forthcoming. It was recalled such a petition was filed a fortnight ago against subsidiaries of the Union Carbide and Carbon corporation, a concern proposing to build a dam about 40 miles downstream from the Appalachian project on the New river.

BALLOON HAULED TO TAKEOFF BOWL FOR FLIGHT INTO SPACE

Rapid City, S. D., June 22.—(AP)—Hitched to a powerful truck, the 3,000,000 cubic feet capacity balloon, the largest in the world, which will lift a flying laboratory 15 miles into the air on the projected stratosphere flight from this section next month, was hauled into the takeoff bowl today.

It was dragged onto a pile of sawdust, spread to prevent damage from rocks and twigs, in the middle of the bowl where it will be laid out. Gas will be fed into the bag from a series of hoses on manifolds which can be connected with the hydrogen cylinders piled at one side of the bowl.

Radio officials announced today that the first nation-wide broadcast from the stratosphere camp, 11 miles west of here, will be made Saturday at 5 p. m., mountain time, over the blue network of the National Broadcasting company.

PLAN SIDEWALK CAFE DESPITE PERMIT DOUBTS

While south park officials sought to determine whether the park district has a legal right to permit the establishment of sidewalk cafés on Michigan avenue, Otto Eitel, manager of the Stevens hotel, yesterday announced plans for the opening of such a restaurant next week.

A difficulty facing the south park commissioners is an ordinance forbidding the sale of liquor on property under the park district's jurisdiction, according to William I. Bell, acting superintendent of the district. In addition, if any sidewalk cafés are established, proprietors must agree to bar all forms of advertising, he said.

Mr. Eitel said the Stevens café will be situated at Michigan boulevard and Balbo street and will occupy a space 75 feet long and 14 feet wide on Michigan avenue, providing tables and seats for 104 patrons. At other hotels on Michigan avenue it was reported that plans for sidewalk cafés were being discussed but that no decisions had been reached.

George T. Donoghue, south park superintendent, and George E. Gorman, park district attorney, said yesterday that they will decide whether the district can issue permits for the continental type of café within a week. No applications for permits have been received, Mr. Donoghue said.

LADY CAVENDISH THUMBS NOSE FOR BRITISH COURT

Adele Astaire Testifies in James Divorce Case.

LONDON, June 22.—(AP)—A demonstration of how two noted dancers—Adele Astaire and Tilly Losch—exchanged greetings in New York with the thumb-to-the-nose gesture provided a climax today to testimony in the divorce suit of Edward James, a brother of Mrs. Marshall Field, against the former Miss Losch.

The fashionable audience in the courtroom gasped a bit as Miss Astaire, now Lady Cavendish, illustrated the gesture from the witness stand after aiding her fellow dancer in refuting the charge of James that she [Tilly Losch] misconducted herself with the tall and handsome Prince Serge Obolensky.

Gesture Vulgar? Court Asks.

Sir Patrick Hastings, counsel for Mrs. James, asked if the manner of greeting were not rather vulgar.

Well, as to that, replied the petite Lady Cavendish, Americans are more demonstrative than the British.

With the completion of evidence today the courtroom crowd looked forward to hearing the arguments of a brilliant array of counsel.

The lawyers are expected to spend three or four days presenting their cases to the special jury. Those representing James maintain that his wife and the prince misconducted themselves at various addresses in New York between August and October, 1931, while Mrs. James was playing in "The Band Wagon."

Claims She Is Innocent.

On the other side the beautiful Viennese dancer contends that she is innocent of all charges, but that her wealthy husband was cruel to her. She is asking a judicial separation, since unfaithfulness is the only grounds for divorce in England.

Other witnesses today were Randolph Churchill, son of Winston Churchill, and Sir Thomas Beecham, conductor of the London Philharmonic orchestra. Sir Thomas testified for the husband.

Mrs. James, who almost collapsed Wednesday after giving her own testimony, appeared tired today as she glanced wide eyed around the room. She wore a red velvet coat over a black blouse, and a black skirt.

Prince Strokes Mustache.

A short distance away sat Prince Obolensky, most of the time with folded arms, but occasionally stroking his small black mustache.

The evidence revealed that after the honeymoon James returned to England from time to time, leaving his dancer wife in New York. While he was away he employed detectives to watch her.

As a result he brought the charges. The wife, in denying the charges, said that she met the prince only at the request of her friend, Princess Obolensky, to ask him to permit an arrangement for divorce.

Lady Cavendish, the most prominent witness outside the principals, supported the claims of Mrs. James and told of their manner of exchanging greetings at the conclusion of her testimony.

The noted dancer was asked particularly about a New York taxicab ride of Mrs. James and the prince, which she observed and during which, she said, she saw nothing improper.

COLORADO USES GAS FIRST TIME FOR EXECUTION

Pills in Water Cause Death in 30 Seconds.

Canon City, Colo., June 22.—(AP)—William Cody Kelley was executed tonight in Colorado's new lethal gas chamber for the slaying of Russell Browning, Delta hog raiser. He was the chamber's first victim.

Kelley was strapped to the chair in a specially constructed gas house, 12 poison pills were dropped automatically into a pail of water under his chair and he apparently died in about 30 seconds.

Fifteen Colorado physicians peered at Kelley through small windows in the death house as he died. The physicians asked to watch him in the hope they would obtain information which would be of aid to them in treating patients who are victims of gas poisoning.

More Humane Than Hanging.

Prison officials said the execution was more humane than hanging—the method previously used in Colorado—and that there was no physical pain.

Only 90 cents worth of material was necessary. The poison pills, dropped into a bucket of water, generate the gas which causes death. One breath of the gas brings death.

For days prison officials experimented with the gas to be sure the execution would be performed without error. Dogs and pigs were strapped in the gas house and were executed under every conceivable condition that was expected to prevail tonight. In each instance the gas caused death in less than 30 seconds.

Relatives Without Funds.

The physicians took the body to the prison hospital for an autopsy. It was expected his body will be buried in the prison cemetery as Kelley's relatives are without funds for a burial.

The condemned man spent most of today writing letters of farewell to his wife and infant daughter, who are at Gresham, Ore.

To his father, Earl R. Kelley of Creal Springs, Ill., Kelley wrote: "I wish I could get my sentence changed so I could take up Bible work as a teacher. But unless something is done for me in the next few hours I will be in a long sleep when this reaches you. Good-by, dad."

County Judge Jarecki Back in Court After Long Illness

County Judge Edmund K. Jarecki, still weak from his recent illness, is back in his office at the county building, but only for a few hours a day. The judge said it would be another month before he is able to resume his full judicial duties.

YOUTHFUL CHURCH ROBBERS GUILTY; GET YEAR TO LIFE

3 Denied New Trial After Third Time in Court.

Three youth were found guilty of robbing the rectory of the St. Columbanus Catholic church, 831 East 71st street, by a jury in Judge Michael Feinberg's Criminal court yesterday. A motion for a new trial was denied and they were immediately sentenced to serve from one year to life in Joliet penitentiary.

It was the third time the defendants, Tony Mucerino, Joseph Rocco and Albert Ferrari, had been on trial for the crime. Once they skipped their bonds, only to surrender later. They were found not guilty in the first trial and a jury disagreed in the second. Yesterday the jury required only one hour to decide the case.

Judge Praises Jurors.

Judge Feinberg, who raised the defendants' bonds from $30,000 to $30,000 apiece in the event of an appeal, congratulated the jury on the verdict.

State's Attorney Courtney, who was in the courtroom when the verdict was returned, praised Assistant State's Attorney Emmet Moynihan, who worked unceasingly on the case.

"It was a splendid piece of work," he said, "in view of the fact that the case was brought to a successful conclusion despite numerous obstacles."

Church Robbed Last Fall.

Six robbers invaded the church rectory on Oct. 29, 1933, seeking $10,000 which they believed the church had collected for a mission that day. Armed with shotguns and revolvers, they terrorized priests, the housekeeper and a woman visitor, Mrs. Clara N. Noonan Esting, 7440 South Michigan avenue. They escaped with $1,000 from the rectory safe.

Police afterward rounded up six men. Identifications of three were not positive, however, and they were released.

At the first trial, despite positive identification of the other three, the jury returned a not guilty verdict. The state promptly charged the defendants with the robbery of Mrs. Esting, who lost a diamond ring worth $450 and $8 in cash, and brought the three who were positively identified to trial again, dropping charges against the others.

DELAY IN STREET BUILDING JOBS CRIPPLING TRAFIC

Pledge Completion of Big Projects in 6 Weeks.

Work will be completed within a month to six weeks on a number of widening and re-paving projects which have paralyzed trafic on important streets in many sections of the city, Kendrick Harger, district engineer of the state highway department, promised yesterday. The work, financed by federal funds and awarded to individual contractors, is being carried on under state supervision because the streets involved are state highways.

Although some of the projects were started last winter, Mr. Harger declared there has been no avoidable delay in pushing them to conclusion. However many merchants on the streets affected and motorists accustomed to using the thoroughfares have voiced complaint as to the status of the work.

Bad North Side Tieup.

Most irritating to far north side and north shore residents is the torn up condition of Foster avenue from Clark street to Sheridan road and Bryn Mawr avenue from Boardway to Sheridan road. Both of these streets are chief connecting links to the newly improved north side outer drive.

A change of plans, Mr. Harger said, is responsible for a week's delay in the Foster avenue job.

"We originally planned merely to widen the street," he said. "When we started peeling back the old asphalt along the curbing, however, we discovered that the old concrete base between Sheridan road and Broadway was in bad condition. It seemed poor engineering not to put in a new base, so this is being done."

Work was started on this project about April 1, Mr. Harger said. The laying of the new concrete will be started Monday, he declared, and will continue without interruption. After a curing period of approximately two weeks, the asphalt will be spread. The entire operation, Mr. Harger estimated, should be completed within 30 days. The Bryn Mawr project will be about a week behind this, he said.

Increases Cost of Project.

Tearing out the old concrete base on Foster avenue boosted the original cost of this project by $20,000, to a total of $75,000, Mr. Harger disclosed. The Bryn Mawr widening work is costing $20,000 of the 17½ million dollar allotted to the state of Illinois by the federal bureau of public roads.

The North avenue project, which extends from Damen avenue to Clark street, is "in a mess," the engineer admitted. The water pipe extension bureau has delayed this work, he said, by laying a water main, while utility companies have also had crews working, although the latter now have finished.

Work is now actively under way, he said, on North avenue from Damen to Western and paving should be completed within three weeks. Work on the Damen-to-Clark portion is still delayed, Mr. Harger asserted, by the city water pipe department. Work on this project began March 1 and the street is to be widened from 38 to 50 feet. It will cost approximately $300,000.

"This work being done by the city and utilities all is necessary," the engineer said, "and it is being accomplished as rapidly as possible."

The Cicero Avenue Project.

The Cicero avenue project, extending from 22d street to Irving Park boulevard with one gap from North avenue to Chicago avenue, will be completed in five or six weeks, Mr. Harger declared. A total of $750,000 is being spent here. Underground work began last winter, shortly after the contracts were let in December. Another stretch from Wilson to Devon on Cicero is being widened and will be finished at about the same time.

Other works which will be complete within a month or six weeks, Mr. Harger said, include Ogden avenue from Jackson boulevard to the city limits on the southwest and North avenue between Cicero and Crawford.

13 FINED ON GAMING COUNT.

Thirteen men, operators of roadhouses and taverns in the western suburbs, and all of whom were arrested last week in the state's attorney's campaign against slot machine operation, were fined $25 and costs yesterday before Police Magistrate Henry J. Sandusky of Cicero. All had pleaded guilty to violating the Illinois gaming act.

JOBBERS ASSAIL NRA DRIED MILK CODE AS UNFAIR

Profit Eliminated, Say Leaders.

Jobbers and brokers of the dried milk industry have joined other dissenters from the national recovery program, it became known yesterday. Charges that marketing agreements sponsored by the Agricultural Adjustment administration discriminate in effect against the smaller dry milk manufacturers in favor of the larger ones, and gradually will force the jobber out of business, have been filed with Secretary of Agriculture Wallace in Washington.

In the dried milk industry the part played by the jobbers and brokers is an important one, which has been recognized by the federal department of agriculture officials.

In most instances involving small manufacturers the jobbers and brokers are the sole sales outlet. During a year jobbers and brokers handle half a billion dollars' worth of dried milk.

"Receive No Recognition."

Under the marketing agreement which is equivalent to the code adopted by business under the NRA, the jobber, according to claims made by leaders of this group of business men, does not receive fair recognition.

The agreement provides than on the one carload base price the jobber is allowed a discount of not more than ¼ of a cent per pound when he makes a purchase.

In the same agreement, however, the consumer or user is granted the same discount provided he purchases two cars or more, but the jobber is not allowed the discount on a two car purchase.

Charge Profit Eliminated.

This discrimination, the jobbers aver, practically eliminates them from merchandising dried milk to the two car user, as it does not enable them to make any profit.

Overtures have been made to the agreement committee, with suggestions for changes, eliminations, and additions to the present agreement, but with a few minor exceptions the suggestions have been ignored, the jobbers say.

SCHOOLS LABOR 24 HOURS A DAY ON LOAN DATA

The board of education yesterday ordered its departments of architecture and leases on 24 hour duty to complete within the next week a schedule of all school properties to be listed with the Reconstruction Finance corporation as security for a proposed loan of $25,447,240 to pay teachers and other employés overdue salaries.

In addition to detailed appraisals of each parcel of property, the board of education must present extensive maps and charts to RFC officials.

The board has estimated at $30,000,000 the value of property not used for educational purposes, which may be offered to the government for security.

Major parcels of property to be offered for the loan include the loop block bounded by Madison, Dearborn, and Monroe streets, roughly estimated at $14,593,000; the Dearborn street front of the First National bank building, $2,000,000; eighty feet of the Boston store front on Madison street, $944,000; the site of the Rand-McNally building, at Clark and Harrison streets, $484,000; the site of the Municipal airport, at 63d street and Cicero avenue, $1,899,000; and 9 million square feet of property in the Austin region, valued at $3,756,000.

REFUSES TO HALT, SHOT FLEEING FROM COURTYARD

Irving W. Feuer, 3001 Eastwood avenue, owner of a dental laboratory in the loop, yesterday was shot and wounded in the left arm by police. Sergt. John Brustman of the Summerdale station fired on Feuer when he disregarded a command to halt and ran from the courtyard of an apartment building at 4936 Winthrop avenue. He said Feuer would be held because he refused to name the young woman he said he had gone to visit at that address. Police also wanted to know why he was loitering in the courtyard.

Wife Shoots Husband During Row in Pie Shop

Salvatore Lezza, 44 years old, 1449 50th court, Cicero, was shot in the back of the right shoulder last night by his wife, Lucy, 40, during a quarrel in their pastry shop at 1006 South Halsted street. He was taken to the county hospital. He will recover. Mrs. Lezza is being held by police.

FURNITURE MART OPENS SUMMER DISPLAY MONDAY

Attendance Record Is Forecast.

A preview of furniture displays being installed in the American Furniture mart, 666 Lake Shore drive, preparatory to the semi-annual midsummer furniture market in Chicago which opens Monday, revealed a preponderance of modern furniture. For the first time, experienced observers of the market say, modern furniture will exceed the recognized period furniture in sales volume this year.

This was attributed largely to the modern architecture and other stimulus in the way of modern design which marked A Century of Progress of 1933. With the 1934 Fair in progress, furniture men expect an even greater impetus in this popular trend.

Many manufacturers arrived in Chicago yesterday to superintend installation of their displays. More than 1,000 men representing retail furniture dealers are expected Monday.

Expect Record Attendance.

Before the close of the three weeks' market, according to Lawrence H. Whiting, president of the Furniture mart, the total of 6,200 attending last summer's furniture show should be exceeded.

The 1934 modern furniture is smaller and simpler. Its chief beauty, experts explained, lies in the texture and contrast of the woods and in the coarsely fibred and colorful cloth of upholstery. Replacing in importance the carving and ornamentation of older types of furniture, the new furniture is chastely simple in line, but all materials used are chosen for beauty as well as use, it was explained.

Some period furniture will be shown, early American perhaps predominating among this "miscellaneous" classification. Cherry will make its debut as a wood here, maple having been the favorite wood in early American styles to date.

Revive Chinese Chippendale.

One of the "classic modern" styles is Chinese Chippendale, which is combined with Chinese lamps and vases. Paintings on glass, which originated in China, are being revived and will be shown among the accessories.

Oyster white, ivory and bone white are used in painted furniture of both modern and classic design.

The Merchandise mart likewise is opening a furniture show for out of town buyers Monday, its show laying stress on modern styles.

FIND SAIL BOAT ADRIFT IN LAKE; FEAR DROWNING

Discovery of a fifteen foot sailboat drifting in Lake Michigan, about five miles off Waukegan, led to the fear yesterday that at least one more amateur sailor may have drowned.

Coast Guardsmen are now seeking the bodies of three they believe were lost. They are Raymond Gustafson, 24 years old, 523 Deming place, and Miss Ruth Hatch, 25, of the same address, whose sailboat was found off Evanston Thursday, and Richard Ludlow, 19, of 480 Sheridan road, Evanston, who was drowned trying to swim to shore from a rowboat.

The boat found yesterday was green and contained only a pair of woman's tennis shoes.

Harbor Master Adam Detloff at Waukegan, the Kenosha coast guard, and the Chicago coast guard all said they could not identify the craft nor had they reports of any one missing except the three already sought.

John Public Makes It Plain Why He Groans at Tax Bills

Just why most Chicagoans receive their tax bills with growls was disclosed by publication of a questionnaire-interview survey made by the college of commerce of De Paul university.

Prof. L. M. McDermott of the university announced that fifty interviewers had talked with representatives of more than 2,000 families in various sections of the city, first, in regard to their opinion of the fairness of their taxes, and then as to their reasons for approving or disapproving the levies imposed on them both on real estate and personal property.

Wee Percentage Satisfied.

Out of a total of 2,175 families only 127 or 5.9 per cent said that present real estate taxes are satisfactorily levied. Out of 2,170 families interviewed as to personal property taxes only 99 or 4.6 per cent thought this burden was properly distributed.

This general dissatisfaction has been recognized for some time, although the arithmetical ratios had not been determined heretofore. But interest in the results of the survey centered more on the reasons given for the discontent.

There were 2,048 real estate owners who gave their reasons for dissatisfaction many of them giving more than one reason. A tabulation of these replies follows:

| Reasons. | Number. | Pct. |
|---|---|---|
| Too high | 1,378 | 67.2 |
| Not properly determined | 1,041 | 50.8 |
| Too much waste | 582 | 28.4 |
| Politicians get it | 679 | 33.2 |
| See no results from taxes | 355 | 12.4 |

"The second half of the questionnaire," read the report, "applied to personal property. There was expressed in many of the answers a very intense feeling. Some were of a character as to almost burn the paper on which they were written. Many of the most violent complaints were aimed at the telephone book method, with the 'number of rooms' method running a close second."

The Lineup on Personalty.

The 2,071 householders who complained of personal property taxes, many stating more than one cause for dissatisfaction, gave these reasons for discontent:

| Reasons. | Number. | Pct. |
|---|---|---|
| Too high | 1,182 | 57.0 |
| Not properly determined | 1,153 | 55.6 |
| Hits poor only | 590 | 28.7 |
| Too much waste | 528 | 25.5 |
| Politicians get most of it | 489 | 23.6 |
| See no results from it | 461 | 22.7 |

Other reasons given for irritation over personalty taxes were that they are "unjust," "unnecessary," "too crooked," that they constitute double taxation and that "the wealthy are not taxed."

EDITH M'CORMICK ESTATE MAY BE LIABLE FOR BONDS

Probate Judge John F. O'Connell indicated yesterday that he would hold the estate of Edith Rockefeller McCormick liable for at least part of $77,000 worth of real estate bonds of the now defunct firm of Krenn & Dato, which, it is claimed, were guaranteed by the late Mrs. McCormick.

The bonds are now held by Mrs. Minnie Noon Dato, wife of Edward Dato, a member of the firm, who lodged a claim of $85,000 against the estate, the sum representing the value of the bonds, plus accrued interest.

Judge O'Connell continued the hearing on the claim indefinitly, and instructed attorneys for Mrs. Dato and for the estate to confer and determine just what assets of the Krenn & Dato firm remain. He indicated that he would hold the estate liable for any of the $85,000 which could not be covered by the real estate firm's remaining assets.

SCIENTISTS FIND WHAT'S IN THE AIR ON 4 PLANETS

No Oxygen Present, Hence No Earthly Life.

Berkeley, Cal., June 22.—[Special.]—The constitution of the atmospheres of Jupiter, Saturn, Uranus and Neptune, long a baffling cosmic mystery, has at last been definitly determined after successful reproduction of equivalents of these atmospheres in the laboratory. This was announced here today before the meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science in a report by Dr. V. M. Slipher of Lowell observatory in Arizona and Dr. Arthur Adel of the department of physics, University of Michigan.

The report was presented by Dr. E. C. Slipher, brother of Dr. Slipher and also an astronomer at Lowell observatory.

These atmospheres, it has been found, consist of seven parts hydrogen, one part of carbon and another part of nitrogen. By far the most predominating constituent is methane, commonly known as marsh gas, mine gas, or coal damp, which consists of four atoms of hydrogen and one atom of carbon. The next main constituent is ammonia, which is composed of three atoms of hydrogen and one of nitrogen. In addition there are large quantities of free hydrogen.

No Oxygen Found.

No oxygen exists in the atmospheres of these giant planets, and this, it was pointed out, definitly rules out even the remotest possibility of the existence of life such as we know it in these great members of our solar system.

Were any oxygen to be present, it was pointed out, it would cause a terrific explosion in these atmospheres in the presence of so much hydrogen.

A summary of the accumulating evidence relating to the other planets, it was added, indicates strongly that, as far as our own corner of the universe is concerned, our little earth is the only possible abode of life in the forms known to us.

The work of Dr. Slipher and Dr. Adel corroborates the pioneer work of two other investigators in the field. Dr. Ruppert Wildt of Goettingen, Germany, was the first to suspect that certain bands in the spectrum of these planets corresponds to methane, while Dr. Theodore Dunham Jr. of Mount Wilson observatory was the first to establish the presence of ammonia.

The study of the planets is much more difficult, it was pointed out, than that of the distant nebulæ because the planets do not furnish their own light but make themselves known only through the light they borrow from the sun.

The spectrum is man's "ladder into space." When a celestial body is incandescent it reveals its nature through the spectrum it sends out. Bodies such as the planets, which are in themselves nonluminous, do not reveal themselves to us except indirectly through the light they take from the sun. Hence their spectra are much more difficult to interpret.

Method of Identification.

The work of identification has been made possible, it was stated, by the development of highly sensitive photographic plates for the invisible infra red part of the spectrum, which enables astronomers to "push the planets further into the red."

It is in these parts of the spectrum that the atmospheres of Jupiter and the other giant planets produce wide intense bands. But until the photographic plates sensitive to these bands were developed these bands remained invisible to science. After the bands were at last made visible there was still the problem of identifying them with some element known on earth. To do so it is necessary to reproduce similar bands in the laboratory. The identification of these bands was not made, Dr. Slipher revealed, until light was passed through the equivalent of 2,000 meters of methane gas.

ROBBERS SLUG CONTRACTOR ON TRAIN; GET $2,240

While on a northbound Chicago and North Western train, which was just pulling into Wilson avenue yesterday, Michael Gebhardt, 60 years old, a contractor, was slugged by two armed men and robbed of a $2,240 pay roll, which he was taking to a construction job in Wilmette.

Gebhardt, member of the firm of John Gebhardt & Sons, 208 West Washington street, apparently had been followed by the two robbers from a loop bank. They took a seat on the train directly behind him. As the train left the Irving Park station one said:

"This is the spot. We've got to do it now."

A gun was pressed against Gebhardt's back, and one of the bandits demanded the money. When Gebhardt refused he was slugged with the butt of a gun and knocked, half conscious, into the aile.

Seizing the package of money and flourishing revolvers at the frightened passengers, the bandits ran to the end of the car, and dropped off the train. They were seen to leap into an automobile which was parked in Ravenswood avenue, and drive away.

CRIMINAL COURT.

Albert Gehrs, Ralph Kahne, Willard La Roche, Howard Kosch, George Ahrens and Joseph Cyril, robbery, sentenced to 1 year to life each in the penitentiary; Henry Key, burglary, sentenced to 1 year to life in the penitentiary; George Atkinson, robbery, sentenced to 1 year to life in the penitentiary by Judge Francis B. Allegretti.

Michael Senew and Henry Hobolt, larceny, sentenced to 1 to 20 years each in the penitentiary; Henry Senew, assault to murder, sentenced to 1 to 14 years in the penitentiary by Judge Harry B. Miller.

Claudius Crossley, murder, sentenced to life imprisonment in the penitentiary; Edward Slater, crime against nature, sentenced to 1 to 10 years in the penitentiary by Judge Grover Niemeyer.

Albert Ferrari, Joseph Rocco and Tony Mucerino, robbery, sentenced to 1 year to life each in the penitentiary by Judge Michael Feinberg.

Actress Is Victim of Infantile Paralysis

[Acme Photo.]

Los Angeles, Cal., June 22.—Ida Lupino, young English actress, fell victim to the epidemic of infantile paralysis here today.

She was confined to her home in Beverly Hills. Physicians said she had contracted only a slight case, and expected no serious results from her illness.

Miss Lupino is the daughter of Stanley Lupino, famous on the English stage. She is the second member of the film company to fall victim of the epidemic, Hal Rosson, cameraman and estranged husband of Jean Harlow, screen star, having contracted the disease some time ago. He was reported out of danger today.

The General hospital today took steps toward the employment of 25 physicians and 100 nurses to aid in caring for victims of the present siege of infantile paralysis. There were 326 patients under treatment in the hospital today, as against 322 Thursday.

A total of 28 new cases in the city was reported today, with 11 new cases in the county.

GUILTY AS SLAYER OF HER HUSBAND; FACES GALLOWS

Los Angeles, Cal., June 22.—(AP)—A verdict of conviction, without recommendation, was returned by a jury tonight against Mrs. Nellie D. Madison for the murder of her husband, Eric D. Madison, film studio employé and the son of a Danish senator. The verdict carries the death penalty. Mrs. Madison heard the verdict without show of emotion.

The woman was accused of shooting her husband to death after a quarrel in their Burbank apartment house on the night of March 24. The body was found the next morning, ten hours after shots had been heard and two hours after Mrs. Madison was seen to leave the apartment.

Mrs. Madison was arrested two days later at a secluded mountain cabin. She denied she had been hiding and claimed to know nothing of her husband's death. Her defense was that she did not believe him dead, the victim of the slaying having been an enemy of her husband.

She asserted she attended the funeral of the victim out of "love and loyalty" to her husband, who had gone into hiding after killing his enemy. Her attorneys argued she went to the funeral to help conceal the killing done by her husband.

Permission to speak in the park had been denied Long because another candidate had been granted the rights. Long demanded that he be taken forcibly from the platform. The police obliged.

MRS. LEONARD DIVORCES POET AND PROFESSOR

Wife Charges Cruel and Inhuman Treatment.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Madison, Wis., June 22.—[Special.]—A divorce from Prof. William Ellery Leonard, University of Wisconsin poet, was granted Mrs. Charlotte Charlton Leonard today in Circuit court following a recital of incidents in their 20 years of married life which comprised a complaint of cruel and inhuman treatment. Prof. Leonard did not contest the action.

Prof. Leonard called her names and told her to leave their home during the course of one of his "brain storms" which apparently were due indirectly to his artistic temperament, Mrs. Leonard told the court.

The poet was described also as "pathologically irritable" on frequent occasions and his outbursts were likely to continue if they lived together longer, it was testified.

Tells of Separation.

Testimony also referred to what were characterized as Prof. Leonard's "phobias" one of which was said to have been manifested in his desire and demand that Mrs. Leonard remain at home while he was away.

Following a recital of this testimony, Mrs. Leonard was asked what specific incident led to the separation and finally brought the divorce action into court.

"It seems that there was some one else in his life," Mrs. Leonard replied. "We were talking it over. He asked me to leave and I left. That was all. It was the third time I had left."

The divorce action complaint described Prof. Leonard as a person of education, refinement, culture, and scholarly distinction although he was given to outbursts of temperament during which he called Mrs. Leonard violent names and said he no longer had any love or affection for her.

Make Property Settlement.

Award of the decree was preceded by a property settlement through which Mrs. Leonard accepted a $6,000 mortgage and various articles of furniture now in the apartment which she and her former husband have occupied.

Prof. Leonard is author of "The Locomotive God" and "Two Lives," as well as numerous works of prose and poetry.

JOBBERS OF LIQUOR BOTTLES IN FIGHT ON TREASURY EDICT

A storm of protest arose in Chicago yesterday over Thursday's announcement by Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau that after July 1 every liquor bottle made and sold in this country must have the names of the manufacturer and distiller or rectifier blown into the glass. The new measure, which was authorized by a resolution of congress, is intended to halt bootlegging, but it was declared here yesterday that it will foster monopoly and increase the price of liquor.

Harold J. Fishbein, representing the National Bottle Jobbers association, left for Washington yesterday to confer with treasury officials. The new regulation will virtually wipe out the small bottle jobbers, he said.

"This entire measure is based on a misconception," he declared. "Pre-prohibition experience showed that the bootlegger could always get bottles of whatever kind he had need. Even if it were possible to dry up every source of legitimate supply of bottles to the bootlegger, the supposed goal of the regulations would never be reached.

"Why, every bellboy, every saloon keeper, and apartment building janitor would become a source of bottle supply."

The quoted statement of Secretary Morgenthau that he hoped that the measure will lower the price of liquor was laughed at by several members of the bottle industry.

Mr. Fishbein explained that the requirements for having various data molded in the glass will increase the price of liquor by raising the cost of bottle manufacture.

SECRETARY TO HARRIMAN LEAPS TO HER DEATH

Aid to Convicted Banker Jumps from 27th Floor.

New York, June 22.—[Special.]—Miss Sarah A. Burke, who was confidential secretary to Joseph W. Harriman, the founder and former president of the now defunct Harriman National Bank and Trust company, committed suicide today by jumping from a window on the 27th floor of the building at 745 Fifth avenue.

Miss Burke, 55 years old, was employed for 22 years by the Harriman bank, where, in addition to being Harriman's secretary, she was head of the women's banking department.

Convicted This Week.

Harriman was convicted this week of misapplying $1,713,080 of the institution's funds, and of falsifying the books. His sentence will be announced next week.

For the last eight months Miss Burke was employed by the Manufacturers Trust company.

Miss Burke's body struck the roof of a nine story building occupied by a tailoring concern at 3 East 57th street. A woman on the 25th floor saw the body hurtling through the air and notified the superintendent of the building.

Find Hat and Purse.

The secretary's body struck the roof were found near the open window on the 27th floor. A brother, Franklin Burke, employed by the International Mercantile Marine company, identified the body.

At the apartment house where Miss Burke had lived for 20 years John Chadburne, the superintendent, said she had been despondent of late "ove the banking situation." She lived alone in a two room apartment.

POLICE RESPOND TO FIGHT REPORT; FIND IT WAITING

There was action aplenty last night when Policemen Leo Moore and John Kragero of the North Racine avenue station responded to reports of a fight at 811 North May street.

When they arrived, Stanley Budzik, 45 years old, emerged from the door and opened fire. Moore, with an ax, Kragero, was on the open side of the house at the moment and couldn't help Moore. For a minute or two Budzik chased Moore, swinging the ax.

Then Moore stopped the proceedings temporarily by shooting Budzik in the left foot and left leg. Action picked up again, though, when Budzik's police dog raced out of the house and nipped Moore in the right leg. It all ended when Budzik was overpowered and his loyal dog was tied and muzzled.

CATHOLIC BLAMED FOR MURDER OF NAZI OFFICIAL

11 Members of Youth Association Seized.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, June 22.—Eleven members of the Roman Catholic association, "the strength of the German youth," were arrested today following the murder of Kurt Elsholz, Nazi party official, at Gollmitz, which is located in Brandenburg, on the Polish border.

The government announced that Gregor Meissner, one of the founders of the Catholic association, was guilty of the murder, and Nazi officials charged that the crime was inspired by religious fanaticism.

"Meissner had no personal quarrel with Elsholz," Nazi leaders said. "He could only have committed the crime out of fanaticism. Meissner entered the office of Elsholz in broad daylight and buried a butcher's knife in his body as he followed his victim into the courtyard when he attempted to escape."

Transfer Parish Priests.

One of the arrested Catholics is a school teacher at Gollmitz. The Catholic priest has been transferred to another parish to save him from the wrath of the town's residents. He is under police supervision.

The slain Nazi official was honored at a state funeral in Potsdam. Many Nazi leaders, including Prince August Wilhelm, son of the former kaiser, attended the ceremony.

Meanwhile Herr Staebe, leader of Hitler Youth at Koenigsberg, addressed an audience of youths and denounced Catholic parents who are clamoring for the right to educate the children in the Catholic faith.

Chancellor Hitler was besieged in Berlin today by his more "radical followers" as a result of the attack by Vice Chancellor Franz von Papen against the Nazi régime in a speech delivered at Marburg university on Sunday. In his address the vice chancellor, a monarchist at heart and a close friend of President Paul von Hindenburg, took the Nazis to task for their "arrogance and excesses."

Urges Stiffer Stand.

Among Hitler's visitors today was Wilhelm Kube, governor of Brandenburg. The governor, who has clashed repeatedly with the Junkers and conservative elements in his district, attempted to induce the chancellor to stiffen his resistance against Von Papen's plea for a more moderate policy.

After his plea Kube reported he had achieved considerable success in the Nazi campaign against unmployment by compelling workers who are drawing doles in the cities to go back to the soil.

Berlin's unemployed who were raised on farms received a warning this week that if they fail to accept offers of farm work they will be stricken from the dole.

City workers who become farm hands will receive 20 cents an hour besides free food and lodging. Their wives will be paid $4 a week, part of which will be taken out of the workers' pay envelopes.

In connection with the unemployment situation, it was announced that there was an increase of 1.5 per cent in the number of Germans employed May 31 compared with the number working April 30. The total employed at the end of May was given as 15,559,000 and the increase as 2,379,000.

Goering Nips Mutiny of Guards.

BERLIN, June 22.—(AP)—About 150 members of Hermann Wilhelm Goering's special police guards were confined to concentration camps yesterday because of insubordination, it became known today.

These special guards, recruited from the ranks of the storm troops, had been doing guard duty before Goering's official residence. Among their duties was a daily drill executed with military precision.

One official who knows the mentality of these guards observed "They wanted all the amenities of their jobs—snappy uniforms, parading, preferred treatment by the populace—but when it came down to hard work they were inclined to shirk."

It was reported that two days ago they refused to drill and that Goering, who is premier of Prussia and reichmaster of aviation, nipped the incipient mutiny in the bud.

GERMAN ENVOY INSISTS HE WILL RETURN TO U. S.

New York, June 22.—(AP)—Dr. Hans Luther, German ambassador to the United States, in a message tonight from the steamship Europa said that rumors he was not to return to Washington were "unfounded."

"My return," Luther wirelessed, "is already scheduled."

Dispatches from Berlin today said political and diplomatic circles were stirred by rumors that if Dr. Luther returned it would be only to make farewell calls. The German ambassador is now en route to Europe.

German advices hinted that Dr. Luther, not an original member of the Nazi party, found it increasingly difficult to explain the Nazi government to the United States, and to influence his home office to adopt measures he considered essential to improved German-American relationships.

U. S. IS INVITED TO JOIN WORLD LABOR GROUP AT GENEVA

GENEVA, June 22.—(AP)—Delegates to the international labor conference today unanimously invited the United States to join it in "striving for the consummation of social justice throughout the world." The United States would not be obligated under the covenant of the league of nations, under which the labor federation operates.

The acceptance of the Washington government was awaited eagerly, and it was hoped that favorable word would come from the United States in time for the election of an American representative to the conference governing board tomorrow.

Seldom has the prestige of the United States received such public recognition as it did when the delegates this afternoon solicited the cooperation of the nation. Procedure was halted while the dignified conferees applauded and shouted enthusiastically.

Great Britain, France, Italy, Cuba, Canada, Denmark, Ireland, China, Japan, and Mexico joined in tribute to the United States.

"SADISTIC ROOM" OF PODERJAY NEW CLEW IN MYSTERY

Vienna Police Discover Torture Weapons.

romantic Poderjay. The latter had introduced her to his missing bride as his sister-in-law. For a time it was believed the woman might have been Miss Ferrand.

Still another woman came to police attention, but Ayres said she had little knowledge of Poderjay, perhaps had never even met him. She was traced through a letter mailed to Poderjay and received at Miss Tufverson's apartment after he returned to Europe alone. The woman, whose name was not disclosed, is a school teacher, believed to live in Hartford, Conn.

$5,000 Bank Account Withdrawn.

A further check of Miss Tufverson's financial affairs disclosed that after marrying Poderjay she gave him a $5,000 draft on a London bank. The remaining $5,000 in her account was withdrawn, but police have not determined its disposition. As an attorney, Miss Tufverson earned $8,000 a year.

Poderjay was described by Helen E. Vogel, violinist now in Cleveland, who came to know him through his attempted business dealings with her late father, as a "male vamp." She said she had little to do with him.

Capt. Ayres said he was pleased with the action of Vienna authorities in charging Poderjay with suspicion of murder.

"Good," he said, "but we haven't ordered an arrest, and we haven't officially heard about any. If sufficient evidence can be obtained Poderjay could be extradited on any one of the following charges: Murder, perjury, larceny, bigamy or forgery."

Authorities determined that Poderjay returned to Miss Tufverson's apartment after he had departed for a Hudson river pier on Dec. 23 with four trunks, one purchased the day before, and six pieces of hand luggage.

Ayres said the Jugo-Slavian returned in great haste and highly nervous, removing two handbags, a smaller bag of the sort used to carry bathing suits and a fourth piece, which may have been the missing attorney's briefcase. He departed in the taxi in which he arrived.

MUSSOLINI ACTS TO SAVE AUSTRIA FROM NAZI RULE

Hitler-Duce Quarrel at Parley Is Revealed.

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, June 22.—Political tension in Austria has been aggravated rather than lessened as a result of the conversations between Chancellor Hitler and Premier Mussolini in Venice last week. Alarm is being felt in Italian government circles over the ability of Chancellor Engelbert Dollfuss to hold on to the Vienna government against renewed Nazi onslaughts.

Fulvio Suvich, Italian undersecretary of foreign affairs, already has had an interview with Dr. Anton Rintelen, the Austrian minister here, and it was reported tonight that Dollfuss himself may shortly make another visit to Italy for an interview with Mussolini at the latter's vacation retreat at Riccione.

The Italians view the immediate outcome in Austria with gravity. They are watching with misgiving the anniversary next month of the date of the suppression of the Nazi party by the Dollfuss government as a possible signal for a renewed outbreak.

Doubt Wisdom of Shooting.

Furthermore, it is reported here that Dollfuss, Vice Chancellor Prince Ernst Rudiger von Starhemberg, and Maj. Emil Fey, minister of public security, now doubt the wisdom of shooting the Socialists out of their model apartment buildings last February. It is said the Austrians feel they only made the situation more complicated and increased the opposition against them.

Meanwhile Italy is doing its best to support its position of strong commitment in favor of Austrian independence, if not in fact chief guarantor of it, by speeding up economic aid for the tiny republic. Minister of Commerce Friedrich Stockinger of Austria is now at Trieste for that purpose. He is studying ways and means to utilize that port for Austrian shipments instead of Hamburg. This is in accordance with commercial agreements made in May.

Mussolini's government appears to realize now that the Nazis have gained strength enormously since last February and that consequently Dollfuss is clinging to the government reins by a mere thread. This fact is said to have emboldened Hitler during the Venice conversations to ask Mussolini to remedy the situation by agreeing to let the Austrian chancellor be pushed out. It was even suggested that Dollfuss would make a good Austrian minister to the Vatican.

Stormy Scene Reported.

The Italian dictator refused to consider Hitler's request. This is said to have created a stormy scene and, according to leaks now occurring here, Hitler was in such high dudgeon both after the first and second conversation that he was about ready to call for his plane and go home.

Both German and Italian circles now intimate that hot language was used at the conference. The official Italian mouthpiece here characterized the conversations as "somewhat lively" at times.

This probably also explains why Hitler appeared so embarrassed and Il Duce in such bad humor last Thursday morning, the day after their first talk, when they watched the troops parade in St. Mark's square.

One event, which has not yet cleared up, is why Suvich and Count Costanzo Ciano, chief of Il Duce's press bureau, gave such a clear intimation that the German leader had promised to put a quietus on the Nazis in Austria at a press conference after the second day's talk. That impression was published all over Europe.

Ticklish Situation Develops.

At any rate, a period of hectic diplomatic activity appears to be opening to try to calm down a fairly critical situation in central Europe from the point of view here. The upshot is that neither Germany nor Italy is in any way closer as a result of the Venice conference. Each nation seems to be in a little more ticklish situation.

U. S. STOPS NAVAL TALK IN LONDON; GLOOM PREVAILS

Note from Washington Disrupts Parley.

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, June 22.—The deepest gloom prevails in the bilateral naval conference circles between the United States and Great Britain today.

The British, who yesterday submitted to the Americans a hard boiled demand for sinking the American battleship fleet and building a number of British small cruisers, airplane carriers and airplanes, were wondering today if they have overshot their mark.

Apparently they had every reason to think so, because the negotiations were stopped temporarily on receipt of instructions from Washington.

The American delegation did not disclose the nature of the note, but it was indicated that as a result of the new directions from the United States there will be no more sessions of the conference "until some time" next week.

Meanwhile, American experts now are trying to unravel the British puzzle and to define what it means. They are sending the results piecemeal to Washington.

New Warships for France.

PARIS, June 22.—(AP)—The "naval rejuvenation" of France advanced a step today when the finance commission of the chamber of deputies approved the speedy building of a sister ship to the Dunkerque, one destroyer and three submarines. Instead of building two first class submarines, as originally planned, it was decided to construct one of the first class and two of the second.

CHURCH STUDIES 'LOSS OF FAITH' IN COLLEGIANS

Debate Why Many Doubt After Four Years.

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Oberlin, O., June 22.—[Special.]—The Congregational church, historical founder of American higher education, today began to scrutinize the somewhat wayward religious course colleges and universities have taken during the past few years.

The question of why many students enter colleges full of Christian faith and come out doubters at the end of four years was raised by pastors at the opening seminar on Christian higher education held in connection with the Congregational-Christian general council in session here during the next six days. This seminar, or study course—one of nine similar courses held for the benefit of delegates—was led by President Irving Maurer of Beloit college, Beloit, Wis.

Take Survey of Presidents.

President Maurer declared his objective to be toward the preservation of higher educational emphasis on Christian living, but a survey of presidents of leading colleges founded by the Congregational church which was presented at the seminar by Dr. Jay E. Stocking of St. Louis showed President Maurer to be in the minority. Dr. Stocking stated that several presidents refused to class their schools as "Christian" while others evaded answer to the inquiry. Dr. Stocking added that presidents claiming Christian status for their institutions went to some length to explain why.

Ensuing debate raised two categories of questions: First, what does it mean for a college to be "Christian?" Second, what's really meant by "higher education?" Under the former Dr. Stocking asked the delegates to determine whether trustees or curriculum, faculty or founders, gave the religious status to a college. Debate at the close of the session was leading toward the conclusion that the religious character of faculty members was chief determining factor.

Shows Four Philosophies.

Tangled skeins of theories about the meaning of higher education were sufficiently unsnarled by Dr. Stocking to show four main but largely conflicting philosophies of higher education now expressed in American universities. The first is that of "aristocratic intellectualism," remote from practical life and dedicated to service research and "conservation of knowledge and increase of systematic knowledge." This was explained as the theory of Dr. Abraham Flexner of the Rockefeller foundation.

Dr. Stocking dismissed "bargain counter" educational institutions where "specialists" in every conceivable occupation from "scientific dishwashing" to "washing machine engineers" are made as being unworthy of higher educational ratings. "Specialization" covers two of the four educational theories. The higher of those two specialization theories of education, he said, has been forced on state universities by voters' "demands that tax supported institutions produce results."

Hits at Aloofness.

The theory under which religious leadership thrives was pointed out as that which emphasizes "functional learning in the field of human values," with "an aim which will spiritualize mankind individually by developing clearer appreciation of those human values which bear upon intimate, living, human contacts. It must value scholarship as highly as the Flexner theory but not hold itself aloof from the world."

The seminar on world peace problems, led by President Albert W. Palmer of Chicago Theological seminary, was confronted with four types of pledges concerning personal participation in future wars. Thirty out of the 111 members of that group signed a pledge to refrain from participation in any kind of a war, civil or international. Sixty-four pledged that they would not cross the nation's frontier to engage in a war, while fourteen accepted a simple non-invasion pledge but reserved the right to defend his own land or another wronged country if invaded. Three reserved the right to exercise independent judgment as to participation when and if war is declared.

UPHOLDS DOCTOR STERILIZING MAN TO SAVE HIS WIFE

St. Paul, Minn., June 22.—(AP)—The state supreme court today declared it not against public policy to perform an operation to sterilize a man whose wife may not have a child without grave hazard to her life.

In declaring this policy the Supreme court upheld the Clay county district court which held Clarence H. Christensen of Moorhead did not have a cause of action against Dr. H. J. Thornby of Moorhead, a licensed physician and surgeon.

Christensen claimed that on Aug. 1, 1931, Dr. Thornby performed a sterilization operation upon him after his wife had experienced great difficulty with birth of her first child and had been advised it would be dangerous to her life to have another.

Christensen charged that in spite of the operation his wife bore another child. He asked recovery of $5,000 from the defendant.

Dr. Thornby, who was a member of the St. Anagar hospital medical staff and prominent in Clay county medical circles, died last Sunday, at his Moorhead, Minn., home.

ROLLING MILLS OFFICIAL KILLS WIFE AND SELF

Two Others in Family Also Shot.

Middletown, O., June 22.—[Special.]—Sidney R. Rectanus, 46, vice president of the American Rolling Mills company here, today shot and killed his wife, Alma, 42, wounded two other members of his family, and then killed himself.

The two members of his family wounded are his daughter, Shirley, 13, and his mother-in-law, Mrs. Elesa Rathman, 76. Both were taken to a hospital here. The daughter was shot in her right side and Mrs. Rathman in the neck. Mrs. Rathman's condition is said to be serious.

Two Flee From House.

The coroner's investigators attributed Rectanus' act to temporary insanity from some unknown cause.

Two other children who were home at the time fled from the house, but not until after they had been struck by the butt end of a revolver. A daughter, Jane, 18, and a son, Daniel, 16, described the slaying.

The two older children said they heard quarreling in their parents' bedroom. After they heard a shot they ran to the bedroom to find their mother shot through the heart. Their father had three pistols beside him. He jumped up and struck them as they fled in terror.

Shoots Mother-in-Law.

Rectanus then went to the room of his mother-in-law, they said, and shot her and then to another room where Shirley was sleeping and shot her. Returning to his own bedroom he took his own life.

Rectanus has been a member of the engineering staff of the rolling mills company since 1900. He resigned as vice president in charge of operations on May 16, last, but still retained a vice presidency in the company.

AMBUSH WORKER IN STREET; LABOR TROUBLE BLAMED

Labor trouble was blamed by police yesterday for the shooting early in the day of James Pinc, 32 years old, 5143 South Fairfield avenue, a pressman employed by the United Autographic Registry company, 5000 South California avenue. He was wounded in the back by an assailant who waited in ambush at 51st street and California avenue. The bullet lodged near his spine.

"I am satisfied Pinc was shot for being ringleader in opposing installation of complete union labor in the plant," declared Sergt. Joseph Morrison. "The union has been trying for some time to make it a union ship, while Pinc has been an active dissenter to this plan."

At the Southtown hospital Pinc's condition was said to be serious.

TWO HELD AS ROBBERS.

Michael Whalen, 20 years old, 11185 Fairfield avenue, and Edward Quinn, 24, of 8240 Evans avenue, were held to the grand jury yesterday on two charges of robbery each.

FILTHY FILMS BOYCOTT URGED BY PROTESTANTS

Join Catholic Church in Nation-Wide Crusade.

New York, June 22.—(AP)—A boycott of objectionable films was urged today by the Federal Council of Churches in America at the same time Will H. Hays, motion picture "czar," announced that the industry had taken steps "to amend its system of self-regulation."

In behalf of the motion picture producers and distributors of America Hays said the action was taken to strengthen arrangements for "the right kind of screen entertainment."

The executive committee of the Federal Council of Churches urged members of 25 Protestant denominations of the United States and Canada to remain away from objectionable films.

Drastic Action Proposed.

Asserting that protests of parents, churches, schools, women's organizations, and other groups interested in safeguarding youth had been "treated with scant respect," the committee declared that the time had come for more drastic action.

It expressed approval of the "aggressive position" taken by leaders of the Catholic church toward objectionable films, and of a similar stand by the central conference of American rabbis at a recent meeting.

Block booking and blind buying were condemned by the committee, and it was urged that churches "exert continued pressure on the industry and at Washington" to secure abolition of enforced block booking.

Sees Little Improvement.

"The Federal Council of Churches can see as yet little evidence of intention by the producers of motion pictures to improve the moral quality of films," said the committee's statement.

"While there has been marked advance in other respects, the indecencies, false ideals of life, incitement to drinking, gambling, and sensuality, and the cynical attitude toward the sanctities of life remain unchanged."

The committee recommended that members of Protestant churches, their families, and citizens generally cooperate with the objectives of the legion of decency by refusing to patronize objectionable films.

The third Sunday in October has been set aside by the council as a time when all Protestant pastors are urged to present the motion picture problem to their congregations and to unite all church organizations, including young people's societies, in the movement.

10,000 AT OTTAWA ATTEND CENTENNIAL OF NORSE COLONY

Ottawa, Ill., June 22.—(AP)—Amid hearty handclasps and happy reunions ten thousand persons trekked into town from all parts of the country to celebrate the centennial of the founding of the first Norwegian settlement in the United States.

From town and prairie the legions came all day for a gathering of scattered clans. Friends and relatives grouped in cliques and renewed acquaintances disrupted for years.

Scores made pilgrimages to the tiny hamlet of Norway, 15 miles away, where sturdy Cleng Peerson and 51 countrymen established the first permanent Norwegian community one hundred years ago.

Informality was the order of this, the first of the three days devoted to observance of the anniversary. Families, scores of them from Minnesota and the Dakotas, several hundred from Illinois, others from all the directions, reunited under gleeful circumstances.

Tomorrow an extensive program is planned. Dignitaries from the homeland, from Washington, from the state capital, and the leaders in Scandinavian-American circles will take their places in the ceremonies.

Fourth Suspect Seized in Three Months Old Holdup

Joseph Restivo, 18 years old, suspected of being one of four bandits who robbed Mr. and Mrs. Price Allison, 2426 Adams street, of $14 and their automobile March 28, was captured yesterday at his home, 2904 Polk street. Policeman Edward Collins, who had been watching the home since the day of the robbery, made the capture. Restivo's three alleged companions have already been caught and convicted.

MARION DAVIES' PORTRAIT STIRS ROW IN VENICE

U. S. Collection Removed from Art Exhibit.

New York, June 22.—[Special.]—The Whitney Museum of American Art has withdrawn the entire American exhibit at the current Venice biennial exhibition, it was announced today, because a portrait of Marion Davies, the motion picture actress, was included in the exhibit without authorization from the museum. The museum had been invited to have complete charge of the American exhibit.

The American collection was withdrawn on the order of Mrs. Julianna Force, director of the Whitney museum, after the authorities had refused to withdraw the painting of Miss Davies. Mrs. Force is in Venice.

Appeared Without Permission.

The whole basis of the museum's objections to the portrait of the film actress, according to C. A. Glassgold, publicity manager for the museum, is that it was included in the American exhibit without the permission of the museum.

When the museum first heard that the portrait had been included a formal protest was made, Mr. Glassgold said. At the same time the museum submitted detailed plans as to how it wanted the American exhibit arranged.

There was no action from the authorities on the protest and then a formal demand was made that the portrait of Miss Davies be withdrawn. When this was not done Miss Force ordered the entire American exhibit withdrawn. Glassgold said that he understood that the order was carried out yesterday or today.

[Dispatches from Venice last night said that the portrait of Miss Davies remained in the biennial art exhibition despite the threat that its presence would mean withdrawal of the whole American exhibit.]

Portrait by Polish Artist.

The portrait of the motion picture actress is by Tade Styka, a Polish artist, who divides his time between this country and Europe. He has a studio in Manhattan but now is in Europe. Styka recently completed a portrait of Mrs. James Roosevelt, the President's mother. He once was a court painter to the Russian czar and has developed a splashy theatrical technique in women's portraits.

"Naturally, the Whitney museum could not sponsor the hanging of Miss Davies' portrait in the exhibit because it is not painted by an American artist," Glassford commented.

The museum occupies three remodeled houses behind a single facade at 10 West 8th street. It was founded and is maintained by Mrs. Gertrude Vanderbilt Whitney as an outgrowth of the old Whitney Studio club, which she established in 1914.

Miss Davies in London.

LONDON, June 22.—(AP)—Marion Davies was seeing the sights of London today, unaware that her portrait was the center of a furors in art circles at Venice.

A spokesman for the party of W. R. Hearst, an American publisher, with which she is touring Europe, said that Miss Davies had heard nothing of the Venice controversy and "naturally couldn't say anything."

POST WILL SEEK NEW ALTITUDE MARK OVER FAIR

World Solo Hero May Take Off on July 1.

Wiley Post, only man to fly alone around the world, will attempt to set a new altitude record directly over the grounds of A Century of Progress Exposition early next month. The tentative date is July 1, subject to tests now being made and favorable weather condition.

WILEY POST.

Officials of the Fair made the announcement yesterday that Post will try to reach the stratosphere and a height of 60,000 feet in a Lockheed-Vega plane, which will be equipped with all the latest devices for altitude flying. The present official record is 44,890 feet, set by the Italian army flyer, Renato Donati, in Rome on April 11.

Make Final Plans.

Final plans for Post's flight are now being made at Akron, O., where the flyer is especially concerned in the durability of a rubber suit and helmet, designed to withstand the tremendous pressure at the high altitude he will seek.

Post will take off from Curtiss-Reynolds airport and will fly over the Fair grounds before heading for the stratosphere. Plans are for a second plane carrying a short wave radio broadcasting outfit to accompany him to an altitude of about 35,000 feet and the broadcast from this ship will be carried to the theaters on the Fair grounds where visitors can watch the flight and hear its details at the same time.

Special Suit Developed.

In a test flight at Akron recently, the suit Post will wear exploded when it was put to a severe altitude test, but the engineers designing it believe they will have remedied its defects within the next few days.

Post, it was said, is planning to enter a long distance air race and hopes to gain an advantage by flying in the stratosphere where it is possible to travel at great speed.

Thursday's attendance was 78,632, which set a record for the 1934 season, save for the tremendous crowd of 470,000 children who swamped the grounds on May 31.

The midnight attendance figure was 50,526.

Allen King Returns.

Allen King, the animal trainer who works 27 lions and 9 tigers in the Standard Oil company's Live Power exhibit at 33d street, was on hand yesterday for the first time since his right arm was bitten by one of the lions ten days ago.

King was forced into a hospital a few days after the bite and since then his animals have not been worked in public performances.

Still carrying his arm in bandages, King yesterday stood in one of the entrances to the big cage and directed his chief assistant, William Bernardi, who put the cats through their paces before a crowd which packed the stands. The head trainer's wound will probably be healed sufficiently to permit him to return to the act Monday. Meanwhile he will be on hand at every performance to aid Bernardi.

World's Fair Notes

The top of the colonades which form the east wall of Soldiers' field supplied an ideal spot for some enthusiastic Fair visitors to kibitz without paying any entrance fee. Several were seen there yesterday.

Hollywood at the Fair will be officially opened tonight with a long distance telephone greeting from Mae West at her California home.

The Shakespeare house in Merrie England, a replica of the poet's home in Stratford on Avon, will be formally opened tonight at 8 o'clock. Leon Medina is manager.

The arrival from Hollywood yesterday of Herr Peter Heemskerk, master baker, and two assistants made possible the opening of the Wavel Oven, an open hearth oven, in the center of the Dutch Village. Herr Heemskerk also gave a demonstration of how "pofferpjeskraan," Dutch bread cake, is made in the Netherlands.

More than 60 per cent of the 1,600 drivers who have taken the safe driving test at the Hupmobile exhibit make the serious mistake of killing the motor in an emergency. Another widespread error is the omission of hand signals. The average rating of drivers who have taken the test is 80 per cent, according to Lyle Fischer in charge.

Three hundred and fifty members of the Moslem temple of Detroit paraded from the 14th street court of honor to the Ford gardens yesterday to take part in the thirteenth concert of the Detroit Symphony orchestra. Harry Philip, leader of the Shriner's band, lead the symphony orchestra in the "Moslem Temple march," written by Victor Kolar, conductor of that organization. Mr. Kolar is a member of the Detroit lodge.

About 480 Ford dealers from the Chicago branch district were guests of the Ford company at the Fair yesterday. W. C. Cowling, director of sales, spoke to the dealers. At 3 p. m. today the Spanish village will inaugurate a fiesta which it will make a daily event. Almost 200 entertainers, singers, dancers, and musicians will perform under direction of Paul Asn.

T. K. Kah, Chinese consul, presided at the formal opening of the Chinese Pavilion last night. C. L. Chang, in charge of the exhibit, assisted in the ceremony and then turned the building over to C. W. Fitch, who formally received it in behalf of A Century of Progress.

AUTOS SPEEDING FROM LOUISIANA TO WORLD'S FAIR

Vacations Being Changed to Include Chicago.

BY HAL FOUST.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New Orleans, La., June 22.—[Special.]—The Motor League of Louisiana reported this afternoon that tourist trafic to the 1934 World's Fair from hereabouts is exceeding last year's volume of travel. It is the same story that was found in Memphis, Tenn., Vicksburg, Miss., and other southern cities on the Tribune roadster's jaunt through Dixie as A Century of Progress official car.

An Extended Vacation.

"Almost every one taking an extended vacation tour," said Roger De Roode, manager of the club, "is including Chicago in the itinerary. The number north just to see the Exposition is noticeably greater than last year.

"Some of the club members are changing their original vacation plans so as to visit the Fair. This spring many of us didn't realize that the Exposition has been enlarged, renovated, and improved from last year. We really need more literature about the 1934 Fair."

"Have you heard any complaints from your members who have visited the Fair?" Mr. De Roode was asked by George Barton of the Chicago Motor club, who is traveling in the Tribune roadster as a representative of the Fair administration.

Deliberately Break Rules.

"Quite the contrary," he replied. "And this applies to hotels, trafic, and prices in Chicago as well as to the Exposition. One friend of mine last year tested the temperament of your policemen by deliberately breaking rules with pretended ignorance. He reported the police most courteous, which means a lot to a city."

ARREST CHINESE IN KNIFE ATTACK ON FAIR SPEAKER

Tom Moy, 27 years old, laundryman of 1422 Morse avenue, was arrested yesterday and charged with attack with a deadly weapon after he tried to slash the hands of Albert Lau, 3040 Washington boulevard, lecturer of the Llama temple at A Century of Progress.

According to Lau, Moy visited the temple Thursday and made himself obnoxious by hooting and hissing. Yesterday afternoon he again entered the building, with a cigaret in his mouth. Lau tried to make him understand the temple was no place for smoking.

To this Moy said "America is a free country and a Chinaman can do as he pleases," according to Lau, whereupon Lau had him put out of the building.

Police say Moy's penknife injured Lau's hand in the ensuing scuffle.

DIAMOND JUBILEE PROGRAM READY FOR METHODISTS

The program for the Methodist church diamond jubilee camp meeting, which opens a 16 day session on July 1 in Des Plaines, was announced yesterday by the Rev. Morgan Williams of Oak Park, chairman. Methodists of Chicagoland will review 75 years of growth and progress.

Bishop Ernest Lynn Waldorf of the Chicago area will be among the speakers on opening day and Bishop Francis J. McConnell of New York will close the meeting. Other high church officials who will speak include Bishop Emeritus William Frasier McDowell of Washington, D. C.; Bishop Edgar Blake of the Detroit area, July 4; Bishop J. Ralph Magee of St. Paul, July 7; and Bishop Charles L. Mead of Kansas City.

Among topics probably to be discussed are temperance, corruption in public office, smutty movies, and the relation of followers of the church to the New Deal.

CRANE KILLS WORKMAN.

Robert Burdin, colored, 76 years old, was killed yesterday by a loading crane while employed in the yards of the Marine Coal company, 441 North Water street.

Day By Day Story of the Experimental Farm

Salvaging Feed

BY FRANK RIDGWAY.

HARVESTERS at The Tribune Experimental Farm at Yorkville and the auxiliary farm near Wheaton are raking and scraping the fields to get every sprig of vegetation they can find to store for fall and winter feed.

Men at the experimental farm have just completed harvesting the first cutting of alfalfa. The yield of only 26 tons on about sixty-six acres was disappointing. Despite this low yield of approximately 1-3 of a ton to the acre, alfalfa is being highly praised by Clarence Thurow, manager of the farm.

"Our alfalfa fields have pulled through this severe drouth and are giving us a little feed, while none of our timothy is worth cutting and has furnished little grazing for our steers," said Clarence. "I do not know what we would do for feed for our live stock this year if we were not growing alfalfa and other legumes."

Readers who have saved the colored topographic map of the experimental farm which appeared in THE TRIBUNE on April 8 this year may credit the 13 acre field of alfalfa north of the Fox river with 9 tons of hay harvested from the first cutting. Approximately half of this alfalfa is young, and this first cutting was light. The thirty-three acre alfalfa field immediately south of the cattle feeding yards, indicated on the map, yielded only 12 tons. The fifteen acre strip along the east side of the farm south of the Fox river produced only 5 tons.

At the auxiliary farm men had to fight against odds to save the alfalfa crop. By disregarding holidays and covering the stack with a tarpaulin to protect the hay against a wind and rain storm, the crop on twenty acres was saved. It averaged about ½ ton to the acre. This is the third year the field has been cut and, considering the severe dry weather, the yield is satisfactory.

Clarence is still hopeful that some of the 197 acres of oats on the experimental farm can be harvested. Although most of the oat crop has been so severely stunted by drouth, in some fields the heads are developing fairly satisfactorily and may produce a little grain that will be valuable feed for the live stock.

A shower of rain is about all that is needed to fill the heads to the point where they may be cut with a mower and bunched and later threshed. If this can be done the grain will be saved and the straw kept for feed and bedding.

Regardless of the amount of oats cut the experimental farm, like other farms throughout the central west grain and live stock area, will be short of bedding material. Clarence is faced with the problem of finding bedding material that can be used as a substitute for straw. He still has a fair prospect for a corn crop and may be forced to shred some of the corn stalks and use them for bedding in the horse and cattle barns. Shredded corn stalks may be used extensively on the farm for bedding even if some of the oats can be cut, because the straw is a valuable roughage. It is often fed to live stock, especially where feed is as scarce as it will be this coming winter.

If the dry weather continues to injure the field crops the men on the farm may go into the timber this fall and gather at least enough leaves to furnish winter bedding for the hog houses. It would be impractical to gather enough leaves for use in bedding horses.

SATURDAY NEWS OF NEW BOOKS

Five Countries in Background of Books Today

Week Memorable One in Field of Novels.

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

WITH five different countries as background and from the pens of established writers of four nationalities come the novels which make the week an unusually memorable one in fiction.

Farthest away, China is the setting of "River Supreme," by Alice Tisdale Hobart [Bobbs-Merrill], and "Man's Fate," by Andre Malraux [Smith-Haas].

Mrs. Hobart's exciting tale of a Yankee boat captain and his attempted conquest of the upper Yangtze is different from her "Oil for the Lamps of China" in style and in the leisurely penetration of a national psychology. But they are alike in the skilled record of the impact of American ideas against the great Chinese wall of indifference. Readers who remember "Pidgin Cargo," published in 1929, will recognize "River Supreme" as the same book rescued from an undeserved neglect.

A Story of Red Revolution.

When "Man's Fate" was awarded the famous Goncourt prize for 1933 it received such a claque as few novels have received. The international revolutionists seized it and declared it to be the greatest of all modern novels of revolution, and even admitted it a work of art surpassing its power of propaganda. It is a day by day, almost hour by hour, story of the 1927 communist uprising in China. To this reader it seems no more propaganda for communism than "Crime and Punishment" is propaganda for crime.

It is a meticulous observation and recital of events, not a presentation of doctrine. With the Frenchman's cold, clear eye, the quickening of men by their political obsessions is analyzed. Passion for death, passion for life driving them into deeds which are outside their nature. As far as national psychology is concerned, the characters in "Man's Fate" are little more Chinese than they are Russian or French or German. . . . The revolution takes place in China geographically but not psychologically. It is translated by Haakon M. Chevalier.

German Youth Under Hitler.

Another political upheaval gives the background and the theme of I. A. R. Wylie's "To the Vanquished" [Doubleday-Doran]. Miss Wylie—an Englishwoman—wrote some years ago a novel of the immediate pre-war Germany, "Before Morning," that won her international kudos. Now she writes of other German youth under the Hitler régime as movingly. There is high courage in little Franzle Roth.

From France and from Norway [in translation] come two novels of psychological turmoil, "Duel," by Ronald Fangen [Viking], translated by Paula Wiking, and "The House in the Hills," by Simonne Ratel [Macmillan], translated by Eric Sutton.

"Duel," by Ronald Fangen, is a highly complicated and involved exposition of the hatred within the friendship of two middle aged men— one a great, internationally famous lawyer, the other an obscure country doctor. Their friendship had begun in their school days when a conspicuous championship of the youth who was to become a doctor by the nascent lawyer formed an alliance which was to last until death released both of them from their chafing bonds.

The lawyer, with every fine quality of mind and spirit, had twice literally saved his friend's life, he had suffered insult at his friend's hands . . . only on his own deathbed to realize what he had never before admitted to himself, that it gave him satisfaction to play the part of providence.

The grown children of the two men come into it, the wives [and the doctor's wife is the realest character in the book], and it's all very tangled psychologically, and probably if Sigrid Undset had not recommended it so superlatively I should never have read beyond the second chapter. But I did—every one of 379 pages—and you probably will, too.

Wins French Award.

"The House in the Hills," by Simonne Ratel, won the French award—the Prix Interalliee for 1932—but is just being brought out in America. It is the story of conflicting love and duty, and of supreme maternal devotion. Its heroine is the wife of a writer of scientific books who married without love.

Her lustful and selfish husband repelled her, and only with the birth of her son did she feel that life offered her more than dutiful torture. Her husband's hatred of the child, his no greater affection for the daughter that followed, and his distaste for a young niece whom fate left on their doorstep made of her life two separate existences, a blissful one as mother, a bitter one as wife.

The near-tragic solution of the tangle gives the climax to a book which is a highly subtle delineation of character. But there is one thing about the book which I can't help gagging over a little. "My dearest, my little Lump of Sugar" the young son writes his mother and "My darling and best" the baby daughter. DO children talk and write like that? I dunno, being spinsterish. The children sound pretty "whimsyish" and I thought that there had been a closed season on "whimsy" ever since A. A. Milne bagged the article so completely.

Nice Story of Nice Things.

Not a problem, nothing to make even one dent in the gray matter, is in the pages of Alice Grant Rosman's "Somebody Must" [Minton-Balch]. Just a nice story of a nice girl and a nice little boy and a nice dog and a nice house on a nice river [the Thames] in Alice Grant Rosman's waranted true blue ink.

Somebody once said that Miss Rosman could always be counted upon to write the perfect present for a convalescent . . . with enough happiness to make life seem worth recovering for, and not enough unhappiness to send the temperature up a hundredth of a degree. She never fails her public. And maybe that's why she never fails to make the best seller lists. Her books aren't great. They don't pretend to be. But they're deliciously pleasant, and NICE without being in the slightest degree stodgy.

In "Somebody Must" nobody could help liking Kay, and as for Pell, aged six or so, there's no whimsy-whamsy about him.

Vienna Comes to Life Again in This Story

"Gentleman of Vienna," by Count Wilczek [Reynal & Hitchcock], is one of those family books that aged heroes write for their descendants [usually their grandchildren] and which their admiring children finally permit to be published at the insistence of eager friends. Too many books of that sort have withered on the vine of popularity.

"Gentleman of Vienna" is the exceptional one that keeps the business of such reminiscing going. Not to have shared it with the world would have been the world's loss. Not that there is anything supreme either in its disclosures or in the manner of recording events, but there is about it the truth of a period.

Count Wilczek lived in the great days of a great and subtle culture [he died in 1922 at the age of 85] and he has distilled in the pages of this book intended for his grandchildren, and not for you and me, the most delicate essence of that culture. What it meant to be a gentleman of Vienna is in itself historically important and deliciously entertaining.

Count Wilczek did all of the things that the son of a great family should do . . . he hunted with a crown prince, he went on polar trips, he joined the army and fought [as a private in the Seven Weeks' war against Prussia], he spent thirty years restoring the old family castle of Kreuzenstein, he knew Franz Liszt and Johann Strauss and Alexandre Dumas and all of the proper royal and social heroes and heroines of his day. His was what they used to call "a charmed life," and, if only as archæology, the story of that life has its charms for us.

Edith Olivier Enters Field of Biography

Alexander Cruden Subject of Her New Work.

BY FRANK SWINNERTON.

LONDON. — [Special Correspondence.]—Miss Edith Olivier, whose first very short novel, perhaps slightly inspired by the work of Miss Susan Townsend Warner, "The Love-Child" [Secker], was one of the most charming of modern fantasies, and whose later tales have all had a little odd attractiveness which separated them from the ordinary, has turned to the writing of biography.

Her subject is Alexander Cruden, whose Concordance of the Bible is one of the most celebrated of all works of reference. Apparently Cruden was an eccentric, and since one has only to have been an eccentric to attract the modern school of biographers, a book about him was inevitable and is a sign of the times.

Miss Olivier's fastidiousness is in the right tone for such biography, and the book ought to be noteworthy [Faber].

I am reminded that Hesketh Pearson, who recently published a really excellent Life of Sydney Smith, is on the point of following this with a new biography of William Hazlitt. This is sure to be an interesting and amusing book, although it comes rather soon after Mr. Howe's standard biography. And as the new great Centenary Edition of Hazlitt's Works is to be completed in a month's time, Mr. Pearson will be punctual.

His book will be published by Hamish Hamilton, one of the aviating publishers of England. Mr. Hamilton shares a little monoplane with David Garnett, and flies to the homes of his authors with the greatest coolness, although his engine has a habit of stalling at difficult moments.

An interesting feat has been performed by a Yorkshire bookseller, who some years ago formed a very high opinion of the novels of Constance Holme. The bookseller is Henry Walker of Leeds; and he has sold more copies of Mrs. Holme's novels than any other person in the world. More than this, he has infected other people with his enthusiasm, and for the last year or two the Oxford Press has been including the works of this novelist of the English countryside in its series of The World's Classics.

They are gradually becoming better and better known, have begun to compete with the novels of Mary Webb in that remarkable continuous sale which shows that they are loved and reread, and in time will settle down into their place among the minor glories of modern English literature.

Mrs. Holme has never been boomed [except by Henry Walker of Leeds], and she has never had a great number of literary friends [although I believe she is related to Ralph Straus, the novelist and reviewer]; so that her success has been won upon sterling merit, and is an excellent sign of popular taste.

Book About Shakespeare Uses Words of His Day

Every word in her novel, "Two Loves I Have, the Romance of William Shakespeare" [Lippincott], is in the language spoken in Queen Elizabeth's days, says Clara Longworth de Chambrun. The prose is so simple and direct, however, so free from any hint of dialect, that readers are not bludgeoned by the author's etymological accuracy.

Sports Fiction.

"The Sporting Gesture," by Thomas L. Stix [Appleton-Century], gives the world the first anthology of fiction and fact from famous pens glorifying the sporting gesture in football, boxing, baseball, tennis, fishing, horse racing, and the other exhibitions of human prowess in sport.

Among the New Books

FICTION.

Once a Wilderness, by Arthur Pound [Reynal & Hitchcock], pictures the life of Capt. Mark, who rode into Michigan in a covered wagon and lived to whirl about his land in an automobile.

Black August, by Dennis Wheatley [Dutton], is a thrilling story of a red revolution in England several years hence.

Until I Close My Eyes, by Allen R. Taft [Ballou], shows the problems of marriage between Jew and gentile.

We Sail Tomorrow, by Frederick Hazlitt Brennan [Longmans], describes the adventures of a young lieutenant sentenced to an antiquated destroyer on the Pacific.

NON-FICTION.

Boy and Girl Tramps of America, by Thomas Minehan [Farrar & Rinehart], shows how the depression has affected American youth.

British Painting, by C. H. Collins Baker [Hale, Cushman & Flint], is a survey of painting of Great Britain from the earliest times to the end of the 19th century.

How Odd of God, by Lewis Browne [Macmillan], is a philosophy of Jewish history and an analysis of Jewish life.

ABOUT PEOPLE

The Smith of Smiths, by Hesketh Pearson [Harpers], is the biography of Sydney Smith, outstanding literary man of the early 19th century.

A Child Went Forth, by Helen MacKnight Doyle, M. D. [Gotham], is the story of a woman's life in America from the seventies to the present.

POETRY

Dæmon in the Rock, by Edwin Richardson Frost [Putnam], contains the first work of a young poet.

A Harvest of Hebrew Verse, translated by Harry Y. Fein [Bruce Humphries], is a collection of outstanding poems in Hebrew literature.

DRAMA

The Shining Hour, by Keith Winter [Doubleday-Doran], reached us simultaneously on the stage and in book form.

Master of the Revels, by Don Marquis [Doubleday-Doran], is a satirical play about Henry VIII.

Enthralling Story of African Adventure Has Misleading Title

Probably the most misleading title of the spring crop of books is "No One to Blame," by Margaret Carson Hubbard [Minton-Balch]. It's not a tale of sex or sorrow but one of the most enthralling narratives of real African adventure of several seasons. It's the story of a young American couple with two children, one of whom was born in Africa, who go to the Dark Continent to make a fortune capturing animals for zoos and filming them.

If you love animals you'll love this book. Seldom does one get such alluring glimpses into the domestic life and personal habits and likes and dislikes of little known four-footed jungle inhabitants, usually thought of as wild and untamable, but of whom the author made pets by her kindness and affection.

It's an inspiring story of pluck, perseverance and level-headedness in the face of odds that would have bowled over most of our intrepid explorers. Their movie man was a flop [every picture was ruined], their finances froze up, their food supply ran out and they failed to capture the animals for which they hoped.

But they had a glorious time fighting against desperate odds for three years in Northern Rhodesia and Portuguese East Africa, and were loved by both their animals and their native boys.

Book About Stratosphere Wins Alluring Adjectives

"Exploring the Upper Atmosphere," by Dorothy M. Fisk [Oxford], comes to us from England labeled apparently by every one as "fascinating," "entertaining," "romantic" and other alluring adjectives seldom applied to a book of popular scientific exposition. It is the first book in any language about the stratosphere.

LAUNCH INQUIRY AFTER BUILDING CRASH HURTS 7

Children Are Trapped in Vacant Structure.

An investigation by city and county officials was under way last evening in an effort to fix the blame for the collapse yesterday of an old two story house at 2616 Luther street which injured seven children, who were trapped inside.

Six of the children were still in St. Anthony's hospital last night. Three of them were in serious condition.

The building, vacant six months, has been used by neighborhood children as a playhouse. Built of wood 40 years ago, another story of brick was added to it later. During the last week, police said, children had been carrying wood out of the building for kindling. The side walls had been removed from the lower part, leaving the heavy upper structure of brick resting on the joists.

Twenty Children Inside Building.

About twenty children were in the structure when it started to give way. Edward Dutkowski, 18 years old, 2646 West 24th street, and Joseph Marshall, 17 years old, 2610 West 25th street, were standing in front of the building as it began to sway.

The two shouted a warning and those inside started to run for safety. Before they could all leave the old structure buckled and fell. Dutkowski and Marshall helped to extricate four of the children. Firemen cleared away the wreckage to rescue the other three.

Those most seriously injured are Helen Mikos, 9 years old, 2601 West 24th place; Vincent Nemecek, 16 years old, 2647 West 24th street; and Fred Gottfried, 16 years old, 2628 West 24th street.

The others injured are George Wieczorek, 10 years old, 2600 West 24th street; Stanley Brozowy, 11 years old, 2638 Luther street; Stanley Piechowski, 12 years old, 2601 West 24th street; and Anthony Antoniak, 14 years old, 2648 Luther street. Young Antoniak was treated at the hospital for lacerations and bruises and sent home.

Warned City, Says Neighbor.

Police Captain John Stege and Fire Attorney Thomas J. Sheehan began an investigation, along with Deputy Coroner Stephen Kolanowski and building experts. Joseph Czerniewski, the owner of the building at 2612 Luther street, next to the wrecked structure, said he had notified the police and building department that the building was unsafe.

John Larkin, inspector in the building department, revealed that on May 22 a letter had been sent to the Albert Wachowski Loan and Savings company, 3030 Cermak road, owner of the building, notifying the company to repair the building or tear it down.

Stanley Wachowski, an official of the company, said yesterday that his company acquired ownership of the building about six months ago when a mortgage had been foreclosed. He said the first notice the company received was on Thursday. He said he had made weekly inspections of the premises, but that children had carried away the frame supports so fast that he did not realize the building was in such a dangerous condition.

LAST OF KLUTAS GANG IS CAUGHT IN KANSAS CITY

Edward Durow, more generally known as Eddie Wagner or Eddie Bell, said by authorities to be the last member of the "Handsome Jack" Klutas gang of kidnapers to remain at large, was captured in Kansas City yesterday, according to word received here by State's Attorney Courtney.

Durow, when seized in a Kansas City hotel by a squad of Mr. Courtney's detectives, had in his pocket $400, believed to be part of the ransom money paid by James Hackett, wealthy Blue Island gambler. Frank Souder and Gale Swolley, other members of the gang, are now serving penitentiary sentences for the crime. Klutas was slain by police in Bellwood.

Assistant State's Attorney Mal Coghlan said Durow had agreed to waive extradition and stand trial here for the Hackett kidnaping. Julius Augustus [Babe] Jones, the member of the gang whose testimony helped to convict Swolley and Souder, is expected to testify.

Two members, Edward Nolan and Edward Nicholsen, were shot to death recently in Joliet. Another, Edward La Rue, is serving a sentence in Leavenworth penitentiary on charges of violating the Dyer act.

LEAVE TO RETURN MAN CONFESSING DENTIST'S DEATH

Harrisburg, Ill., June 22.—[Special.]—Sheriffs Eugene Choisser of Saline county and Hallie Crunk of Gallatin county left today for New Orleans, La., to return Harold St. Clair, alias Lee Armstrong, 30 year old ex-convict who is wanted here for the slaying of Dr. Homer L. Meyer, 55 years old, wealthy dentist and land owner of Eldorado, who was found shot to death on his farm Monday morning.

Considerable mystery was thrown about the case when the prisoner informed the New Orleans authorities that he "may go to the electric chair, but the reason for slaying Dr. Meyer will go also." It was believed at the time of the slaying that the motive for the crime was robbery. The dentist's office had been ransacked and valuables removed.

OPEN OAK PARK CONVENTION OF VETERANS OF '98

United Spanish War veterans met in Oak Park yesterday for a three day encampment. The main convention business is consideration of the present U. S. military policies and a program of caring for disabled veterans. Judge Leon McCord of Birmingham, Ala., national commander, will deliver the main address tonight.

SUSPECT IS SEIZED IN EXTORTION PLOT AGAINST RICH IOWAN

Omaha, Neb., June 22.—[Special.]—Attempts to extort $6,000 from Earl E. May, wealthy seed man and Shenandoah, Ia., merchant, resulted in the arrest last night of a man believed to be the would-be extortionist. Lyle Erwin, 42 years old, of Omaha, the man under arrest, was captured on a highway near Council Bluffs, Ia., at the place the extortion letters designated for delivery of the money.

Erwin denied he knew anything of the extortion attempt and said he was a hitchhiker waiting for a ride.

May had received three letters demanding money on the threat that his home would be bombed. After receiving the second letter he inserted an advertisment in a paper saying he was ready to pay. He was directed to drive along the highway and to stop when he neared a signal flare.

He did as directed last Tuesday but found no signal flare. Acting on a third letter Joseph Burke, Iowa state May, drove along the route Thursday night with two other agents concealed on the floor of the car. When they reached the signal flare they found instructions to leave the money on a stump across the road. They left a dummy package and Erwin was seized when he appeared to take it. Erwin will face federal prosecution under the "Lindbergh law."

COURT DECLARES SINGER HEIRESS SOUND OF MIND

Admits Mrs. Pratt's Will to Probate.

New York, June 22.—[Special.]—Surrogate James A. Foley today admitted to probate the will of Mrs. Florence Adelaide Pratt, eccentric Singer Sewing Machine heiress.

Mrs. Pratt's sister, Mrs. Margaret A. Alexander of London, who was disinherited, had contested the will on the ground that Mrs. Pratt was of unsound mind.

"Mrs. Pratt's keenness of mind," the surrogate declared, "the retention of her memory, and her judgment in business were worthy of a man of affairs in the prime of his life rather than of a woman in illness and old age."

Letters in Evidence.

The strongest pieces of evidence that convinced the surrogate of her mental soundness were some 350 letters in her own handwriting which were introduced in evidence.

"In all my experience," Foley said, "I never have seen keener letters. They show that this woman had a thorough grasph of foreign and international exchange, that she knew how to invest her funds and how to maintain large bank balances.

"Her business ability enabled her not only to conserve the fortune which she had inherited from her father and mother and which amounted to $500,000, but to build it up tenfold."

Discusses Behavior.

The surrogate discussed Mrs. Pratt's idiosyncrasies to which witnesses testified during the contest.

He mentioned her alleged cruelty to her maids, her "mania on the subject of sex," and other peculiarities, and said: "Analyzing this testimony, I see nothing to indicate that Mrs. Pratt was a lunatic, a paranoiac, an insane person, or even a person incompetent to make a will."

Mrs. Pratt, the daughter of Isaac Singer, sewing machine manufacturer, died at the Ritz hotel in London Oct. 20, 1932, at the age 76.

Divides Up Property.

She divided her property into 28 parts, leaving most of it to friends, tradespeople, shop assistants, and James Stockley, a former Scotland Yard inspector, her "beau" the last year of her life.

To her two nephews—Hugh S. Stafford and his brother, Widdrington, both of London—she bequeathed one twenty-eighth each; to Mrs. Ethel Snagge of Kent, England, her niece, three shares; to Madie Woods of San Francisco, a friend, three shares; to Mrs. Richard Sargent of San Francisco, a friend, three shares; to Mlle. Clare-Tavenor, a saleswoman in the Paris fashion establishment of Redfern, Ltd., four shares; to Mme. Paul Escoffier of Paris, a corsetiere, four shares; to Mlle. Pansy Muller-Weill, also a Paris business woman, one share; to Ritay Johnson, San Diego, Cal., a cousin, four shares in trust.

Other bequests were to Stockley, two shares; to Mrs. W. Marriott of London, Mr. Stockley's secretary, two shares.

COMMITTEE SET UP IN CAMPAIGN ON AUTO DEATHS

Motor Club Picks 10 Civic Leaders to Study Laws.

The Chicago Motor club appointed yesterday ten civic and public officials to a committee on better enforcement of motor vehicle laws. This group will seek to reduce automobile fatalities in Cook county.

The club, which met at the Palmer house, adopted a resolution urging the Illinois general assembly to pass laws requiring all motorists to have drivers' licenses and to give evidence of financial responsibility.

The committee was named by Charles M. Hayes, president of the motor club.

Members of Committee.

The members are Chief Justice John J. Sonsteby of the Municipal court; Chief William Collins of the county highway police; George T. Donoghue, superintendent of the consolidated park district; Leslie Sorenson, city trafic engineer; Police Captain Ira McDowell; Ald. John A. Massen [48th], chairman of the public safety committee of the city council; Frank Kreml, safety director of Evanston; Robert Mau, engineer of the Association of Commerce, and James Bulger and Attorney Joseph H. Braun of the motor club. The committee will report to the club as soon as it has analyzed data and decided on a plan.

Mr. Hayes quoted statistics to show that during the first five months of this year automobile accidents resulting in deaths in Chicago increased 25.3 per cent over the corresponding period of 1933, while in 86 other cities in the country with a population of more than 100,000, the increase this year was only 11.7 per cent.

Assails Ticket Fixing.

"We need law enforcement and education of motorists to combat the mounting death toll," Mr. Hayes asserted, "and we must have better regulation of trafic."

Ald. Massen declared that the fixing of tickets for vehicle law violations must be halted.

"Unfortunately," he remarked, "the public has been educated to think that a ticket is something to get out of, although there is much less of this fixing now than ever before."

State Senator Edward P. O'Grady said that he would reintroduce bills requiring drivers' licenses and showings of financial responsibility at the next session of the legislature.

FACTOR'S 60 DAY STAY IN CELL AT END TONIGHT

Unless an extradition warant is issued by midnight tonight, John Factor, wealthy market speculator, now being held in the De Kalb county jail at Sycamore for extradition to England, may apply for his release on a writ of habeas corpus under the terms of the extradition treaty this country has with Great Britain. Today will end the 60 days specified for Factor's removal.

While at the Sycamore jail yesterday Factor denied that he would take any action for his release before Tuesday. Attorney Franklin Overmyer, counsel for the British government here informed United States Attorney Dwight H. Green that he had reports Factor may seek his release either today or Monday. Mr. Overmyer also stated his information was that the writ may be presented before a circuit judge of De Kalb county rather than a federal judge. However, this was denied by Factor.

Factor was removed to jail April 24 on a United States commissioner's warant with his removal subject to orders from the state department in Washington. The state department has announced it will keep Factor in this country pending appeals in the Touhy case.

Capt. Bright, 50 Year Lake Sailor, to Get Safety Award

Capt. William T. Bright, who has sailed on the great lakes for fifty years without an accident to his crews or passengers, will be given an honor award by the National Safety council at a luncheon today aboard the S. S. North American at the Navy pier. The presentation will be made by W. H. Cameron, managing director of the safety council. Capt. Bright has lived for many years at 2702 North Whipple street.

A MIGHTY GOOD THING, INDEED.

Dr. Franklin Roosevelt told his Yale audience that he didn't know the party affiliations of the majority of those holding responsible positions in Washington. The fault is not wholly the President's. There is Dr. Harold Ickes, for example. No party can contain him or, more accurately, none ever has. There is Dr. Rexford Tugwell. He insists he is neither a Communist nor a communist; but a congressional committee which spent four hours trying to find out what he is got no farther than that. Dr. Roosevelt's problem, as these few illustrations suggest, is not easily solved, and he can hardly be blamed for hesitating to tackle it.

Dr. Roosevelt said he thought it was a mighty good thing that he doesn't know the party affiliations of his principal subordinates. Mr. Farley will agree that it is a mighty good thing. Mr. Farley's distinguished predecessor in New York politics, Mr. Tweed, had a nice enough thing in his day, but it was not the mighty good thing that Mr. Farley can tell his grandchildren about. In those wicked days there were jobs, but they did not run into the millions. There were contracts, but they did not run into the billions. Times change, and always for the better. Mr. Farley can give Arizona more than Tweed took from New York. Maybe he'll get a doctor's degree for it one of these days.

The suggestion is offered, gratis, to Harvard and Princeton. Mr. Farley is a doctor on three counts already, but he, too, deserves a public orator in a first line college. He can be held out before the world as the perfect example of the modest and tactful junior executive who knows more than his boss but never lets on. Mr. Roosevelt doesn't know party affiliations, but Mr. Farley has inklings. He operates with a kind of sixth sense. He never has to ask. He just divines. Some think he operates by the sense of smell, but those who are familiar with his career as boxing commissioner say that is not possible.

There was the case of Willard L. Thorp, who was appointed last July to head the bureau of foreign and domestic commerce. He held his job for a year to the satisfaction of every one, including the secretary of commerce. And then his name came before the senate for confirmation. It was disclosed that he had once voted in a Republican primary. Mr. Murchison of North Carolina now has the job.

As has been suggested above, not even Mr. Farley, with all his powers of divination, can discover the politics of some of the eminent brain trusters, because they haven't any. But give him just the common run of job seeker and watch him work. Postmasters, CWAs, CCCs, AAAs, HOLCs, for example, and, of course, ETCs. Mr. Farley has never yet failed to distinguish a Democratic ETC from a Republican ETC, and guess who got the job?

A DISHONORABLE DEFENSE.

The conviction of Joseph Harriman, the New York banker who used his depositors' money without their consent in his effort to bolster the market in the stock of his bank, is salutary. The offense was an atrocious breach of trust and cannot be condoned. It is scarcely less difficult to condone the conduct of Mr. George Leisure, counsel for the defense, who is quoted as having told the jury that the chief national bank examiner was a "moral defendant" in the case because he was not more alert in discovering and criticizing irregularities. Whatever the bank examiner did or failed to do is beside the point. The examiner might give positive instructions to a banker to steal his depositors' money and still the culpability of the banker would be clear if he took the advice. Mr. Leisure went far beyond any legitimate defense in making this plea and should be disciplined for it. As the judge who heard the case failed to take appropriate action, the responsibility falls upon the New York bar.

CRICKET IN HIGH POLITICS.

Mr. Thomas, secretary of the dominions, says the report that the controversy between English and Australian cricketers over "body line" bowling brought about ministerial pressure for its elimination from the game is "all moonshine." Viscount Hailsham, secretary of state for war, also denies the report. But it is said questions will be asked in parliament and there is some concern lest the controversy should irritate Australian sentiment, which at best is none too cordial toward the mother country.

For the information of American readers, who know as little of the mysteries of cricket as Britons know of baseball, body line bowling is described as a tactical equivalent of what we know as a bean ball. That is, the bowler gives a spin to the ball which directs it at the bean or head of the batter. It seems to have been invented by an English cricketer, Harold Larwood, celebrated for his high speed, and its use last year was resented by Australian players, whose captain said that Mr. Larwood is no sportsman. We have never thought of the Australians as inclined to mildness, but the body line bowl seems to have been too much for them. The English cricketers, having a skilful practitioner who wins games, are not impressed by the Australian indignation and the tension is putting, as Gaar Williams might remark, "a strain on the family tie."

From the American viewpoint the rumpus over Mr. Larwood's invention is puzzling. It is true that the bean ball is out of American baseball, but cricket is not baseball but a brutal and degrading sport only fit for the upper classes of England, whose favorite sporting urge is to kill something. Any loyal colonial ought to be proud to have his head cracked by a famous English bowler.

BLOCKING A MAIN THOROUGHFARE.

At least four hundred impatient motorists idled their engines at opposite ends of the Michigan boulevard link bridge from 12:30 p. m. yesterday until 12:45 waiting the lifting of the barriers that hold back the traffic when the bridge is to be opened. Then the traffic policeman at the south end of the bridge commenced to divert the ever-increasing accumulation of cars via Wacker drive and the Wabash avenue bridge. At the north end no such outlet was available for cars that had proceeded past Ohio street and the blockade continued to Erie street. Then at 12:46 the bridge was raised to permit a twenty-five foot pleasure sloop to pass proudly through. Another short delay while the bridge was being closed, and traffic proceeded to adjust itself to its normal volume.

Of course, the Chicago river, as a navigable stream, is under jurisdiction of the war department and cannot be obstructed. We believe, however, that the situation at Michigan boulevard warants exceptional treatment. The traffic of one of the city's main arteries should not be obstructed for the convenience of vessels of this type. There appears no reason why they could not be held at a nearby dock until it is necessary to open the bridge for the fireboat or one of the freighters that daily pass up and down the river. Possibly the two or three occupants of the yacht would be obliged to wait for a matter of an hour or so, but such inconvenience should certainly not take precedence over the convenience of a thousand motorists.

HUEY GETS AWAY WITH IT, THIS TIME.

Before the senate adjourned sine die it discharged the privileges and elections committee from further consideration of the charges filed by the women's committee of Louisiana against Senators Long and Overton of that state.

These charges, which were made under oath, asserted that Overton was elected through wholesale fraud and corruption, but that he and Long, who controls him politically, were designers of the fraud and agents and perpetrators of it. A special committee of the senate, headed by Senator Connally of Texas, had filed a similar report. The women's committee have tried repeatedly to get a proper hearing for their own evidence with no result.

Three senatorial committees have shown flagrant signs of unwillingness to investigate thoroughly the notorious condition of the Long régime. The outcome is a disgrace to the senate. Readers of the dispatch to THE TRIBUNE describing Long's return had a vivid picture of what the senate's failure means to Louisiana.

But, as the women's committee declares, the end is not yet. We are confident the decent citizenship of Louisiana eventually will win. It has been betrayed by the senators who have dealt with the charges at this session, but responsible public opinion throughout the country will eventually compel the senate to do its duty. The immunity of Long and his political creature Overton has been a sinister revelation of unscrupulous politics in the highest deliberative body in the land and it cannot be ignored.

CANADA AND DEBT REPUDIATION.

Canadian editorial comment on the decision of the British exchequer to repudiate war debts seems conspicuous by its absence. Nowhere is there an attempt to justify the action of the mother country, as might be expected from newspapers convinced that the decision was either just or necessary. Perhaps there is nothing strange about the situation—Canada has its own war debts and a natural inclination of editors would be to permit the British press to carry the burden. In this instance two distinct nationalities appear within the one empire. The proud boast of "Once British Always British" is submerged when the mother country departs from tradition, and the inhabitants of our northern neighbor become solidly Canadian.

There is a hint of subterfuge, however, in the situation, and we wonder what the innermost mind of a conscientious Canadian might develop if called upon to apologize for decisions that might well disparage the reputation of the entire empire but over which his immediate government has no control.

Editorial of the Day

A CODE AT WORK.

[Door County Advocate.]

While the code system has been a help in some lines of business it has been a hardship upon others. According to a statement by J. L. Johns, manager of the Plumbers' Woodwork company in our neighboring city of Algoma, it worked such a hardship upon that concern that it has been forced to shut down for an indefinite length of time.

The principal reason for closing the plant, according to Mr. Johns' statement, was that it had in the neighborhood of $50,000 in orders in the factory to be filled. Many of those orders were over 30 days old, and under the code orders were not to be taken for a period of more than 30 days. The orders on file were taken before the code went into effect. The code authorities directed that they be canceled.

In his statement Mr. Johns also says: "There have been some rumors about an agreement that this factory had with the men. In my opinion as a lawyer the agreement was perfectly legal, unless the constitution has been wiped out and the right to contract abrogated."

About 50 men were thrown out of work.

VERY PARTICULAR.

A young lady was held up by the trafic signal, and, of course, when it was time to "go" she could not get her car to start at all.

However, there was a good string of cars behind waiting, and still the signal kept on, "Stop—Go." At last a policeman stepped up to her and said:

"Well, miss, haven't you found a color to suit you?"—Exchange.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

WHILE EVERYBODY is whistling and raving over the old song about "The Handsome Young Man on the Flying Trapeze," why doesn't some radio station bring back another old song that is far and away better than that? I mean the song called "The Tattooed Man," which was sung by Frank Daniels in one of his musical comedies a quarter of a century ago. The music is tuneful and lively and reminds you at once of the circus, as it should, because the song concerns one of the star performers of a circus side show. When the chorus of "The Tattooed Man" is played you can fairly see the horses galloping around the ring while the beautiful ladies and gents do somersaults on their backs. You can hear the ringmaster in immaculate evening clothes cracking the whip, people crunching popcorn and peanuts all around you, and the old time circus peddlers imploring you to buy pink lemonade and soda pop. I can't remember all the verses of "The Tattooed Man," but one of them went something like this:

He had Raphael's Angels on his back,
The Angelus on his breast,
And on his arms a collection
Of landscapes of the best.
"Oh, why should I go abroad?" said she,
"To Germany, France, or Rome,
When I've such a collection
Awaiting inspection
In my own dear happy home."

Then came the swinging chorus, the galloping music full of drums, bugles, trombones, and cymbals:

"Oh, he was a human picture gallery,
Such a spectacular gent;
He won her heart and drew her salary,
Never gave her a cent;
Till one fine day with the season's pay
And the fat lady off he ran;
Oh, it's perfectly true, you can beat a tattoo,
But you can't beat a tattooed man."

Not great poetry probably, but very funny. Anyhow, the music is what's worth raving about. Or the tune or the air, or whatever you want to call it. If "The Tattooed Man" is given half a chance he'll knock "That Handsome Young Man on the Flying Trapeze" for a row of ash cans.

AND ANYHOW, that Handsome Young Man on the Flying Trapeze is not worth calling to mind because he has been entirely supplanted these days by the Daring Young Man in the Weave In and Out. The old song should be revised to meet up to date conditions, and then it would go something like this:

He'll weave in and out and give many a jar,
This daring young man in the in-and-out car;
He'll drive circles around you ere you can say "scat"!
And bang your old auto into a cocked hat;
To his way of thinking the world he's got beat,
And no other cars should be out on the street;
And maybe he's right, for no one complains,
But just runs behind him and picks up the remains.

AND AFTER ALL the suffering the terrible drouth has brought on us and all the prayers we've sent up it just seems nothing else than sacrilegious for people to go walking around carrying umbrellas.

TO A DOCTOR.

I think of you as shielding
The candle of the breath
With gentle hands adroitly
Against a gust of death.

ADELAIDE LOVE.

MORE TROUBLE bobs up and I thought I had finally developed into a fairly good automobile driver. But now there are swarms of boys and girls on bicycles all over the road. The grown-up gals with peroxide hair and cute little short panties and a cunning little blue blouse are the greatest danger. A fellow's got to keep his eyes on the road if he wants to drive safely, but gosh! when one of these peroxide blondes with cute little short panties and a blue blousie bobs up alongside on a bike and gives you a lovely smile—say, what's a fellow going to do? I pretty near ran the car right straight into Herr Goethe's statue in Lincoln park yesterday because of this new traffic menace. What to do? What to do?

PENANCE.

Because I wandered once beyond this vale
And ravaged in a dream
the shape of Truth, Shall it be mine
forevermore to trail
Our headlong Child, half-god, who, winged with ruth
Will fling the dearest secrets of my soul
'Twixt Heav'n and Earth with youth's relentlessness?

The watch-dogs of the Pleiades take toll
Upon His flights; the which,
without redress,
I am constrained to pay
in lonely nights
Of sentry-watching where the moon is pale
By Cerberus' gates—my penance is to write
Wan thoughts of hell-bound souls, who sought the Grail.

PRICE PATTON.

"HAY FEVER on the Increase."—Headline. But there should be no hay fever under the New Deal. All they've got to do is to make the farmers plow the hay under. Very simple—no hay—no hay fever.

TYPHOID FEVER AND YOUR VACATION.

BECAUSE of the widespread use of chlorine in public water supplies and of improved methods of handling water used for drinking purposes, pasteurization of milk, and the like, typhoid epidemics that formerly spread terror to our communities, large and small, have been well-nigh eliminated. Typhoid fever, however, is still present in various parts of our country, and may be carried, if adequate precautions are not observed, from one part of the country to another.

As a rule the protection against typhoid contamination of water and milk is more perfect in the cities than in rural communities. This has been found to be true in New York state. Certain individuals who have had the disease are known as carriers and are capable of spreading it. Typhoid fever carriers are dangerous persons, particularly if they have anything to do with the preparation or serving of food. Furthermore, they may carry the bacillus of typhoid for months or years without apparent danger to themselves. They may be unaware that they are typhoid carriers. The bacillus has a tendency to linger in the intestinal tract, urinary tract, or in the gall bladder, and it is sometimes necessary to remove the gall bladder surgically before the carrier is completely freed from danger to others.

In spite of the remarkable reduction in the number of cases, the disease, when it does attack the individual, is just as severe as it was years ago. The treatment is symptomatic; the strength of the patient is supported, proper diet is prescribed, and the damage incident to the high and prolonged fever is minimized by proper temperature reduction methods. There is no known plan of stopping the disease once it has gained a foothold, and the remedy lies in prevention, not cure.

In these days of motor car travel, with roadside camps, every possible precaution must be taken against contaminated water, milk, and food. Boiled water may be insipid, but it is safe. Swimming in contaminated streams or lakes into which sewage may be emptied is a potential danger. A gallon of water from an untested well may be rendered safe for drinking purposes by adding a drop or two of liquid chlorine or a dozen grains of hypochlorite of lime. Milk may be heated to a temperature of 145 degrees Fahrenheit and retained at that temperature for one-half hour, constituting pasteurization and rendering the milk safe.

Through the work of bacteriologists a vaccination for typhoid fever has been developed the efficacy of which has been proved. Protection against typhoid by vaccination is particularly important for those visiting abroad, spending vacations in the country, or taking motor trips where water from untested wells and unpasteurized milk may be used. This vaccine may be administered by any competent physician with safety. Vaccination against typhoid protects for approximately one year.

Vacationists, if unprotected by typhoid vaccination, rather than risk infection from untested wells ought to use bottled water of known purity. A thermos bottle filled with water from a safe source may be the means of avoiding a dangerous and expensive illness.

MANY POSSIBLE CAUSES.

L. G. B. writes: At intervals I experience a dry, parched feeling at the end and sides of the tongue, accompanied by an excessive flow of saliva. Perhaps I might say the sensation is similar to that one experiences after scalding the tongue. There is also a salty, bitter taste.

REPLY.

Among the possible causes are dental work in which more than one metal was fastened in the mouth, pellagra, pernicious anemia, Hunter's anemia, foul mouth and tongue.

Examination would be required to find out which is the cause in your case.

WEIGHT.

1. How much should a girl 14½ years old and 4 feet 11 inches tall weigh?
2. A girl 16 years old, 4 feet 11½ inches tall?
3. A woman 35 years old, 5 feet tall?
4. A man 42 years old, 5 feet 4 inches tall?

REPLY.

1. About 98 pounds.
2. About 105 pounds.
3. About 119 pounds.
4. About 135 pounds.

PROBATE NECESSARY.

Chicago, June 14.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—My mother, a widow, died without leaving a will. Five children survive, all of age and married. 1. Can real estate, a two story building clear of incumbrance, be sold to one of them if the other four sign a quitclaim? Will the buyer have a clear title? 2. Is probating same the best to get clear title for buyer? G. S.

1. Probate proceedings would be necessary in order to produce a technically merchantable title to the real estate.
2. Yes, in the ordinary case.

PROVISIONS OF WILL.

Chicago, June 14.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—About six years ago I was taken to a hospital, and before leaving my wife and I made a will in a hurry through a local bank. 1. This bank named themselves executors and trustees. 2. Do we have to serve notice on this bank that we are changing our will? 3. If so, how do we go about it and [4] what happens to the copy of this first will which the bank retained? 5. In this case we wish to make out a new will naming a boy of 19 as sole heir to what we leave. He is not related to us in any way. We wish to exclude all sisters, brothers, and their children, or any other persons who might possibly claim our estate, and want to be sure there is no trouble after we are gone. How many witnesses are necessary and how should the will be drawn? Any other information necessary to do this right will be appreciated. A. P.

1. Of course the will had no effect until you signed it, and in this sense you are the one who named your executors.
2. No.
3. A new will or codicil should be executed in the same manner as the original will.
4. Your new will should contain express wording that it is intended to revoke the prior will or to change it. Under such wording it is not necessary to do anything with the bank's copy.
5. Where relatives are being excluded there is enough chance of contest so that we strongly advise employing an attorney in the drafting and execution of the will.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

BANKRUPTCY.

Congress Park, Ill., June 7.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. Is there any law that entitles a wage earner to file bankruptcy? 2. If there is, what procedure must be taken? 3. What would it cost? V. W.

1. Yes, if he is insolvent.
2. The first step is to file a petition and schedules in the office of the United States District court clerk.
3. The attorney's fees would be the largest single item and we are not in a position to estimate this.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

FRIEND OF THE INSURED

QUESTION OF SURVIVORSHIP.

Chicago, June 8.—[Friend of the Insured.]—If my wife and I die as a result of the same automobile accident, but she, who is my beneficiary, survives me by a few hours, or a few days, who would get my insurance money, her family or mine? What must I do to make sure that my family gets it? A. O. M.

If there are surviving children they would take the money as heirs of either or both estates; if there are none, the wife's next of kin would inherit it. The insurance companies are reluctant to make settlement in doubtful cases without releases from the administrators of both estates on account of the probability of ensuing litigation. For this reason a provision for a reversion to the insured's estate in the event of the simultaneous death of the insured and beneficiary is unsatisfactory. Insurance companies will not assume that all possible claimants will acquiesce in their decision that the deaths were in fact simultaneous. To meet the situation and insure prompt payment of claim, many suggestions have been made. Perhaps the best way of covering the contingency is by a deferred settlement. Most companies would be willing to hold the proceeds at interest for a year, at the end of which the principal could be paid to the widow should she survive the accident, or if not, to some other designated beneficiary. In this way a longer period would be allowed for the wife's recovery, with more certainty that the insured's plan for his beneficiary would be carried out, than under any benefit clause calling for a lump sum payment. We can only emphasize the need for careful thought in drafting beneficiary clauses. Since the law takes special interest in protecting the beneficiary, the contracting parties must look out for the rights of the insured who pays the premium.

INSTALMENT POLICY.

Chicago, June 16.—[Friend of the Insured.]—Some time ago I bought what the agent called an instalment policy. Now I discover that it says "whole life." Is this kind as good as the instalment policy? What can I do? I have already paid two premiums. G. M. A.

Any of the usual plans of insurance may assume the form of a so-called instalment policy, which, as the name implies, is merely a provision, usually incorporated in all policies, providing that the insurance money, at death or on maturity, shall not be paid in a lump sum, but in a series of annual, quarterly, or monthly instalments. Your whole life policy no doubt provides that in the event of death its face value shall be paid in a certain number of instalments. There are many special arrangements available for the payment of insurance proceeds which can be made to fit any individual conditions which the insured may desire for the disbursement of policy proceeds. If you desire your insurance money paid in this manner there is no need to do anything, as whole life insurance is a highly desirable form and instalment payments are recommended.

THE BICYCLE PROBLEM.

Chicago, June 20.—The recent suggestion made by a certain organization that bicycles be compelled by ordinance to take to sidewalks is very thoughtless and unsafe. It is true enough that the bicycle rider has a sorry plight in that he is not wanted on the streets and highways, but the reason for this is his own fault. To legislate the bicycle to the sidewalk means endangering the lives of pedestrians and children. Where will our children play if the sidewalks are not safe and we already have the struggle of educating them that the streets are not safe? Putting bicycles on the sidewalks would really mean driving the children between two hazards.

Having been a cyclist years ago myself, and being a pedestrian and motorist, my suggestion to bicycle riders is to stay close to the curb and ride single file. When riding in groups, never ride two abreast. Further, at all times give the motor vehicles the right of way, just as you would a street car. If cyclists will observe these simple rules they will not antagonize motorists and the roads will be safer for all concerned.

E. C. SCHROETER.

THE CROPS.

Chicago, June 20.—Far from finding myself in an awkward position, as Mr. Snow's letter intimates, recent developments would seem to vindicate my stand on the AAA, and it looks as if "the Lord had delivered him into my hands." For the same issue of THE TRIBUNE that carries Mr. Snow's animadversions on my views reports "unexpectedly large" yields of wheat in Kansas, running as high as 40 bushels to the acre. Moreover, I am advised that my wheat crop in North Dakota that appeared to be practically a failure two weeks ago shows vast improvement following several inches of rainfall.

May I suggest to Mr. Snow that he might have avoided an "awkward position" himself by withholding criticism of the AAA until final returns are compiled? Furthermore, as wheat is selling on the Board of Trade at a price which is by no means high, in spite of the drouth, one can only wonder to what levels it might have sunk had Mr. Snow's counsels been heeded and there had been no reduction of acreage in that territory which is yielding such large crops.

No sane person will deny that a surplus of food should be regarded as a necessity, and only a society of subsimians could fail to find in a bountiful harvest occasion for universal rejoicing. But under the present system the same surplus which spells comfort and plenty for the consumer means for the producer, in the absence of an export outlet, only bankruptcy and despair.

EDWARD C. WARNER.

MACHINE ART.

June 19.—May I take this opportunity to commend the excellent editorial entitled "Machine Art," which appeared in THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE June 13? It is reassuring to know that the importance of design in everyday life and as an economic factor is recognized. Its use will, of course, increase relatively as it becomes more generally understood.

RICHARD H. GARVIN.

THE COMMUTER'S CORNER.

Geneva, Ill., June 8.—I have often wondered just how railroads devise their suburban train schedules. Take my particular case. I reside in Geneva, Ill., and, like a majority of Chicago commuters from this town, must start work at 8:30. Knowing this, here's what the good old C. & N. W. officials arrange: "Ah, we'll fix it so all these people won't arrive until 8:30 every morning so they can always be 5 or 10 minutes late, and if they don't like it let them get up with the chickens and take our 6:30 train and arrive in Chicago 40 minutes early." Now at evening let's see—"most people are through working at 5 or 5:30, we'll fix that! We'll have a train leave at 5:05—just let 5 o'clockers try and make it. And for those who quit at 5:30 we'll give them a train leaving at 5:25. Yes sir! and there's no use hurrying these trains, either; we might as well take a full hour or more for the 30 miles!"

It seems to me that the officials of this road, by using a little common sense, could practically alleviate this situation by rearranging this schedule say by 5 minutes in the morning and evening and thereby show they are willing to accommodate the public to some extent. [Not to mention the ride itself being the dirtiest thing possible on a hot day—unless one chooses to clean furnaces or something of this nature.]

Of course, we have the A. E. & C. electric line, but they're not going to be outdone by any C. & N. W., so, on their schedule, you can leave 13 minutes earlier in the morning and still get in after 8:30. Of course, their ride is cleaner, but nothing stirs up dust crawling.

W. J. P.

GEN. FOULOIS.

Chicago, June 20.—I certainly approve of your cartoon in this morning's TRIBUNE, "The New Deal Looking for a Victim," to the extent that I consider the charges against Gen. Foulois most unfair and unjust.

I soldiered in the army from 1911 until after the world war, where I saw service in the 2d division. I served with Lieut. Foulois, now Gen. Foulois, in Mexico, and from my army experience in actual duty I can frankly state that he was one of the most efficient, conscientious and bravest officers I ever served under.

Although I am a Democrat, the exploitation of Gen. Foulois for political purposes just goes against my grain.

FRANK P. SKRANDEL.

DR. EVANS.

Jacksonville, Ill., June 20.—Will you permit me, in this public way, to express my great appreciation of the years of service of Dr. W. A. Evans? I consider his work was preëminent in promoting health and a sane view of diseases and their causes.

For years he was as a voice crying in the wilderness, and while THE TRIBUNE by cartoon and editorial scoffed and scorned prohibition, Dr. Evans consistently wrote of the harm drink in any form brought to the human system. I feel a deep personal loss in his surrendering his valuable column.

Good Morning!

Well, I don't know about you, but Gracie Allen tickles me almost to pieces.

GRACIE ALLEN.

She kept me in a constant state of chuckling from start to finish of the batch of complete nonsense known as "Many Happy Returns." Which is not what I had expected. Because a couple of folks who'd attended previews had told me that there was entirely too much of Gracie in the piece.

There IS plenty of her, to be sure—but none to spare. Her amiable, effortless idiocy flavors practically every scene and had yesterday morning's audience as happy as grigs.

The picture opens with the sight of Gracie's papa, Mr. Allen, returning from Europe. Eager photographers and reporters line the astonished man up against a wall and chorus:

"Why are you tearing down your department store, Mr. Allen?"

"But I'm NOT tearing it down!" bellows Mr. Allen.

O, yes he is, they tell him. His nice, big department store right in the heart of New York City is to give place to a bird sanctuary . . . !

BY—WHOSE—ORDERS?

Ah-h-hh! By little Gracie Allen's orders. And Gracie is having a tearing down sale at which she's giving away an overcoat with every two dollar purchase. And she has been so nice to Guy Lombardo and his Royal Canadians—who have a contract with the store's radio station, but who, having had an offer to appear in moom pictures at Hollywood, desire to break same.

"Pouff!" has said Gracie. "What's a contract! I always DID say a contract was just a scrap of paper . . ." So she has just torn it up.

George Burns is the station's radio announcer and to George Gracie is poison and asafetida. But a psychoanalyst has told Papa Allen that George is what Gracie needs. . . .

For a startling monetary consideration Georgy Porgy, as Gracie calls him fondly, marries the nut and takes her to Los Angeles. . . .

Poor Mr. Allen! His daughter, Florence, too, has been up to things while he's been in Europe. She's won a "Mystery Girl" contest and has had a Hollywood offer. Also she'd dead set on marrying a song plugger. . . .

You'll be greatly entertained by the series of circumstances which land the honeymooners [Ha, ha!] in a Hollywood studio, and by their experiences—and the experiences of the unhappy folk who work with them during the making of a movie.

The picture affords opportunities for enjoying the music of the Lombardo boys, watching Taylor and Rutledge tap dance and gazing upon Veloz and Yolanda in a couple of their de luxe specialties.

The silly piece just gallops along and ends on a laugh. It was excellently directed and acted throughout and has some really funny dialog.

A person of quality wrote the story, Lady Mary Cameron, if you please!

Wampas Baby Stars Appear in Chicago Bill

BY CHARLES COLLINS.

The Wampas Baby Stars of 1934, alleged to be the duckiest girls to crash the gates of Hollywood during the last year and therefore possibilities for world-fame in the cinema industry some five or ten years hence, are now on display at the Chicago theater. The new program of stage entertainment is constructed around this bevy of beauties in the bud, and each is given an opportunity to prove her aptitude as a performer.

They are attractive adolescents, thirteen in number, ranging in complexion from normal brunette to sophisticated platinum, but I am not farsighted enough to be able to proclaim that there is a Greta Garbo or a Katharine Hepburn of the future in the flock. The most proficient performances are given by Hazel Hayes, who may be an operetta prima donna in the making, for she sings "Toujour L'Amour" with excellent voice and diction; and Betty Bryson, who puts on a silver hula-hula skirt to writhe in the customary Hawaiian manner like another Ann Pennington.

The origin and meaning of the word "wampas" arouses my curiosity more than the present bearers of the title. I have collected the following data on the subject:

1. Hollywood believes it to be a spoonful of alphabet soup taken from the initials of the label, "Western Association of Motion Picture Agents."

2. In 1919, long before there were any Wampas Baby Stars, I heard the word used among Rocky Mountain ranchers as a derogatory nickname for a young show-off ranch hand who was posing as a rough-rider. An old-timer, when asked to explain the word, said dubiously that he thought it meant "skunk."

3. An acquaintance whose researches into wild-western folk-speech antedate mine by years, states that he has heard the word used in a wide range of meanings, mainly contemptuous, many of them referring to fantastic and mythological animals.

4. Another acquaintance with a library of American Indian lore testifies that the word means "a baby" in one of the Indian languages of the far west.

BY MARY MEADE.

Shrimps, and how to wiggle them out of their shells, is the first poser to turn up on the pile. This S O S comes from Mrs. F. from my good state of Iowa. Her trouble is with the fresh shrimps, how to go about preparing them for salad. So here come directions.

WHEN SHRIMPS ARE FRESH.

These curly fellows, when purchased at the market, have already been lopped of their heads, but are still raw and in the shell. A pearly gray is the color as they should be. During cooking this changes to a clear bright pink.

Just as soon as the delivery boy, or you yourself, may arrive with the shrimps, see to it that they are cooked at once. Plunge them into simmering water and cook at low heat for 16 to 20 minutes. Cool them and remove the shells. Best do this by tearing open the underside, beginning at the head end. The meat can then be slipped out easily whole. Then one other deed. The slim black line which may be seen running down the back of the shrimp is the intestinal canal. This should be removed by gently scraping with the point of a paring knife, or occasionally may be lifted out whole from largest shrimps. The little crustaceans [not fish, you know] are now ready to serve up in any form which we would naturally use for their canned cousins.

Comes a wail from Miss F. L.: "I make elegant pie crusts, but I can't seem to get the trick of picking them up, my fingers always go through them or they stick together when I fold one half over the other before lifting them to the pan."

Maybe, Miss L., you're going too strenuously about the business of rolling the pastry, stretching things a bit and getting it too thin. However, here's a tip which should boost you out of your troubles. The next time there's a crust to be lifted, dust your clean rolling pin with flour. Trim the pastry to dock off any cracked edges. Now roll it onto the rolling pin, rolling toward you, start it by curling the far edge of the pastry over the rolling pin with the flat of a floured knife. Roll it nearly all onto the pin, holding the last with your hand. Lift the pin into place over the pie tin and place the edge you are holding on the far side of the pie pan. Now speedily unroll the pastry onto the pie pan.

And I wonder if you ever discovered for yourself, after years of pursuing elusive egg yolk bits around a dish of egg whites, when the breakage wasn't as successful as one might have hoped—that the only successful "go-getter" after egg yolk is the egg shell itself? Use the half shell and lift out the offending streaks of yellow before you beat the whites.

Beach Kit

She goes well armed against sun and sartorial stress who carries a little beach kit containing oil for a sun tan, cream, powder, and lipstick.
[Tribune Studio Photo.]

Going to the beach with a breezy little kit suspended from your wrist is going to the beach in style. And there's some sense to it, too.

The beach kit recently brought out by a big eastern cosmetic house is ultra swanky and sporty, with its zipper closing and its stripes of red, black, white, and yellow; but it's what's in the cute kit that intrigues us most.

There's a generous bottle of oil for a sun tan, a new and improved one that makes burning well nigh impossible and keeps a good tan well under control. One of the things we like best about it is that it's sweetly scented, a little refinement of such oils that we appreciate.

Naturally, when you go to the beach you don't say good-by to your efforts to be decorative. And here's where your kit helps you out again. In it, snugly fitted into the lemon yellow interior, there's a jar of cleansing cream, a light, frothy one that we've raved about in this column before. It's one of the ideal summer cleansers because it is so light and because it has lemon juices in it; it's almost as cooling as cologne.

There's a little lipstick, too, that helps the decorative cause along; the most ardent sun bather needs one, of course. There's also a fat box of fine powder, a face powder that's as light and airy as air itself, that stays on well and that gives the skin a very suave finish.

The kit with all the good things packed in it serves you as well as your own dressing table would, and it's surprisingly inexpensive, as you'll find when you inspect it in stores around town.

Lake Forest Holds 27th Horse Show

Society Throngs Attend Two Performances.

BY INDIA MOFFETT.

It wasn't until 12:30 yesterday that the rain let up enough so that the committee in charge of the twenty-seventh annual Lake Forest horse show decided that it would be feasible to go ahead with the opening performance. But by 2:10, when the entries in the first class rode into the ring on the Onwentsia club grounds, it was clear, and before half the program was finished it was sunny and bright.

The mud did not dry up, however, and the white shoes of some of the audience were a sorry sight. It was a gala afternoon, though, with about half the audience made up of young people.

The refreshment stand proved of as much interest as the ring to the younger spectators, and if there weren't many emergency calls for doctors in Lake Forest last night it wasn't because the youngsters hadn't had enough pop, ice cream, hot dogs, and other refreshments to make illness a logical result.

The audience was an interesting and changing one, for the entrants in the show sat with their friends in boxes when they weren't riding, and every time one looked a box had different occupants.

The daughter and son of Mr. and Mrs. Allen B. Ripley, Jane and Bradford, did themselves and the Du Page hunt, of which they are the whips, proud, for Jane carried away the second prize and her brother the first in the handy hunters and jumpers amateur class. Mrs. Robert R. McCormick, M. F. H. of the Du Page hunt, and Mr. and Mrs. Chauncey McCormick, who ride with it, were among the enthusiastic onlookers who applauded loudly for the young Ripleys.

Bradford Ripley was the winner of the blue ribbon in the "touch and out" class, in which Mrs. Lewis L. Bredin of Detroit was third. Mrs. Albert D. Dick Jr., driving Fleetwood Violette in the harness ponies class, won the blue ribbon, and Mrs. A. C. Thompson, driving Mitzie, won the red.

Another of Mrs. Thompson's ponies, Globe Trotter, wore the yellow ribbon when he left the ring. It was Mrs. Thompson's ponies, High Explosion and Charm, that won the ribbons in the first class harness ponies not exceeding thirteen hands.

Little Sheila Cudahy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward A. Cudahy Jr., received much applause for the splendid way in which she handled her horse which refused one of the jumps in a hunting class. She was the only child riding in this class. One of those who applauded her heartily was her aunt, Mrs. Niblack, the former Helen Cudahy, who was stunning in a mustard yellow dress, coat, and hat. Sitting with her and Mrs. Salisbury most of the afternoon was Capt. Piero Santini, the famous riding master who has come from Rome to teach Lake Foresters how to ride.

Almost every one was wrapped in tweeds, but Mrs. Laurance H. Armour was one of the few who trusted that the sun would shine—as it did—and who appeared in light clothes. She was lovely in white with touches of the sky blue that she wears so often and to such good advantage.

There was even a larger crowd to watch the evening performance, the first of the kind ever held in Lake Forest, than at the afternoon show, and it was a more formally clad crowd. The riders, too, were in more formal clothes and most of the men wore their pink hunting coats, which always add greatly to the picture. Great arc lights and colorful Japanese lanterns on standards helped the young moon furnish the necessary light and the enthusiastic audience stayed until the last class had shown, long past 11 o'clock.

One of the most interested spectators was miss Florine Goldsmith, who was one of the best known riders and jumpers in this part of the country until she developed infantile paralysis about seven months ago and was out of the hospital for the first time last night.

This morning's performance will start at 9:45 o'clock and this afternoon's at 2.

Style Expert Picks Winners for Week-End

BY RHEA SEEGER.

Saturday's best sellers and week-end winners! . . . White linen footwear in two good street styles, tie oxfords with medium high walking heels, and sleek summer sandals that can be worn with frilly dance dresses of cotton and as smart footnotes for afternoon ensembles. The sandals have high heels and both sandals and tie oxfords are trimmed with very narrow bands of white kidskin. These same linen creations, about the best looking linen affairs ever unpacked, are also obtainable in dark street colors.

New wooden costume jewelry, in a shade of brown that looks like a chocolate ice cream soda, are "finds" for the white and brown summer suits, and nice cool accents for all white.

Just arrived. . . . Glove silk lingerie for warm days ahead. This stuff is practically nothing but an illusion; panties, all-in-ones, and vests that are the thinnest things you ever inspected. There is plenty of all white this summer and, of course, the usual vast supplies of flesh and peach. Glove silk underwear collectors, who know that this cool, comfortable stuff never sticks or clings, even on the hottest of days, will welcome these new models with cheers.

You can't pull through any season without pearl costume jewelry, so here are the newest pearled creations. Baroque pearls set in icy cool transparent prystal—utterly lovely pieces that will make you cool just to look at them.

Bracelets of four to six strands of baroque pearls clasped with oblongs of prystal; round discs of prystal set with a single pearl for stunning earrings, and big clips in half circles also set with these shimmering pearls will decorate handsomely all your dark clothes, as well as all the vividly tinted summer dresses in your wardrobe.

Joy Fairman Will Be Bride at Winnetka

Wedding to Edward Hamm to Be Today.

BY JUDITH CASS.

THIS merry month of June is bringing a full quota of brides every Saturday, to say nothing of the midweek ones. A wedding of interest today is that of petite Joy Elizabeth Fairman, whose first name is an apt description of her fun-loving and vivacious personality, and Edward F. Hamm Jr., better known as "Pedie," a popular young man in Chicago and along the north shore.

The daughter of the Fred W. Fairmans of Winnetka and the son of the Edward F. Hamms of Kenilworth will repeat their wedding vows after the Rev. E. Ashley Gerhard at 4:30 o'clock in Christ church, Winnetka. A reception will follow at the Fairman home on Ash street.

A maid of honor, Miss Anne Small, and five bridesmaids, Mrs. R. Hampton Ripley [Janet Kirk], Mrs. Frank G. Osborne [Ann Robinson], Mrs. William S. Miles Jr. [Ann McKeown], Miss Veronese Beatty, and Miss Harriet Hamm, the bridegroom's sister, will precede the bride down the aile. Frederick B. Hamm will serve his brother as best man, and ushering will be Mr. Ripley [the Ripleys' small son, Peter Kirk Ripley, was to have received a silver spoon last night at the North Shore Country Day school annual vaudeville show, for he is the first "all North Shore Country Day" baby since both his parents were pupils there], Fred W. Fairman Jr., Cameron Eddy, Thomas Eddy Jr., William Drake, and Robert Biggert.

Three Weddings Out of Town.

The three other brides who round out today's romantic interest are all being married out of town, and all three weddings will be rather small. Miss Betty Brown, daughter of the Raymond Dwight Browns of Indianapolis, will be become the bride of Edward John Fleming, son of the Edward J. Flemings of Evanston, at a quiet wedding at home in Indianapolis; Miss Mary Ruth Fairman, daughter of George S. Fairman of Oak Park, will be married to Neil C. Hurley Jr., son of the Neil C. Hurleys of River Forest, at 11:30 o'clock this morning in the historic Log chapel of the University of Notre Dame, and Miss Elinore Elizabeth Dahn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Dahn of Minneapolis, will be wed to Howard Bowes Wolff, son of Mrs. Frederick H. Wolff of Chicago, at a small wedding at 8:30 o'clock tonight in Minneapolis.

Michigan City Yacht Race.

The Michigan City race, one of the oldest sailing events on Lake Michigan, will hold the attention of sailing enthusiasts today. It is scheduled to start at 9:30 from the Van Buren street gap off Grant park, with boats starting every 5 minutes, the smallest ones first, for about three-quarters of an hour, when the largest and fastest boats will have gotten off.

Front Views and Profiles

By June Provines

WHEN Dr. Robert B. Harshe, director of the Art institute, was being presented for the degree of doctor of humane letters at Yale the other day by William Lyon Phelps, the professor said:

Introduction—Human Adventure—Theme Song.

"I want it clearly understood that Dr. Harshe, while he brought 'Whistler's Mother' to this country, had nothing to do with its being made into a stamp."

We add that President Roosevelt, who was receiving a degree also, was very much amused.

AT a time where there is so much agitation over giving the public clean and wholesome movies, it might not come amiss to call attention to a thrilling and effective movie that certainly ought to be released in every town and city in the country. It is the "Human Adventure," produced by the Oriental institute of the University of Chicago, which will be shown several times more at International house for the benefit of the University of Chicago settlement. We shall not soon forget the dramatic unfolding of the tale of mankind as revealed through the discoveries of the fourteen expeditions distributed by Oriental institute through the lands where civilization first arose, Egypt, Palestine, Syria, Anatolia, Assyria, Babylonia, and Persia. And unforgettable are the last scenes—the tomb of Artaxerxes with its tremendous carving of a mighty horse and rider, and the tomb of Darius, carved among the cliffs. The tall columns of Persopolis—columns of an audience hall where Persian emperors used to sit in royal state, brood over this stronghold of the last civilization of the ancient orient.

"It marks the beginning of the supremacy of Europe and that great transition which made us the heirs of the Orient," said Charles Breasted, in the narration that accompanied the picture. . . . "The story of the past and of man's conquest of civilization is the story of ourselves who have come 'out of the deeps.' It belongs to no one race or nation, but to mankind."

PRESENT at International house to see the picture and at the little gathering at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Breasted after the performance was Dr. Harold Nelson, in town for a week from Luxor, Egypt, where he is in charge of the Oriental institute's Egyptian expedition. We asked him why it was that every brick used in building some of the ancient tombs and palaces was stamped with the name and insignia of the ruler who had ordered them built, and heard rather a charming tale in reply. The ancients believed in publicizing themselves thus, and in fact, destroying such evidences of power was the act of a ruler's enemies, he said. In the Koran, he explained, it says that the Almighty was one hundred beautiful names, and only ninety-nine of them are given. The hundredth name is a secret. The camel, however, knows the secret of the hundredth name. That is why the camel has a knowing, smirking expression.

THE other day when Leslie Howard passed through town, on his way to New York, thence to England, he said that his next picture would be under the same direction as that of the production of "Henry VIII.," which brought to mind the story Elmer T. Stevens, who is a director of Brown university, tells of an incident that occurred when the undergraduates saw the production. You perhaps remember the moment when Anne Boleyn, Henry's second wife, lost her head on the block, and Henry paced back and forth in the palace while the execution took place. As soon as the axman's weapon fell, the Brown students burst out singing, "Annie Doesn't Live Here Any More."

THE WRONG MAN

BY MAY EDGINTON

SYNOPSIS.

Cara Follette, only daughter of a Canadian business man, anticipates becoming her father's partner. While traveling in Europe she meets Jerry Flint, a poor young English singer. She stakes him to Toronto, where she can get him auditions impossible for him to gain abroad. Benjamin Follette and his wife, Anny, had grown apart in the years he was busy becoming successful. Now Follette is about to lose his business to his rival, Redman Harmer. Harmer recently returned from Europe, where he saw and fell in love with Cara. He asks Follette for an opportunity of meeting his daughter. When Cara returns home her father tells her of his failure and urges her to meet Harmer. It would mean much to him and he likes Harmer. Cara decides to go up northwest to Mulligan's camp for a month to think it over. Meanwhile no one is to get an inkling of their business troubles. Anny will find friends for Jerry Flint, whom Cara has decided she loves. Cara sells her car for expense money and gives half to Jerry. Harmer hears of Cara's plans from her father. He flies to Mulligan's ahead of her and hires the place from Dan Mulligan for a month and the use of his name. Harmer meets Cara on the way, introducing himself as Mulligan. He and Jerry are antagonistic. Harmer conducts them to Mulligan's. They go on a hunt for a bear sighted in the hills.

INSTALMENT XXX.

ETIQUETTE OF THE WILDS.

The forest about them became dense, impenetrable and the trail dipped steeply down into a cañon that ran for awhile between high walls of rock, ledge upon ledge. Here there was of course no road, but the trail was easy, and the riding, also. About midday they halted for lunch, and directly they had started again, the dogs picked up a scent and went mad with excitement. "He must be quite close, I think," Harmer said. They left the horses, cropping the green grass in the cañon, to the care of the Indians, and led by the frantic dogs, began to climb an almost invisible trail up the now sloping hill of rock to their left.

Harmer was leading. Suddenly he stopped.

"Look out," he said in an undertone to the two behind him. He slung his rifle round and pulled in the baying dogs. They crept round a mass of boulder, and saw the bear.

He had been asleep, in the full glare of the sun which he loved, on a plateau of rock perhaps twelve feet wide. But he had awaked fully, and stood reared up, listening, his head swinging slowly from side to side, searching for his enemy. A black fellow, not so very big, with red eyes of courage and malevolence.

Just beyond him the plateau narrowed again.

"Yours, Miss Follette," Harmer said quietly and held the slavering dogs back so that she could step before him and them.

"Yours, Jerry," she said generously, and before Harmer could order Jerry Flint back, he had pushed in front of him, and fired over Cara's shoulder at the bear now ambling across the mere twenty yards that separated them. The echoes of a roar of rage traveled round the rocky slopes, and the slightly wounded bear was upon Cara, standing foremost and with no time on that narrow path to retreat. She made up her mind coolly and instantly just as, coolly and instantly, she had assessed the failure of Jerry's shot. She did not step backward, but made one step forward, took a firm stance, had her gun in an instant to her shoulder, aimed it . . . and in the next moment the furious beast seized the barrel in claws and teeth, wrenched and tore at it, his warm and fetid breath fanning her face.

In that same instant Jerry Flint turned flat against the face of the huge boulder, covering his eyes instinctively with his arms. Hypnotized by horror, his actions were involuntary, as for a moment they both rocked on the dizzy path, the girl and the bear. Then at once he heard the cry and snarl of the unleashed dogs and the crack of a rifle simultaneously. Harmer had taken the deadly risk, fired round Cara so close that she felt the kick of his rifle, and the bear tumbled down the precipitous slope below, over and over, over and over, at last caught against a tree stump where his carcass stayed. Cara's twisted rifle went with him, and the vociferous, snarling dogs, slipping and slithering, but avid to reach him, followed in their own fashion. Cara was in the hunter's arms.

"Open your eyes, you're safe now!" he gibed to Jerry Flint as he caught her. And his face changed, and his eyes and his voice, too, as he looked down at her; his hands seizing her hands, her arms, her neck and shoulders, to examine.

"You weren't scratched? He didn't reach you?"

"Not a touch," she answered calmly.

She shook all over and was angry with herself.

"Sure? Sure?" He made sure. "A gash from a grizzly isn't too clean. It was a close call." Still with her in a tight arm he looked down to where the panting dogs had nearly reached the bear.

Her voice, cool and clear, but not quite steady: "You'll want to save the skin."

He looked down at her as if debating, and smiling quietly to meet her tremulous smile: "I do. You take care of Mr. Flint,"—he spoke slowly—"and go back to the horses the way we came up. It won't take so long downhill. I'll be after the bear."

He started down the rocky slope, and for a few minutes she stood silent, watching him, wondering. Then she said aloud: "He has climbed many mountains, that man." Then her words seemed to ring in her head, meaning more than they said. Climbing mountains. . . . Climbing mountains! . . . But then she heard Jerry's voice: "If you don't want to watch the mountaineer's performance on this bit of a hill, let's start off ourselves."

She turned on him and after another moment's silence, laid her hands against his shoulders. They stared into each other's eyes, before his fell.

"Jerry, what are you feeling? Tell me."

"Damned angry at that fellow's impudence," he replied, shakily.

"Impudence?"

"He sneered at me openly to you just now."

She was helplessly silent, thinking how little the hunter had actually said, compared with what he might have said.

Her thoughts marshaled. It was inexcusable for a raw hand, a "dude," to accept the offer of a shot at a bear unless he knew he was up to it.

Humility! Jerry would have to learn it.

She must be the teacher, gently, and tenderly, and with fun, showing him the etiquette of the wilds . . . which wasn't so very different from the agreed etiquette of the world when you came to think of it.

So they began the descent, Jerry first, and as Harmer had said, the going, of course, was quicker and easier. It looked a long way down to the group of tiny horses, tiny men, tiny mules, in the cañon, on emerald green grass, but it was not arduous at all.

Soon he recovered enough to speak to her steadily, his voice charged with real emotion.

"You don't seem to understand how I suffered, standing there unable to do anything, thrown aside by that savage Mulligan, so that I couldn't come to your help. . . . Those filthy dogs, half wild themselves, yapping, yelling, nearly pushing me over the edge, rushing between my legs, anyhow, anywhere, directly he let them go. I hid my face rather than see you be torn to pieces."

She said: "He had to loose the dogs before he could aim."

"I should have saved you."

The trail widened a little. She didn't answer, but slid her hand through his arm, and they walked a short way together.

"He wants to make a fool of me—that savage!"

She answered ever so tenderly, trying to save his feelings, and at the same time excuse the backwoodsman's outlook upon such events: "To him you are a fool. He can't appreciate lovely qualities so different to his own."

"I'm sensitive," he said bitterly, "but I'm not a coward."

"My dear, no!"

"Look! What in heaven is the brute doing now?" The track curled, bringing them again in sight of the exact spot where the bear lay, and where the ground sloped less steeply for twenty feet or so. The dogs had reached the dead bear first, but now Harmer was there, too, calling them off, leashing them together, ordering them to lie down. They obeyed. He pulled from a sheath at his leathern belt a straight, keen, hunting knife.

"He's going to get the skin, of course, Jerry."

Two Comedians Give Account of Auto Crash

Mitchell and Durant Tell Different Stories.

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., June 22.—[Special.]—That crackup which ruined their auto when they were sideswiped and turned over near Kearney, Neb., last Sunday, seemingly made its principal impression of the risibilities of Frank Mitchell and Jack Durant, knockabout comedians. Both suffered slight injuries, as did their manager and passenger, Gene Mann.

Mitchell's story today is that he was in the back seat asleep when the auto was spun around and rolled down an embankment. "I paid little attention to the circumstance," said Mitchell, "I thought my pal, Durant, had merely hit me with the automobile."

Durant, who in their vaudeville and movie comedy hits Mitchell with baseball bats, throws him downstairs, jumps on his stomach, and accepts similar little gestures of near-mayhem from Mitchell, had this to say: "Mitchell recovered his senses lying there in the wreck, shook his head and said: 'These five-a-day acts are pretty tough. When do we go on next?'"

Good fortune intervened on behalf of three movie performers in the last two days. Will Rogers was playing a scene in "Judge Priest" on a Fox stage when a huge, heavy chandelier fell. It didn't miss Will by far.

Jean Harlow and Patsy Kelly were going through a scene in "Born to Be Kissed" at Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer when a splintering of wood was heard and a great sun arc light broke from its mooring on the catwalk high over their heads. The great lamp, weighing a couple hundred pounds, plunged toward the actresses, but a safety chain stopped its fall, possibly saving their lives, while the panicky girls ran for safety.

Al Shean of the old Shean and Gallagher comedy team [they were the first to popularize Fifi d'Orsay] is due Monday from New York to appear in "Music in the Air" for Fox, his rôle being the same he created on the stage.

Peggy Fears also arrives Monday to join Fox, her first film assignment under her double capacity contract being as an actress in "Lottery Lover." Later she will take a directorial contract if the Fox management chooses to give it to her.

Mae West has a way with her and no mistake. Twice recently she buzzed around in her new sixteen cylinder car, gathered Emanuel Cohen, production head of her studio; Al Kaufman, his right hand man; Boris Petroff, her own dramatic manager, and her bodyguard from the district attorney's office and whizzed them to some semi-distant city to sneak a preview of her just completed "It Ain't No Sin."

One of the previews was at Bakersfield and the other at San Diego. Each time Mae had her party pick out a neighborhood theater that hadn't the slightest idea she was within 100 miles of the place, walk in when the regular program film was nearing its last reel, and ask the proprietor if he wished to stage the new West opus for nothing as a preview attraction.

The proprietors fell over themselves in eagerness. The chief thing Mae regrets about her new picture is the necessity for cutting out the entire sequence showing her as fanciful queen of the castaways on an island, because the sequence would have represented a movie comeback for George Walsh.

Century and Half of History Lends Glamor to Quilt

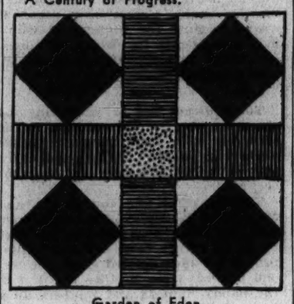
Patterns of this quilt design are 5 cents, stamps or coin. Address Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, or call at one of the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street, Tribune Tower lobby, and Hall of Science, A Century of Progress.



Garden of Eden.

BY NANCY CABOT.

The name of this block is as old as time; and as for the original pattern, it is well over 150 years of age. Two shades of yellow, white, and lavender were used in the original quilt, the history of which is obscure. Considered today, the word futuristic might almost be used as concerns its color and formation.

NEW YORK SOCIETY

New York, June 22.—[Special.]—Mr. and Mrs. Francis P. Garvan will give a supper-dance at Roslyn house, their estate at Wheatley Hills, L. I., tomorrow evening to present their younger daughter, Miss Mabel Garvan, and Miss Emily Hornblower, daughter of Mrs. George S. Hornblower.

Joy Fairman Will Be Bride at Winnetka

Wedding to Edward Hamm to Be Today.

nautical miles and requires from five to six hours of hard sailing to complete it. Malcolm D. Vail, vice commodore of the Chicago Yacht club, expressed the opinion yesterday that the race today would be rather slow, but the speed depends on weather conditions. The race is run under the auspices of the Columbia Yacht club and is open to every boat on the lake. There are prizes for first and second winners in every class, and also for the time class winners in the racing and in the cruising divisions, and a prize to the first boat to cross the finish line at Michigan City.

Interesting News from Bar Harbor.

From Bar Harbor, where there is a fairly large and very smart colony of Chicagoans, comes news of some of the activities there. Miss Eleanor McCormick's wedding on the 30th is of prime importance, of course, although it isn't to be a large one. She will be married to Sargent Collier of Boston in the Church of Our Father at Hulls Cove at 4:30 o'clock. The ceremony will be followed by a reception at Burnmouth, the McCormick residence.

Mrs. Potter Palmer, who with Mr. Palmer and Gordon and Pauline, are at Hare Forest for the summer, is chairman of the publicity committee of the Garden club of Mount Desert, which will act as host to the Garden Club of America at its annual meeting on July 11, 12, and 13.

The Elisha Dyer Hubbards have taken Beaudesert, one of the A. Atwater Kent estates for the summer. The Harold Howards have opened Mossley hall and the Charles B. Pikes have opened their estate there, too. Maj. and Mrs. George G. McMurtry [Louise Hunt] have been visiting her uncle and aunt, the Rev. and Mrs. William E. Patterson.

Mrs. Williams to Be 86 Today

Mrs. Clifford Williams' 86th birthday will be observed very quietly today in her summer home, 465 Adams avenue, Glencoe. Because of the recent death of her sister, Mrs. Gertrude Hoyne Wells, Mrs. Williams is expecting only her most intimate friends to drop in during the afternoon.

The Chauncey B. Borlands are celebrating their thirtieth wedding anniversary today with a quiet family dinner at home tonight. In a few weeks they will be going east to spend the summer at their home in Maine.

Mr. and Mrs. Simeon B. Chapin Jr. of Greenwich, Conn., are being congratulated upon the birth of a daughter, their third, on Thursday. Mrs. Chapin is the former Elsa Bartholomay and is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Bartholomay of Chicago and Lake Geneva.

Louise Prussing to Arrive Today.

Miss Louise Prussing is arriving in Chicago today to be the house guest of Mr. and Mrs. Frank M. Murphy of 1448 Lake Shore drive. Miss Prussing is to appear with the summer dramatic company at Woodstock.

The Dwight P. Greens of Winnetka have returned from a round of visits in the east, centering around Mr. Green's 25th anniversary reunion at Princeton. Mrs. Green saw Dwight Jr. leave on the Leviathan, where he has a job for the summer.

Word has come from Yale university of the election of Henry A. Gardner of Chicago, class of '05, to the Yale alumni board. He will be first vice chairman.

Edmond Mackey Visitor Here.

Edmond Mackey, who lived here until a year ago sharing an apartment on Schiller street with some other young bachelors, was in town for a few days this week. He has gone to St. Louis, but will return to Chicago Wednesday for another few days before going back to New York, where his business duties keep him.

Dr. Giuseppe Castruccio, Italian consul, is sailing for Europe early in August to join his wife and their four children in Hungary. Mrs. Castruccio is vacationing with her father, Count Adalbert Ambro de Adamocz of Presburg, at the fashionable resort at Bratislava.

The Italy America society has issued invitations to a lecture Tuesday evening at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Lewis J. Pollock at 1415 State parkway. The lecture will be an illustrated one by Mrs. Mary E. Raiola of Naples on "Pompeii and the New Excavations."

WASHINGTON SOCIETY

Washington, D. C., June 22.—[Special.]—Mrs. George H. Dern, wife of the secretary of war, was the special guest at luncheon today of Señora de Alfaro, wife of the minister of Panama. Secretary and Mrs. Dern will be joined next week by their daughter, Mrs. Harry Baxter, who is now in Chicago.

The secretary of the treasury, Henry Morgenthau Jr., has joined his family at their farm in Dutchess county, New York.

Printed Voile for Fashion

WOMAN'S AND MISS' DRESS.

Today's dress is very youthful and pretty to wear, besides being easy to make. Paris is using, for such a model, chiffon cotton printed voiles, cotton net in plain, dot, or florals, tub silks, etc. If you want to dress for evening, cut it ankle length and have a décolletage with straps.

The pattern, No. 2796, comes in sizes 14, 16, and 18 years, and 36, 38, and 40 inches bust measure.

Order Blank for Clotilde Patterns.

M-G-M Announces 52 Feature Films for Coming Year

Plans for the distribution of 52 feature films during the next twelve months were discussed yesterday at the convention of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer executives and salesmen at the Drake hotel. The year's production will also include 77 comedy films, musical revues, and novelties, aside from the bi-weekly issues of newsreels. About one-third of the shorts will be made in color.

Pointed out as films which will receive wide-spread promotion were "David Copperfield," "Treasure Island," and "The Barretts of Wimpole Street." The company has announced that more emphasis will be placed on individual stars, in accord with the American public's tendency to idolize featured players.

Theater attendance is definitly on the upgrade, it was reported.

Force Zimbalist to Leave Concert Pay in Russia

New York, June 22.—[Special.]—Five dollars won from fellow travelers playing bridge and chess was practically all the money Efrem Zimbalist, concert violinist, possessed after a series of fifteen concerts in Russia, when he arrived today aboard the American-Scantic vessel Scanyork. Although he was paid large sums for each of his concerts he found he could not bring any of his earnings out of Russia. As a result he opened bank accounts in Leningrad and Moscow.

ENGAGEMENT

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Clifton Morse, 843 Drexel square, announce the engagement of their daughter, Helen Sterling, to Leon Schochet, son of the late Mrs. Bertha Schochet of Chicago.

"Adults Only," Order of Chicago Censors for Mae West Film

Sergt. Harry M. Costello, head of the crime prevention division of the police department, whose duties include supervision of the motion picture censor bureau, said yesterday that the Mae West picture, "It Ain't No Sin," will be shown in Chicago to "adults only." The censor board gave it a "pink slip" he said.

This picture and two others, "The Life of Virgie Winters" and "Her Unborn Child," were banned in Columbus, O., by order of the censor board there on Thursday. Sergt. Costello said the Chicago board had also banned "The Life of Virgie Winters" on the ground it portrays adultery and illegitimacy. The other picture, he said, is an old one and in 1929 it was given a "pink slip" here.

Sergt. Costello said no recommendations had been made to the censor board by any of the organizations in the campaign against salacious pictures, but that the board acted in accordance with its usual policy and standards.

Dr. Myers at Old Immanuel for 39 Years

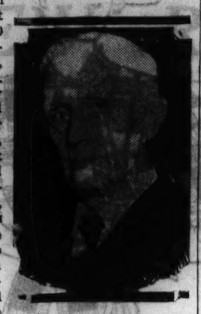
Says His Generation Had Greatest Chance.

Dr. Johnston Myers will celebrate his 39th anniversary as pastor of Old Immanuel Baptist church, 2320 South Michigan avenue, tomorrow. Yesterday as he looked back over that period, the longest ever served by any Chicago pastor, Dr. Myers declared he was glad he lived when he did because until now people have been individuals instead of groups and could achieve fuller lives than under impending collectivist schemes of society.



DR. MYERS.

"My day and generation gave the greatest opportunity for a person to achieve happiness the world has known," said Dr. Myers. "The rising generation will not be as happy because people soon will be herded into groups. No one can ever know the joy that has come to me because of the opportunity given me to help people. When taxation blots out personal charity and people are fed in herds by the government instead of by kindly souls the world is going to lose something belonging to the soul of man. As I look toward that day I say I am glad I lived when I did."

Dr. Myers declared unemployment relief to be the most vital problem the country faces today. He added, however, that hunger and destitution, terrible as they are, are only a part of the problem. Almost equally important with the fact of need is the way need is met.

"Politicians now dole out food instead of men of experience," said Dr. Myers. "The present procedure robs charity of the most beautiful part about it. This makes those receiving doles resentful and breeds antagonism in them toward the government. When people are given one loaf or one dollar without the love of charity in the gift they are angry because they did not get two loaves or two dollars. People love Immanuel church, and unworthy as I am, they love me. There is no resentfulness arising from Immanuel's gifts because love goes with them."

During the 39 years period closing tomorrow, Dr. Myers has given away 14 million meals at Old Immanuel. At the present time his figures show that 1,000 men and upwards of 300 families are being fed daily. Records of Immanuel church show that during Dr. Myers' long pastorate he has conducted 4,056 funerals, and officiated at 2,907 weddings and made more than 10,000 public addresses.

Astor Gives $50,000 Diamond Bracelet to His Bride-to-Be

Newport, R. I., June 22.—[Special.]—John Jacob Astor III. was reported today to have given his new fiancée, Helen Tuck French, a 60 karat diamond bracelet worth $50,000.

This is Astor's second gift to his fiancée, the first being a "small" ring of 32 karats.

It has not become known as yet whether Astor also has given Miss French the $250,000 heirloom ring, which was returned to him recently by his former fiancée, Miss Eileen Gillespie. Hundreds of gifts are arriving at the French home and a battery of detectives has been engaged to guard the gifts. The wedding is set for June 30.

National Museum Shows Miniatures by Chicagoan

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 22.—[Special.]—Prize winning miniatures by Mrs. Edna Nemoede Casterton, Chicago miniature painter, were placed on exhibition today in the national gallery of art at the National museum. Among them are miniatures of Lowden Madlener, grandson of former Gov. Lowden of Illinois; Mrs. A. Watson Armour and son and daughter; Miss Pauline Batchelder, which received the silver medal at the Panama International exposition; Mme. Tamaki Miura, Japanese opera singer; and Miss Goss, which received a medal at the Sesquicentennial exposition at Philadelphia.

CONQUERING CONTRACT

By P. HAL SIMS

Mr. Sims is universally acclaimed the greatest living contract and auction player. He is captain of the renowned "Four Horsemen" team of four, and has won twenty national championships since 1924.

RESPONDING TO ONE NO TRUMP WITH A TWO-SUITER.

With the 5-5-3-0 distribution, you must bid both your suits however weak they may be, and even if your hand contains no face card. After bidding them both, pass your partner's next bid. An exception would be if he were doubled in three no trumps. I would then bid four of the lower ranking suit, giving him the choice between them. You might fulfill the chosen contract if the hands match up at all, and will surely be less helpless than in no trumps.

Naturally, if both long suits are majors you should bid in this manner over three no trumps, even if not doubled. With a void you must bid your suits both (a) on weakness, for safety, and (b) on strength, for slam developments. With as little as

|---|---|
| His. ——— | Cl. Q 10 x |

I would give the opening bidder a chance to slam; if the bidding went one no trump, two spades, two no trumps, I would now bid four diamonds. If he signed off with four spades I would pass, but if he bid five diamonds I would give him a now unmistakable cue bid, five hearts. He could still sign off at five spades if there were palpable duplication and no suit fit or immediate control for slam purposes.

However, with A 10 x or A x x x in spades and two other aces in a sound no trumper such as

|---|---|
| His. A J x | Cl. K J x |

he should bid five spades over my four diamonds; there would be the spade finesse for slam. Interchange heart and club holdings in the opening bidder's hand, and the finesse would be for seven odd, as this change would remove the duplication of values. I would bid the same way with the responding hand if the holdings were:

|---|---|
| Sp. K J x x x | Di. K 10 x x x |
| His. ——— | Cl. Q 10 x |

Whichever long suit is eventually trumps, discards of losers will be obtained on the other suit. Adequate immediate control is the vital slam factor.

With 6-5-1-1, 6-5-2-0, 6-6-1-0 Distribution.

These are distributional freaks of the extremely aggressive type, and the suits must be bid and rebid until a satisfactory game contract is located. Even with no face card at all, game must be attempted in a suit. Major and minor suits are of the same importance in this situation, and it will generally be easier to make five odd in the better fitting declaration than four odd in the other.

In tournaments, of course, the higher ranking suit must be given strong preference. With hands containing two kings—a little more if there is no void—slam prospects are very near. Here again all we need is three aces in the opener's hand, and the responder must direct the bidding carefully to probe the ace situation. A cue bid of the void suit is almost indispensable, but it must be made, if the opener's responses are all minimum, only after both suits have been bid and at least one of them rebid.

If duplication is discovered by the cue bid, drop the bidding at a contract for five odd. Lacking an ace, the responding hand must not make any jump bids until after a game contract has been attained. With

|---|---|
| Sp. K x x x x x | Di. K J x x x |
| His. ——— | Cl. x x |

if the bidding goes one no trump, two spades, two no trumps, three diamonds, three no trumps, now bid four diamonds. Opener can sign off at four spades, and I would then cue with five hearts. He can still sign off at five spades, which must surely be safe enough even if he has the duplicating ace of hearts and only one of the other aces. With any two other aces the slam must be a reasonable chance. Of course, if his no trumper was exactly

|---|---|
| His. A K x | Cl. K Q x |

you could, on the cards, only make four odd. That would be appallingly bad luck. There would still be the chance that the club ace would not be gathered in before you were able to discard the two little clubs on the high hearts. With only one ace opener would not have taken the contract beyond five spades.

Fears of Child May Be a Bid for Attention

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

A mother, greatly disturbed, writes about her two boys. The older who is now 7, was humored by his father after the second baby was born. Saying he was afraid, he would beg his father to stay in the room with him at night. As this was not always possible his bed was moved into his parents' room.

Later, the new baby boy was put to sleep in a room by himself. Then the seven year old's bed was moved into the baby's room. Immediately the old signs of fear revived. The smaller boy is catching the habit. "What," says the mother, "shall I do? I don't want to leave the boy to be terrified. My husband suffered that way, he says. Shall I take my older boy into my room again?"

The answer follows:

It may be that the behavior of your older boy has been caused by the coming of the second baby. You say that he had eating and sleeping difficulties soon after and it may all be traced to this. These successful bids for attention are an unconscious desire on a child's part to keep the important place he has had in his parents' lives until the new baby came.

However, I think all of these habits should be corrected, though I do not believe in any harsh or sudden methods.

The eating troubles can be overcome—it is not in the least too late to change them. I have a leaflet which gives the name of a book on this subject that is brief and very good.

About the sleeping. I think decidedly that the two boys should go to sleep in the same room together without grownups. It is, of course, possible that the 7 year old has some fears, but I think it much more likely that he is unconsciously clinging to a sociable and cozy habit and that he is using fear as an excuse, quite unconsciously.

I would put the two boys in their room and for a while sit there reading or sewing until they go to sleep. A few nights later I would leave a low light burning and sit in the next room with the door open. Then I would try turning out the light, still remaining in the next room.

Mothers Can Do Much to Create Pretty Girls

Three Responsible Periods Depend on Care.

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

We are familiar with the adage about the choice of parents if a beauty one would be. Since, however, one is not entitled to any consultation in the matter, the next best that can be hoped for is that the mamma you draw has the good sense to realize she has it in her power to make a beauty of you. Well, if not a beauty, a mighty good looking girl. Anyway, she can save you from being a homely rabbit.

There are three responsible periods in mother life where her girls' physical gifts can be regulated to a large extent. The prenatal period, or the nine month period before the child is born; the nine month period following the child's birth; and the development period lasting almost through school age, with responsibility emphasis on the periods of cutting temporary teeth and development of the permanent ones. After the school age, the responsibility can be passed on to the girl herself.

Before the child is born mother's blood must supply the minerals that go into teeth and bone construction. Milk, leafy vegetables, whole grain bread, and other whole grain cereal foods must be part of her diet. Her diet and her mode of life during the nursing period will leave a marked impression on the child for good or ill. Heaven only knows how many mouth and face deformities have been prevented by mother's watchfulness against such habits as thumb sucking and rubber pacifiers.

A certain parent, by the way, remarked to a truth-telling relative: "I don't know how that youngster ever got into our family with that mouth of his!" Said the relative: "You made that mouth yourself. You could have made a perfect one just as well." And that's the accusing attitude toward the careless parent today. It should be, too.

The third period of a mother's responsibility is during the development of the temporary teeth, often a most neglected period. Training the child in good food habits is imperative. Exercise for teeth, jaw, and muscles by food that requires chewing becomes highly important. Then regular brushing and visit to the dentist regularly must become the rule if you mothers would have you girls goodlooking.

YALE SWEEPS FOUR CREW RACES WITH HARVARD

VARSITY EIGHT BREAKS RECORD BY TEN SECONDS

President Sees Son's Shell Beaten.

New London, Conn., June 22.—[Special.]—Yale's varsity crew slammed under the railroad bridge at New London tonight in record time to beat Harvard by three lengths and score a clean sweep in the four races of their 72d annual regatta. The Harvard shell had clung like a bulldog all down those long four miles, breaking the old record itself but never able, after the start, to match the smooth, slow stroking power of the Eli crew.

FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT JR.

After three long years of drouth, Yale came to a feast today, its sweep being the first since 1928. On top of last night's victory of the combination crew came an upset in the first race today when the Yale freshmen turned back Harvard's crew, in which Franklin Roosevelt Jr. rowed at No. 6, by a length, and then the junior varsity pounded down the upper two miles to Yale's second triumph of the day, by a margin of almost three lengths. President and Mrs. Roosevelt witnessed the defeat of their son in the morning and also followed the varsity race in the evening.

Both Lower Record.

Tonight's time of 19 minutes 51 4-5 seconds broke by ten seconds the varsity record of 20:02 for the downstream race here, set in 1916 by Harvard. Even the Crimson time of 20:01 3-5 brought that crew in ahead of the best time ever made before in the historic journey from Bartlett's cove to the railroad bridge.

From the first half mile flags to the finish Yale led the way, and after the first two miles had the race in hand. The Elis then dropped to a long, smooth paddle of 28 and 29 strokes to the minutes, rolling along like a liner in midocean.

The Harvard crew, which had led through the first half mile, stuck at its task, rowing two, three, and sometimes four strokes higher, but unable to match the spacing and run in the Yale shell. Harvard rowed well and gamely, with her most distinguished graduate, President Roosevelt, following in the referee's boat, but the Crimson oarsmen simply couldn't bring back to them the big Yale boatload that rode along in front between the almost solid bank of yachts on both sides of the course.

Jam Boats, Line Banks.

None of the Harvard-Yale regattas ever had a more thrilling or perfect setting than this one of today. Drawn by the magnet of the race and the presence of the President, one of the biggest crowds that ever watched the regatta poured into town. There must have been nearly 80,000 persons on the thousand boats along the course, the long observation train, and hanging on the banks and buildings along all four of the miles, in spots sitting on hillsides a quarter mile away.

The blue flag of the President snapped in the breeze at the masthead of Harold Pratt's Dodger II., the referee's boat, morning and afternoon. This morning Mrs. Roosevelt rode the committee boat, but this evening she was also aboard the Dodger.

Course Lined with Craft.

The trappings of the presidential party, brightly decorated officers in dress uniforms, sailors at salute along the rails of boats, salutes from passing craft, set the stage for a colorful scene as this course ever has seen. For this morning's races officials on

SO. CALIFORNIA QUALIFIES 13 IN COLLEGE TRACK

Lyman Breaks Record for Shot Put.

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Los Angeles, Cal., June 22.—Athletes of the far west broke records in the shot put and javelin throw, and passed the bulk of the qualifiers into tomorrow's final track and field events today to dominate the first day of the 13th annual National Collegiate A. A. meet in Olympic stadium.

Stanford, recently crowned champion of the Intercollegiate A. A. A., and Southern California, which won from Stanford in a dual meet this season, sent the largest teams into tomorrow's championship rounds. Louisiana state, with a seven man team defending the 1933 championship, has qualifiers in sufficient key events to assure a close team battle. Indiana, which lost several of its aspirants for points today, still figures to push the three favored teams.

Trojans Qualify 13.

The Trojans qualified thirteen men in ten events, failing to place in only two. Southern California was shut out only in the high hurdles and the javelin throw, placing eight qualifiers in the four flat races and one in the low hurdles. Stanford's strength was concentrated in the field events in which John Lyman surpassed the recognized world's record for the shot put with his heave of 53 feet 7¾ inches. This beats the world's record of 52 feet 7⅛ inches, accredited to Z. Heljasz of Poland in 1932, and tops the record with which Jack Torrance of Louisiana State won the 1933 national collegiate meet at 52 feet 10 inches. Torrance was second to Lyman today at 53 feet 7⅛ inches.

Stanford qualified eight men in seven events. Louisiana State qualified six men in six events.

Fuqua Comes Through.

Indiana placed Ivan Fuqua, who won his heat in the 440 in :48 4-10; Charlie Hornbostel, who won the fastest heat in the 880 in 1:53 8-10, and Wesley Busbee, who was seventh of the field of ten qualifiers in the discus with 144 feet 2¼ inches.

Illinois qualified three men, Hunter Russell winning his heat of the 100 yard dash in :09 9-10. Other successful Illini were Dave Cook and Albert Kamm, shot put qualifiers.

Ralph Metcalfe, the Chicago Negro who runs for Marquette, scampered to victory in his two starts, winning his heat in the 100 in :09 8-10 and the 220 in :21 3-10.

Jack Fleming of Northwestern took second to James Miller of the University of California at Los Angeles, in the closest half mile race of the day, Miller finishing in 1:55 8-10.

Bloor Eligible in 880.

William Bloor carried Ohio State colors into the finals of the 880, taking second place in the second heat. Bloor challenged Glenn Cunningham, the Kansas record setter, but the latter pulled away to a four yard lead in the stretch. Cunningham's time in the half mile was 1:54 1-10.

Don Elser and George Meagher were the only Notre Dame qualifiers, Elser taking seventh position in the shot put and Meagher placing third in the broad jump.

Metcalfe, Cunningham, Hornbostel and Hardin in the 440 race were the only defending champions from the 1933 meet who were able to lead their specialties today.

MAX BAER the Fighting Clown

[This is the sixth of a series of articles on Max Baer, new heavyweight champion.]

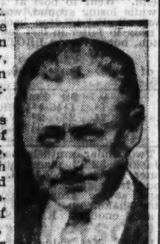
BY EDWARD BURNS.

[Copyright: 1934: By The Chicago Tribune.]

ANCIL HOFFMAN, manager of Max Baer, likes to tell how emotional Max is. Practically without warning, Hoffman says, tears will come to the champion's eyes because of some comparatively trivial incident.

A demon in the ring, but, often as not, a mellow, kindly boy when there's no fighting to be done.

Hoffman was the promoter of the fight Aug. 25, 1930, in which Baer killed Frankie Campbell, brother of Dolph Camilli, whom the Cubs recently traded to the Phillies. And Hoffman had to work his persuasive powers to the utmost to get Max to return to his fistic career after the accident.



ANCIL HOFFMAN.

Schmeling, Schaaf Were in Bad Shape.

Hoffman and Baer admit, perforce, that Max's blows, and nothing else killed Campbell and they refrain from mentioning the tragedy except on rare occasions. One of the exceptions was when, on the Sunday before the Carnera fight, Hoffman wrote one of his series of open letters to Bill Brown, New York boxing commissioner, in which he said he had been at the ringside when "Baer had fatally injured one man and had endangered the lives of two others." Hoffman made this the basis of a request that the commission have an ambulance at the front gate of the Long Island bowl during the Baer-Carnera fight. The request was scoffed at by Brown and then ignored. Since the fight Hoffman has said that his letter was very much on the level and contained no element of flippancy or ballyhoo.

In speaking of the two fighters whose "lives had been endangered by Baer," Hoffman referred to Max's second fight with Ernie Schaaf and the one he had with Max Schmeling a year ago.

Schaaf died some hours after Carnera had knocked him out in the 13th round of a fight in New York, Feb. 10, 1933. Statements that Ernie really died because of aggravation of injuries at the hands of Baer, sustained in a bout on Aug. 31, 1932, at the Chicago Stadium, are deeply resented by the new champion.

There are points of similarity in the Campbell, Schmeling, and Carnera fight with Baer, in that terrific action took place while Baer's adversaries were draped, dazed, and helpless on the ropes. Referee Arthur Donovan, who officiated both the Schmeling and the Carnera fights, stepped in these situations and saved the German and the Italian from possible fatal injury. The referee in the Campbell battle was not so alert.

It is believed that the injury which really caused Campbell's death was suffered in the second round. It is said that in that session Campbell turned his head as he waited for Max to recover from a slip to the canvas. Max sprang up and hit him behind the ear. Three rounds later Baer got Campbell on the ropes and threshed him into insensibility. Frank died early the next morning.

Baer has told friends that "the ghost of Frankie Campbell swept before his eyes," when he had Schmeling on the ropes at the Yankee stadium a year ago June 8, causing him to beg Donovan to stop the fight, just as he did in the 10th and 11th rounds of his championship fight with Carnera.

Max Gave Schmeling a Terrible Pasting.

THE TRIBUNE'S account of the winning sallies mentions nothing of ghosts flying across Baer's horizon, however. Here are excerpts:

"Baer's right swing arched through the atmosphere and hit Schmeling on the jaw with a squashy sound. Schmeling's neck seemed to snap. His body went limp, his legs spread and his Double plays—Boken to Bonura; Chamberlin, Boken to Bonura; R. Ferrell to Cissell. Left on bases—Chicago, 11; Boston, 8. Bases on balls—Gaston, 1; Ostermueller, 4. Struck out—Heving, 1; Ostermueller, 3. Hits—Gaston, 15 in 6 innings [none out in 7th]; Heving, 3 in 2. Wild pitch—Gaston. Losing pitcher—Gaston. Umpires—Owen and McGowan. Time, 2:07.

Boston, Mass., June 22.—[Special.]—Milton Gaston was far from a good pitcher today, and Rookie Fred Ostermueller was a very good one. So the White Sox lost the fourth game of the series to the Red Sox this afternoon, before a ladies' day crowd of 11,000. The score was 11 to 1.

Ostermueller yielded nine hits and walked three, but he was at his best when men were on base. Chicago got runners on in every inning save the eighth, but the only score came when Swanson tripled to start the fifth and came home on an infield out.

Meanwhile the Red Sox kept up a scattering but constant fire on Gaston, and finally ran him out of the game in the seventh, after they had scored eight runs on fifteen hits.

Joe Heving, his successor, pitched well, but three runs were scored on him when the Sox staged one of their comic opera innings.

Even the reliable Jimmy Dykes made two wild throws today. One let a run score and the second permitted the Red Sox to continue a rally in which they scored three more runs.

Evar Swanson, who was back in right field because a southpaw pitched for Boston, made four of Chicago's nine hits.

Hit and Run Play Works.

The Red Sox started taking picks on Gaston in the second. Johnson doubled off the left field wall, but was out at third on Solters' bounder to Chamberlin. Swanson caught Porter's hard liner, but Farrell fled to center and Lary singled to right to score Solters. Ostermueller bounced out to end the rally.

Boston scored again in the third. Cissell singled past Dykes. On the hit and run play, Werber poked a single through the hole left by Boken when he dashed to cover second. That put Cissell on third and he scored on Morgan's grounder to Chamberlin.

Boston added another run in the same inning, when Ferrell doubled and Lary singled. Ostermueller followed with a single, but Cissell forced Lary at third and then allowed himself to be trapped off first by Shea's fast throw to Bonura.

Sox Score In Fifth.

The White Sox finally scored on Ostermueller in the fifth when Swanson pulled an inside pitch down the third base line and stretched the hit into a triple. He scored on Bonura's grounder to second. Simmons walked, but Ostermueller grabbed Boken's low drive and tossed him out.

Boston came right back in the last half with three more. Morgan beat out a bunt and Johnson singled to right. Johnson took second on a wild pitch. Solters bounced to Gaston, and Morgan was run down, but Porter

LEE SHUTS OUT CHAMPIONS FOR SEVEN INNINGS

18 Drives Rattle Off Chicago Bats.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

The Cubs turned loose a salvo of base hits yesterday and thereby knocked a few more letters from the world championship title possessed by New York's Giants. Eighteen drives for a total of 27 bases were touched off against a pair of unfortunate pitchers, so the league leaders had no choice except to take it on the chin by a decisive 15 to 2 score. It made their second straight defeat here and that hadn't happened to them since they visited Wrigley field early in May.

BILL LEE.

The scarcity of Giant runs can be attributed to the presence of Bill Lee, the Cubs' large sized rookie right hander from the American association. In the interest of low score victories which are his specialty, the Louisiana curver kept the Giants away from the plate for seven innings. Then they picked up a couple of useless tallies, one being homer No. 18 by Mel Ott. They needed the runs if only to protect their reputation. When they registered their first tally in the eighth it marked the end of eighteen and two-thirds successive runless innings for them.

Southpaw Chased Early.

The first Giant unfortunate to discover that the Cubs were out for big business was William Watson Clark, who throws with his left hand. Three innings convinced him he was in the wrong place. Lee slapped him for a double that scored a pair of runs in the second. In the next inning Ki Cuyler clubbed him for a homer with a mate on base. Then one Clydell Castleman, a right hander, was dragged in, and his sufferings were acute, as is indicated by five runs in the fourth and a cluster of six in the seventh. Manager Terry, preferring to take a bad beating instead of wasting another pitcher, made the youngster stick to the finish.

The item that really ruined Castleman's effort was a homer. Tiger Klein hit it in the fourth, and it was most opportune, because the bags were loaded at the moment. It was No. 18 of the year for the ex-Philly. Klein also was the author of a double, that netted nothing in the way of runs, and of a single, that assisted in the six run seventh inning. Altogether Klein drove in five runs. Next to him in this particular feature were Cuyler, W. Herman, and Lee, with two apiece.

Waste Two Hits in First.

The Cubs asserted themselves to the extent of a single and double in the first inning, but this didn't fetch them any runs. Billy Herman opened the attack with a single to center. Hack grounded into a double play, and that's what hurt. Klein followed with a two bagger to right, but Babe Herman ended the incident with a grounder to Ryan.

Lee, after having no trouble in the first inning, met up with a large batch of it in the second. A double play proved a life saver. Ott led off with a single to center and Jackson singled to right. Ott went to third while Jackson was being forced on Watkins' roller to Jurges. Ryan also bounced to Jurges and on this tap the twin killing was perpetrated.

Cuyler and Hartnett were disposed of in the Cubs' second, before anything of a promising nature turned up. Then both Hurst and Jurges singled to left. They dashed home when Lee mashied his two bagger against the left field bleacher screen. Billy Herman rolled to Terry for the third out.

The only worth while happening in the Giants' portion of the third was

DEAR WAKE: Back in the '70s all north bound South Clark street horse cars carried a U. S. mail box suspended over the front dashboard for the accommodation of residents along the line who deposited letters after signalling the driver to stop when approaching a street intersection.

Upon arriving at the alley on Clark street between Adams and Monroe the box was turned over to a postoffice employé who placed it on a push cart and wheeled it through the alley to the rear platform of the general postoffice. This was located in the old Honoré building, present site of the Marquette building. This service to residents was discontinued during the postmaster generalship of Gen. John M. McArthur, 1877-'78. Along about 1878 railroad fares were 5 cents a mile. There was public agitation for a reduction, particularly downstate, but the railroads stood steadfast. So Prof. Scoville of the University of Illinois went to Paxton, Ill., on the I. C., where a coachload of passengers boarded the train for Champaign.

When the conductor came around he was offered a fare of 3 cents a mile, which he refused. There were too many to put off so the train continued to Champaign rather than block trafic. There the party got off. Soon afterward a 3 cent fare was inaugurated. W. F.

He has smiled for 30 years. We'll wager he's still smiling and saying "It's a good thing it was only a leg instead of my tongue or my pencil arm." While in New York the degree of Pocahontas was holding a convention at our hotel. We do not know its purposes, but many ladies in the elevators carried bows, quivers of golden arrows, and other insignia of tribal life.

On one elevator trip we encountered a lady of rather generous proportions with avoirdupois somewhere between that of Max Baer and Primo Carnera. Across what would have been her chest, if a man, was a broad silken band. On it in vivid lettering was the word "Papoose." Observing we were regarding the band, she said, "Yes, Pops, we're having a large time."

Only 3 Challenge Mata Hari Today in Illinois Oaks Race

BY FRENCH LANE.

Mata Hari for the time being has decided to have nothing to do with those disturbing boy chums of her age and in consequence has made a 5 o'clock tea date this afternoon with her girl friends. The powder puff gathering is in the nature of the Illinois Oaks to be run for the eighth time at Washington Park this afternoon. From the number of acceptances for this party it is easy to come to the conclusion that Mata Hari is not so popular among the ladies of the turf.

Only three found it convenient to spend as much as two minutes with the fashionable lady from Dixiana Stable, and from the way Mata Hari has come up to this race they may be sorry they decided to spend even that much time with her. She so completely dominates the gathering that she probably will be the shortest priced favorite of the Washington Park season, which comes to a close with the annual runnng of the Oaks.

Record Not Brilliant.

It is possible Mata Hari may be living on somewhat of a false reputation. If this is true, it will come to light in the running of the Oaks today. Her record this season isn't a brilliant one, possibly because 3 year old fillies seldom beat the colts of their age at this time of the year.

All the races she has lost have been won by Cavalcade. They were the Kentucky Derby, American Derby and Detroit Derby. To be beaten by a champion is no disgrace whatever, and that's the way Mata Hari and her connections feel about the situation. It is the reason she is being sent out in the Oaks today.

Everybody knows that Mata Hari cannot beat Cavalcade out of the 3 year old championship. Still it always has been quite an honor to win the 3 year old filly championship and Mata Hari will begin galloping toward that goal in the Oaks this afternoon.

Muddy Track Likely.

The Shandon Farm stable's Dust Girl is expected to furnish whatever contention develops in the race. This miss has demonstrated lately that she is in splendid condition and will have a following because the proprietors of Shandon Farm are Richard and Patrick Nash. Long Bit and Marcella H. will be the extreme outsiders in the betting.

The race probably will be decided over a muddy track. As a 2 year old Mata Hari could run just about as fast in the mud as she could in good going. She has not been tested in the mud this year.

ENZO FIERMONTE IS THROUGH WITH RING "FOREVER"

Westhampton Beach, L. I., June 22.—[Special.]—Enzo Fiermonte, light heavyweight boxer and husband of Mrs. Madeline Force Astor Fiermonte, today announced his retirement from the ring "forever."

He made the announcement to reporters at the big ocean front house which he and his wife leased recently and where he started training in preparation for a fight in New York with Maxie Rosenbloom, light heavyweight champion. This contest was barred recently by the state boxing commission on the grounds that Fiermonte was not in condition.

RECORD FLEET OF 83 RACES TODAY TO MICHIGAN CITY

400 Sailors in Columbia Yacht Club Event.

A record fleet of 83 craft—63 sailboats and 20 power boats—will leave Van Buren street gap this morning in the Columbia Yacht club's 43d annual race to Michigan City. The first boats will be sent away on the 32½ nautical mile trip at 9:30 o'clock.

Nearly 400 men and women will form the crews of the yachts, which will be convoyed by three coast guard subchasers. This group of sailors is considerably larger than last year, when 52 boats were entered.

As in all yacht races in which different types of craft are entered, the first boat to finish is not always the winner. A maze of complicated handicaps must be scored and figured hours after the finish to determine the winners.

Three Motor Classes.

The motor yacht fleet is divided into three groups according to speed: class A for 8-9 mile per hour yachts; class B for those making 9 to 10 m. p. h., and class C for 11 to 13 m. p. h. and over. Each cruiser must travel at precisely the speed it has declared on the entry blank. The skipper who finishes the closest to that speed is the winner in his class.

Walter J. Eden is general chairman of the race committee. The two committees under him will handle sail and power boats. Frank B. Weaver, William Moore, and George R. Clark will have charge of the windjammers, while I. J. Atwood, Ian McKenzie, and Bill Parks will judge the cruisers.

The 110 foot coast guard subchasers which will carry the race committee to Michigan City and back are the 432, in charge of Commander F. C. Huntoon; the 412, commanded by Lieut. E. F. Kiefer, and the 64, under Lieut. R. C. Lowes Jr.

Two Women Skippers.

Two sailing craft have been entered by feminine skippers. Miss Scholle Reber will be at the helm of the cruising yacht Picaroon and Mrs. Nina Y. Cobb is to pilot Nira. These are class C boats.

Red Woodworth, owner of the yawl Circe, joined the Columbia Yacht club yesterday and entered the race. He is a former Northwestern university football star.

The boats entered and their owners:

FIVE HORSES IN DWYER TODAY AT AQUEDUCT

New York, June 22.—[Special.]—The Dwyer, at a mile and a half and one of the east's longest tests for 3 year olds, will be run tomorrow afternoon as the feature at Aqueduct. Five horses are entered for the $5,000 added purse. The Manhassett stable's Rose Cross, which ran a good race in the Belmont and then came back at Aqueduct with a victory, seems best suited by the distance and looms as the probable favorite.

Mrs. Charles Shipman Payson, daughter of Mrs. Payne Whitney, is a partner in the Manhassett stable and Rose Cross is the son of St. Germans, which Mrs. Whitney presented to her daughter. Mrs. John Hay Whitney, wife of Mrs. Whitney's son, has what looks like the second choice in Singing Wood, surprise winner of the Futurity, Withers, and Queens County handicap.

CAMPBELL SETS TRACK RECORD AT LOGAN SQUARE

Shorty Campbell of Pasadena, Cal., broke the track record by a second in the final contest of the scratch race at the Logan Square motorcycle oval last night. He beat Jimmie Gibb and Mark Porter in a finish that was so close a blanket could have covered the three leaders. Campbell's time for the four laps was 76.6 seconds.

Mark Porter, however, retained the lead in the race standings as he won the handicap final and was third in the scratch. He was beaten in the two lap match race by Delbert Morrison. Morrison showed an extra burst of speed in the stretch and won by a few feet.

Kenneth Brewer of San Diego beat J. W. Fergusson of Toronto in the first match race. Andy Koslow again won the class B contest.

TAKES WOMEN'S GOLF CROWN.

Lincoln, Neb., June 22.—(AP)—Mrs. Carl Rohman of Lincoln defeated Mrs. C. B. Baugh of Omaha today, 4 and 2 to win the Nebraska women's golf title.

FORMER MANAGER OF CORBETT BACK IN BOXING GAME

New York, June 22.—(AP)—William A. Brady, a leading figure of the glamorous days of boxing when John L. Sullivan roared his offers to lick any man in the house and Gentleman Jim Corbett set new fashions in the fight world, came back to the game today.

Joining with his old friend, Charley Harvey, in the management and backing of Young Steve Hamas, one of the contenders for Max Baer's heavyweight crown, the 71 year old dean of theater promoters deposited his personal check for $2,500 with the New York state athletic commission to guarantee Hamas' challenge for a title match.

CANZONERI AND KLICK O. K. FOR BOUT WEDNESDAY

New York, June 22.—[Special.]—Tony Canzoneri and Frankie Klick, San Francisco, were pronounced in perfect physical condition for their bout Wednesday night by a New York state athletic commission physician today. The winner will challenge Barney Ross for his lightweight championship.

Canzoneri, who lost the 135 pound title to Ross, came to New York from his camp at Summit, N. J. Klick drove from Pompton lakes. The fight will be held at Ebbets field. A large crowd watched the examination of the boxers.

†Disqualified. Time, :24 4-5, :50, 1:04. Two dollar mutuels paid: Winder, $11.68 straight, $6.58 place, $3.04 show; Shan, $8.20 place, $3.56 show; Brother Lou, $2.40 show. Winner trained by B. M. Rosenheim. Went to post at 2:17.

WINDER, moving up steadily on turn while losing ground, was hard ridden to stave off SHAN. Latter had good early speed, was allowed to drop back after a quarter, lost much ground, and came again in stretch only to falter in last few strides. SPARKLING ROSE set steady pace until reaching stretch, bore over on BROTHER LOU when tiring, for which he was disqualified.

SECOND RACE—Seven furlongs out of chute. Purse $800. Net value to winner, $600; second, $125; third, $50; fourth, $25.

| Horse and jocky— | Wt | PP | St | ¼ | ½ | Str | Fin | Owner | Eq odds |

Time, :23 4-5, :49 1-5, 1:15. Two dollar mutuels paid: Chief Bunting, $3.48 straight, $2.98 place, $2.36 show; Monks First, $5.28 place, $3.68 show; Ramus, $4.78 show. Winner trained by A. B. Letellier. Went to post at 3:07½. At post 5¼ minutes.

CHIEF BUNTING, at home in the going and in his best form, broke fast after being fractious at post, held away throughout under mild urging, and was eased up near finish. MONKS FIRST followed leader closely, challenged at top of stretch, but was not good enough. RAMUS could not trouble leaders, but easily held others safe.

FOURTH RACE—Five furlongs. Purse $800. Net value to winner, $600; second, $125; third, $50; fourth, $25.

BROWNS TIE A'S, 3-3.

Philadelphia, Pa., June 22.—(AP)—The Athletics and St. Louis Browns played to a 3 to 3 tie today. Darkness and a storm halted the game in the first half of the eighth inning. St. Louis averted defeat in the sixth when Higgins' wild throw put West on base, and Pepper followed with a home run that wiped out the A's 3 to 1 lead.

HIGH LIFES AND MILLS WILL PLAY BENEFIT TODAY

Two benefit games will be played this afternoon at Mills stadium, Lake street and Kilpatrick avenue. The proceeds will be given to Mrs. Nell Boissy, widow of Edward Boissy, who died last Tuesday. Boissy was president of the Midwest Baseball league. In the first game, which will start at 1:30 o'clock, the T. J. Bowler girls' softball team will meet the Dvorak Zippers, and the Miller High Lifes will play the Mills in the second contest.

Either Walter Senstock or Frank Narbot, former Lindblom High school athlete, will pitch for the High Lifes. Manager Bill Harley expects to use several pitchers against the High Lifes because of a double header with the Logan Squares tomorrow afternoon on the same field. Lefty Hass may start the game for the Mills and will be relieved by Speed Bowers or Lefty Sullivan.

SHIELDS, WOOD TO PLAY IN QUEEN'S CLUB NET FINAL

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, June 22.—Frank Shields and Sidney B. Wood Jr. advanced to the final round for the men's singles championship in the Queens club tournament today. Shields defeated George M. Lott Jr., 6-4, 6-4, while Wood triumphed over Lester Stoefen, 2-6, 18-16, 6-3.

There will be no changes in the lineup of the American team in Davis cup competition because of the result of today's matches, Richard N. Williams, nonplaying captain of the squad, said after the matches.

GEORGE PIPGRAS IS PLACED ON RETIRED LIST

K. M. Landis, commissioner of baseball, announced yesterday that he had granted the application of George Pipgras, veteran pitcher, to be placed on the voluntarily retired list of the Boston Red Sox. Pipgras, who is 35 years old, said illness had forced him to give up pitching.

Pipgras broke into the major leagues in 1923, signing with the New York Yankees. He remained with the Yankees until the early part of last season, when he was sold to the Red Sox.

Braves Fall Before Pirate Attack, 7 to 6

Pittsburgh, Pa., June 22.—(AP)—The Pirates won a 7 to 6 victory over the Boston Braves today in a game in which the umpires frequently were in trouble. The Pirates came from behind to score three runs in the sixth inning, which, coupled with Birkofer's steady relief pitching, was enough to win.

Boston routed Heinie Meine with a five run attack in the fourth inning, in which play was delayed for 15 minutes while the players argued with the umpires. With one out and Hogan on first for the Braves, Pitcher Betts lined to Lavagetto. Umpire Rigler ruled Betts out, but Umpire Magerkurth overruled him, allowing a double play. The Pirates left the field, but Manager Bill McKechnie protested hard and long. Magerkurth then reversed himself and let Rigler's decision stand. The Braves went on to score five runs.

PHILS BEAT REDS, 4 TO 2.

Cincinnati, O., June 22.—(AP)—An intended sacrifice today cost the Cincinnati Reds a chance to make it three straight for the first time since the season opened. As a result, the Phillies won, 4 to 2, in ten innings.

With two on and none out, Pool attempted a bunt that the Phils turned into a double play. Comorosky then flied out. The Phils won in the tenth when Allen beat out a bunt, Todd doubled, and Jeffries singled to score both runners.

SHUTE, SARAZEN, SMITH PRACTICE FOR BRITISH OPEN

SANDWICH, England, June 22.—(AP)—The defending champion, Denny Shute, Philadelphia, and two challengers, Gene Sarazen and MacDonald Smith, put in practice rounds today over the Royal St. Georges course preparatory to the qualifying rounds next Monday and Tuesday for the British open golf championship.

A strong wind that swept across the course did not bother the three invaders from America, and spectators said they played in top form. Sarazen, winner of the British title in 1932, the same year that he won the American open for the second time, is the betting favorite to succeed Shute.

Dempsey Leaves Hospital; Infected Finger Improved

New York, June 22.—[Special.]—Jack Dempsey, who last Wednesday entered Polyclinic hospital for treatment of an infected finger, left today after physicians had announced the operation would not be necessary.

RULES OF CONTEST—Pick the nine players who you think will be in the starting lineup for the American league when the inter-league game is played in New York July 10. Then do the same for the National league. Send your selections, accompanied by a 300 word letter explaining the reasons for your choices, to the All Star Game Editor, Chicago Tribune. The winner will receive $250 in cash. Players must not be switched from their regular positions. The two major league baseball writers and the sports editor of The Tribune will decide the winner. Points considered will be accuracy of the selections, neatness and soundness of reasons. In case of a tie a duplicate award will be given. Entries close July 4.

Even Clowning Max Is Likely to Cry a Bit

arms fell as he swayed against the ropes near Baer's corner.

"Baer's seconds, Ancil Hoffman and Mike Cantwell, hopped upon the little ladder in the corner, howling insanely at him to go on punching. Baer saw that Schmeling was gone and tore into him, slugging him on the head with both hands. Schmeling tried to drop his head and bring up his arms, but Baer beat him along the ropes with tremendous slams to the jaw.

"After maybe ten seconds of this torture Schmeling wiggled out into the open ring and there another big right smash hit Schmeling. He fell on his side with a thump and Baer, remembering his manners after many fouls which had cost him four rounds in the scoring, retired to the farthest corner waiting for the German to get up.

"Somehow, Schmeling got up on a count of nine, but Baer was all over him, throwing heavy punches at his head. Schmeling was going into a swoon on the ropes when Arthur Donovan, the referee, stepped in and shoved the winner away.

"Even Joe Jacobs, one of the loudest free style squawkers in the prize fight profession, had no protest. He realized a final punch, which Donovan had forestalled, might have killed his man and his face was white and horrified as he led his fighter to the angle of the ropes and put the stool beneath him."

He Sneers Without Knowing It in the Ring.

In his ring sports Baer wears a fiendish grin which switches to a clownish, though somewhat sneering and smurking smile when he is coasting. He says that he is not conscious of his sneering leer or his less demonlike smile.

In the eighth round of his fight with Carnera, however, Max was able to take some stock of his snorting behavior. The eighth was one of the rounds in which observers believed Max was tiring fast and as he snorted and spat he let one blast of saliva go into Carnera's face. But that was a bit of ring action that he hadn't intended, he since has said. He promptly apologized and the fight went on with Carnera enjoying a shade during the remainder of the session.

Baer's idea of the most effective insult is ridicule. For instance, he got much satisfaction out of the offense that Carnera took when, at a physical examination in the offices of the New York boxing commission, he plucked hairs off the then champion's chest, accompanied by the "He loves me; he loves me not" rigmarole.

Deputies Vote $32,500 for French Olympic Squad

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, June 22.—The chamber of deputies today voted 500,000 francs [approximately $32,500] for preliminary expenses of French athletes in the 1936 Olympic games, which will be held in Berlin.

Kamrath and Grant Advance in Net Doubles

Play in the Western tennis tournament yesterday at the River Forest Tennis club was confined to one men's and three women's doubles matches, the full schedule being held over until today because of rain.

Bryan Grant of Atlanta and Karl Kamrath of Austin, Tex., the second seeded team, advanced to the semi-finals by taking a match from the Ball brothers, George and Russell of El Paso, 6-4, 8-6, 9-7. The scores belie the actual closeness of the contest for the winners, while off form had only to worry about George, Russell being away off his best game.

The winners will meet the victor of the Braudt-Shostrom and Ruehl-McIninch match, which will be played at 11 o'clock this morning.

Dr. Esther Bartosh and Marianne Hunt of Los Angeles, Louis Hofmeister, Chicago, and Eunice Dean, San Antonio, and Catherine Wolf, Elkhart, and Eugenie Sampson, Chicago, were doubles teams to reach the semi-finals yesterday, all in straight sets.

The fourth duo will be the winner of the Carney-Rose and Bishop-Smith match, slated for 2 o'clock this afternoon.

MEN'S DOUBLES.
[Quarter finals.]

Bryan Grant, Atlanta, and Karl Kamrath, Austin, Tex., defeated George and Russell Ball, El Paso, 6-4, 8-6, 9-7.

WOMEN'S DOUBLES.

Dr Esther Bartosh and Marianne Hunt, Los Angeles, defeated Ruth Reese and Lucille Daily, Saginaw, 6-2, 6-3.

Louis Hofmeister, Chicago, and Eunice Dean, San Antonio, defeated Gracyn Wheeler, Santa Monica, and Eugenie Sampson, Chicago, 6-4, 6-0.

Catherine Wolf, Elkhart, and Helen Fulton, Chicago, defeated Margaret Hart and Geraldine Lechtner, Toledo, 6-4, 6-3.

Vernon Nelson Is Stopped by Henry Rothier

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Henry Rothier, Intercity and International Golden Gloves champion, continued his impressive march through the local list of welterweight professionals last night at the Northwest stadium. Rothier defeated Vernon Nelson of Norfolk, Neb., when Referee Tommy Gilmore stopped the fight after two minutes of fighting in the eighth and last round because of a bad cut above Nelson's left eye.

Nelson and his manager were insistent that he should have been permitted to continue the remaining minute, but, although the Nebraskan, in his first appearance in Chicago, put up a pleasing, aggressive scrap, it is likely that Rothier would have been awarded a decision.

Rothier's Defense Strong.

Nelson's problem last night was to find a target for his sweeping right hand. Rothier's defensive tactics, his bobbing and weaving, kept Nelson from connecting with many of his swishing right hand blows. And when he did connect Henry was either rolling with the punch or stepping inside. Rothier counted effectively to pile up many points.

The best round was the sixth, in which both fought from start to finish and in which Nelson's eye was injured. The Nebraskan also opened a small cut over Rothiers' eye at the same time, which, however, was not as serious.

Attendance last night was estimated at 800 and receipts at $600.

Baldwin Beats Gould.

In the preliminary bouts, all between Chicago boxers, Gary Baldwin defeated Johnny Gould in four rounds; Mickey Misko knocked out Johnny Simpson in two rounds ,and Lon Terry and Eddie Chinski fought six rounds to a draw.

Toots Estes of Dallas, Tex., and Bill Brooks, New York, members of a Canadian wrestling troupe which recently has made its headquarters in Chicago, staged an exhibition to complete last night's program. Brooks threw Estes with less than one minute of the stipulated thirty minute period remaining, but prior to this each had practiced all the arts of boxing as well as wrestling to entertain the crowd.

DUTRA AND HAGEN PLAY TOMORROW AT MOHAWK CLUB

Olin Dutra of California, new national open champion, will make his first Chicago appearance since his victory at Merion at the Mohawk Country club tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock. The big Los Angeles professional, and his partner on the barnstorming tour he is now undertaking, Walter Hagen, will separate for an eighteen hole exhibition match, Olin pairing with Tommy Armour of Medinah, while Hagen will team with Lew Waldron, Mohawk professional.

An innovation in golf matches is promised for the galleries tomorrow. Helen

M. GREENEBAUM OF INVESTMENT COMPANY IS DEAD

Leader in Civic Affairs and Business.

M. E. Greenebaum, veteran Chicago banker, president of the Greenebaum Sons Investment company, died late yesterday afternoon at his home in the Shoreland hotel. He had been ill for a long time, but the direct cause of death was an attack of pneumonia.

M. E. GREENEBAUM.

Mr. Greenebaum was born in Chicago on March 17, 1858. The family home then was at 105 Third avenue, which is now Plymouth court. His early education was gained at the Jones school, Clark and Harrison streets, and the Haven school on 14th street, then known as the Chicago High school.

In 1874 Mr. Greenebaum became a clerk in the banking house founded by his father, Elias, in 1855. Three years later he was admitted to the firm of Greenebaum Sons, with his father and his brother Henry as partners. Thereafter he was engaged constantly in banking and became a recognized authority on Chicago real estate.

Stands by Concern.

Mr. Greenebaum was chairman of the board of the Bank of America at the time it was merged, in 1928, with the Central Trust company. He was chosen vice chairman of the latter institution. Mr. Greenebaum also served as a director of the Chicago Title and Trust company.

Last October, in a letter to the stockholders of the Greenebaum Sons Investment company, Mr. Greenebaum related that he and his brother, James E. Greenebaum, had put their personal fortunes of more than $5,000,000 into the company to carry it through the depression.

There was no legal obligation to do this, but the veteran banker explained that he felt a moral obligation to "save the good name" the family had built up over three-quarters of a century.

Active in Philanthropy.

Mr. Greenebaum was active in civic and philanthropic organizations. He was on the finance committee of the Municipal Voters' league. For twenty-three years he was president of the Sinai congregation and was on the boards of the Hebrew Union college, the Jewish Theological seminary, the Michael Reese hospital and the Federation of Reform Jewish congregations. He belonged to the Standard, Ravisloe, Lake Shore and Covenant clubs.

Mr. Greenebaum is survived by his wife, two sons, and a daughter. Funeral services will be held at 11 a. m. Monday in Sinai temple.

Wilmington, Del., June 22.—(AP)—Frank P. H. Sholly, city auditor of Wilmington, died suddenly today of a heart attack. He was 52.

LITTLE ORPHAN ANNIE: Objection Overruled

KILLED BY AUTO PASSING AFTER TWO CARS CRASH

Hurled out of one automobile, John Johnson, 50 years old, 922 Grove street, Evanston, a gardener, was struck and killed by another car early today. He was riding in a car driven by Mrs. Helen Dracos of the Grove street address. At Crawford avenue and Dempster street, Niles Center, her car collided with one driven by A. R. Carnan Jr., 2516 Prairie avenue, Evanston. Johnson was thrown upon the pavement. As he was arising he was run down by a machine driven by Peter L. Dodge, 721 Foster street, Evanston. Johnson was dead when taken to St. Francis hospital.

This death increased the Cook county motor toll for the year to 562.

Two men died yesterday in St. Margaret's hospital, Hammond, of injuries suffered when an automobile swerved into a safety zone at 112th street and Indianapolis boulevard, Robertsdale, a Hammond suburb. Another man was killed instantly, and a fourth injured.

The three were Nicholas Schulp, 38 years old, 612 153d street, East Chicago, and Adam Moveic, 30, 2246 Schrage avenue, Whiting, who died in the hospital, and Michael Ruden, 44, of 1542 121st street, Whiting, who was killed outright. Because of mistaken identification, Ruden for hours was erroneously thought to be Lawrence Ausvery, 26, of 10504 Avenue L, South Chicago. Ausvery was not involved in the accident.

Schulp, Moveic, Ruden, and Frank Owczarak, 41, of 410 Grover avenue, Hammond, were waiting for a street car in Robertsdale when an automobile driven by Thomas Neveraske, 24, of 1114 148th street, East Chicago, cut in between the street car and another machine. The next instant he swerved into the safety zone where the four men were standing and struck all of them. Owczarak, the survivor, suffered leg fractures. Neveraske was subsequently charged with manslaughter and driving while intoxicated.

Robt. E. M. Cowie, Former Railway Express Head, Dies

Altadena, Cal., June 22.—(AP)—Robert E. M. Cowie, 71, former president of the railway express agency who retired from a business career in 1932, died at his home today after a short illness. Cowie was first vice president of the Westcott Express company, chairman of the board of the Golconda Petroleum company, director of the Chase National bank, New York, and a member of its advisory board; member of the board of managers of the Cuba-Mexican syndicate, and a director of the Citizens National bank of Los Angeles.

FRANK HUMMEL, D. C. HEATH CO. EXECUTIVE, DIES

Frank F. Hummel, vice president of D. C. Heath and company, textbook publishers, died yesterday in his home at 5642 Dorchester avenue. He was 68 years old.

Mr. Hummel, a native of Marion, Ind., was graduated from Butler university in 1893. He taught in the Indiana public schools from 1893 to 1899, when he became connected with the MacMillan company. In 1910 he joined the Heath company as manager of the Chicago office. He had been vice president since 1927.

Mr. Hummel was a trustee of Butler university and a member of the Indiana society. He was one of the organizers of the South Central association.

Surviving Mr. Hummel are his wife and one daughter.

F. J. REYNOLDS, ARMOUR OFFICER, ENDS OWN LIFE

(Picture on back page.)

Fred James Reynolds, 53 years old, vice president of Armour & Co., ended his life by shooting himself in the head in a bathroom of his home at 1020 Bluff road, Glencoe, yesterday. A coroner's jury found that a temporarily unbalanced mind, due to ill health, was the cause.

Mr. Reynolds was found by his wife, Marjory, lying unconscious, a bullet wound in his head and a pistol beside him. He died in the Highland Park hospital.

Mrs. Reynolds testified at the inquest that her husband had been suffering with a streptococcus infection. He had been ill about three months and away from his office six weeks. His health worried him and he complained that he could not sleep at night. She said there was no other possible reason for the suicide.

Mr. Reynolds had been with Armour & Co. 38 years. Since 1931 he had been a vice president in charge of the purchasing department.

Besides the widow, Mr. Reynolds is survived by a brother, Edward F. Reynolds of Berwyn, and four children, Fred J. Reynolds Jr., Marjory, Dorothy, and Muriel.

INQUEST DELAY GRANTED WIFE IN POLICE SLAYING

The inquest into the death of Policeman James Morrissey, who was shot by his wife, Margaret, in their home at 843 West 58th street, was continued to next Wednesday, after brief testimony was taken yesterday from policemen who took Mrs. Morrissey into custody.

They testified she had confessed the shooting to them, and said it was done in a quarrel over what she did with a $1 bill. The continuance was granted at the request of the woman's attorney, who said he wished more time to familiarize himself with the case.

At another inquest, a coroner's jury recommended that Mrs. Gertrude Driscoll, 6531 South Whipple street, be held to the grand jury on a charge of manslaughter, for the fatal shooting of her husband, Daniel, owner of a saloon. Mrs. Driscoll said she became angry when Driscoll stayed at his saloon all night, leaving her alone.

Paul E. Hartung, Realty Dealer of North Side, Dies

Paul E. Hartung, for 25 years a real estate dealer in the north Edgewater district, died yesterday at his home, 7641 Bosworth avenue, after a long illness. Mr. Hartung, 55 years old, was a graduate in 1899 of the University of Notre Dame. The widow, Elizabeth, two sons, Carl and Paul Jr., and two daughters, Lucille and Mrs. Elizabeth Wolf, survive. Funeral services will be held Monday in the chapel at 6959 North Clark street. Burial will be in Rosehill cemetery.

Robert D. Campbell of Alleghany Steel Is Dead

ORILLIA, Ont., June 22.—(AP)—Robert D. Campbell of Pittsburgh, vice president of the Alleghany Steel company, died at a hospital here last night of a heart attack by which he was stricken while on a pleasure trip to Ahmic lake yesterday. Campbell was about 67. His widow arrived here today to make arrangements for the funeral, to be held at Pittsburgh Saturday.

Phone Company Collector Shot and Robbed of $180

Attempting to save $180 he had collected on his route, William C. Collier, 47 years old, 2156 Montrose avenue, a collector for the Illinois Bell Telephone company, was shot in the right shoulder yesterday by one of two bandits. The wound was slight and the bandits fled with the $180. The holdup occurred in Harry Neider's poultry shop at 4143 Lincoln avenue.

EVANSTON HOTEL HELD UP.

Three bandits, one carrying a shotgun and two toting revolvers, held up John Lange, night clerk in the Evanshire hotel at 860 Hinman avenue, Evanston, early today. At their commands Lange handed over $25, the contents of the office cash drawer.

News of the Radio Stations

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

The all-star baseball game between picked teams of the National and American leagues, to be played Tuesday, July 10, will be broadcast, Commissioner K. M. Landis disclosed yesterday. W-G-N will carry the big game beginning at 12:30 p. m. Both networks will pipe the broadcast to all parts of the country from New York. There will be no commercial sponsor, and a clause in the broadcast agreement provides that the networks must feed it to any station that requests it. The broadcast reporters remain to be chosen. Though Ted Husing and Graham McNamee may contribute to the broadcast, they will not report the game itself, Mr. Landis stated.

Mrs. Roosevelt's new radio show will cost that bed company about $7,500 per program—possibly more. Mrs. Roosevelt's share, reported to be $3,000 for each broadcast, will go to charity. The 18 stations carrying the broadcast will collect a total of $3,000 or more. Josef Koestner's orchestra and soloists will divide approximately $1,500 as their portion.

After an absence of nearly a year Kate Smith will return to the air with a CBS sustaining program about the middle of July. Al Jolson, another absentee, will be back next Thursday evening in the Paul Whiteman Music hall. Paul launches a new program this evening at 10:30 over WMAQ-NBC to be called Whiteman's Saturday Night Variety show. In addition to his own circus of entertainers Whiteman will present several singing society debs.

Ed East and Ralphe Dumke, who got their start on W-G-N as the Sisters of the Skillet, are emerging as playwrights and producers. Their first effort is titled "Fast Fortune" and they plan to have it on view with a repertory company next month.

George Burns and Gracie Allen are to sail for Europe this morning on the liner Rex. Mrs. Jack Pearl, wife of radio's Baron Munchausen, will accompany them. Last minute inanities of Gracie will be aired by WABC [860 kilos.] aboard the liner at 10:15 this morning. There's no local outlet.

Intourist, the soviet travel agency, has auditioned a flock of American jazz bands with a view to choosing one to play at what is called Europe's largest hotel, soon to be opened on the banks of the Neva in Leningrad. They are still looking.

Ruth Etting's crops were burned out by the drouth on her David City, Neb., farm. Perhaps that is why she is going back on the air soon on the Pacific coast, after she had announced that she would rest for the summer.

W. B. CAMPBELL, ACCOUNTANT, IS TAKEN BY DEATH

New York, June 22.—(AP)—William Bynner Campbell, 52, executive senior partner of the firm of Price, Waterhouse & Co., accountants, died today after a prolonged illness.

During the world war Campbell served in the treasury department at Washington.

A native of England, Campbell became connected with Price, Waterhouse & Co. in Chicago in 1911, becoming a partner in charge of the Detroit office in 1917.

Mrs. William H. Thornton to Be Buried Here Today

Mrs. William H. Thornton, 57 years old, 5916 West Washington boulevard, died in her summer home at Douglas, Mich., Thursday morning, according to word received here yesterday. Her husband, a retired lumber merchant, and two daughters, Miss Mary Thornton and Mrs Leonard Lamb, survive. Burial will be at Rosehill cemetery at 2 o'clock today.

Mrs. Rudolph Schiffman, Millionaire's Widow, Dies

Pasadena, Cal., June 22.—(AP)—Mrs. Rudolph Schiffman, widow of the millionaire patent medicine manufacturer, died last night at her home here. The Schiffman orchid garden, once valued at $500,000, was world renowned.

BUNDESEN SEES NO THREAT OF TYPHOID SPREAD

Although some twenty-six typhoid fever cases have been reported to the board of health recently, Dr. Herman N. Bundesen, president of the board, declared yesterday there was no danger of an epidemic in Chicago.

He declared that all the cases but two are directly traceable to the drinking of polluted water during the Union Stockyards fire of May 19, and added:

"The city water supply and the milk supply are not affected. Everything that should be done has been done, and there is no danger whatever of an epidemic. Neither is there any particular reason for vaccination, except in the cases of persons who have been in direct contact with those ill with typhoid."

Dr. Karl Meyer, chief surgeon at the Cook County hospital, took the situation somewhat more seriously but declared there was little danger of an epidemic. He said that there are 30 patients at the hospital who either have typhoid fever, or are suspected of having it, and that all doctors and nurses there are being vaccinated.

Dr. Harold P. Sullivan, fire department physician, said that 160 to 175 members of the fire department may be vaccinated against typhoid. Those whom "it would seem advisable" to vaccinate, he said, are those who have been treated for dysentery, caused by the drinking of the polluted water. Two firemen are seriously ill with typhoid, and Edward Dolan, 17 years old, son of Capt. George Dolan of the fire department, died of the disease.

Dr. Bundesen pointed out that on the day of the great fire his department had made every effort to keep spectators from drinking the tained water at the stockyards.

SAMUEL McMEEN, FORMER PHONE OFFICIAL, IS DEAD

Samuel G. McMeen, for many years identified in executive capacities with Chicago utilities, died yesterday in his home at Pasadena, Cal., friends here were informed last week. He was 70 years old.

Mr. McMeen was a consulting engineer and inventor, and was credited with many of the inventions that made possible the modern automatic telephone. He was chief engineer for the Central Union Telephone company up to 1902. This company was absorbed by the Illinois Bell Telephone company. He was also head of several utility companies. Archery and telephony were two of his chief interests, and he wrote books on both subjects.

Surviving Mr. McMeen are a son, Maurice McMeen of Chicago and a daughter, Mrs. Catherine Clark of Columbus, O.

WIDOW IS NAMED HEDBLOM ESTATE ADMINISTRATOR

Letters of administration were issued yesterday in the estate of Dr. Carl A. Hedblom, noted authority on chest surgery, by Oscar S. Caplan, assistant to Probate Judge John F. O'Connell to Mrs. Eleanor P. Hedblom, the widow. Dr. Hedblom died June 6 in a hospital at Toronto, Can., where he had gone to attend a professional meeting. He left an estate estimated at $15,000 exclusive of $25,000 insurance.

Four wills were admitted to probate and filed with Clerk Mitchell C. Robin. The wills are those of:

GEORGE M. CROWNOVER, died June 5. Estate $30,000 to widow, daughter, and son-in-law, Martha M. Crownover, widow executrix.

WILLIAM F. REICHEL, died June 6. Estate $23,000 to son and executor, Albert S. Reichel.

PETER KOMMER, died May 19. Estate $9,000 to son and four daughters, John Kommer, son, executor.

GUSTAVE S. ULLMAN, died June 14. Estate $8,000 to widow, son, and daughter, Raab Ullman, son, executor.

FREIGHT TRAFIC RISES CONTRARY TO USUAL TREND

Totals 617,649 Cars for Last Week.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 22.—Loading of revenue freight for the week ended June 16 totaled 617,649 cars, the car service division of the American Railway association announced today. This was an increase of 2,084 cars above the preceding week, 24,890 cars above the corresponding week in 1933, and 99,251 cars above the corresponding week in 1932.

The contra-seasonal gain over the preceding week was due largely to increases in miscellaneous freight, ore, grain, and forest products. Miscellaneous freight for the week of June 16 totaled 247,402 cars, an increase of 5,223 cars, compared with the preceding week, 15,725 cars above the corresponding week in 1933, and 38,994 cars above the corresponding week in 1932.

Merchandise Shows Decline.

Less than carload lot merchandise totaled 161,393 cars, a decrease of 1,539 cars from the preceding week this year, 7,439 cars below the corresponding in 1933, and 14,426 cars below the same week in 1932.

Grain and grain products totaled 33,788 cars, an increase of 2,979 cars over the preceding week, a decrease of 4,463 cars from the corresponding week in 1933, but an increase of 7,993 cars compared with the same week in 1932.

Forest products totaled 25,086 cars, an increase of 564 cars compared to the preceding week, a decrease of 676 cars from the same week in 1933, but an increase of 7,946 cars over the same week in 1932.

Ore Loadings Increase.

Ore amounted to 33,924 cars, an increase of 1,924 cars compared to the preceding week, 2,987 cars above the corresponding week in 1933, and 29,634 cars above the corresponding week in 1932.

Coal amounted to 96,424 cars, a decrease of 4,643 cars from the preceding week, but an increase of 1,536 cars over the corresponding week in 1933, and 27,823 cars above the same week in 1932.

Coke amounted to 6,827 cars, a decrease of 97 cars from the preceding week, but an increase of 1,887 cars over the same week in 1933, and 3,886 cars above the same week in 1932.

Live stock amounted to 12,801 cars, a decrease of 2,327 cars from the preceding week, 2,667 cars below the same week in 1933, and 2,599 cars below the same week in 1932.

Year to Date, 14,133,887.

Total loadings for the year to date were 14,133,887 cars, against 12,092,943 last year and 13,120,546 in 1932. All districts except the southern and southwestern reported increases compared with the corresponding week in 1933, and all except the southwestern reported increases over 1932.

A. & P. REPORTS PROFIT OF $8.94 A SHARE IN YEAR

The Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea company showed a net profit of $20,478,190 after taxes and charges, for the year ended Feb. 28. This equals to $8.94 earned a share on the 2,086,748 shares of common stock outstanding, and compares with $22,732,772, or $10.02 a share, in the previous year.

Current assets as of Feb. 28 amounted to $165,347,833, and included $96,342,096 in cash, United States government and other marketable securities. At the end of the preceding fiscal year current assets were $156,729,450, including $99,109,691 in cash, government and other marketable securities.

C. D. Carey Is Re-elected Head of Live Stock Board

Charles D. Carey of Cheyenne, Wyo., was reëlected chairman of the National Live Stock and Meat board at the final session of the board's annual meeting at the Stevens hotel yesterday. Thomas E. Wilson was reëlected vice chairman. Everett C. Brown, Chicago, treasurer, and R. C. Pollock, secretary.

McClellan Stores Sale Hearing Delayed to June 29

New York, June 22.—(AP)—Hearing on the sale of properties of McClellan Stores corporation was adjourned today until June 29 by Harold P. Goffin, referee in bankruptcy, who stated that any one desiring to make a bid for the properties or amend bids already submitted would be heard at that time.

Week's Engineering Awards Decrease to $18,723,000

Engineering awards this week totaled $18,723,000, according to the Engineering News-Record. The amount is slightly below last week due to a drop in federal awards to $740,000, the lowest this year. State and municipal contracts at $13,834,000 were higher than a week ago and private awards were moderately lower at $4,149,000.

Economists Agree 'One of Us Is Wrong'

BY HOWARD WOOD.

Prof. E. B. Wilson, who hails from Harvard and is a mathematician, in criticising Prof. Irving Fisher, who hails from Yale and is an economist, has started something that may last for a long time.

PROF. E. B. WILSON

Among economists and ordinary folk alike yesterday Dr. Wilson's attempt to deflate the Fisher type of economist was a chief topic of conversation. Speaking before the American Association for the Advancement of Science in Berkeley, Cal., Thursday night, Prof. Wilson had offered the fruits of a mathematical investigation of the theories of several economists. What he found was that the heads and tails method of predicting future economic trends was just as accurate as the methods of the Fisher brand of economists.

As a mathematician Prof. Wilson said he found that economists were guessers rather than scientists.

An attempt yesterday to find out what the economists thought of Prof. Wilson's remarks soon disclosed that there was about as much unanimity of opinion among economists as there is between delegates to a league of nations meeting.

Most of the bank and brokerage house economists and some pedagogs thought Prof. Wilson had about the right dope and greatly enjoyed his attack on the quantitative school of economists of which Prof. Fisher is a typical exponent.

Others, in the spirit of the doctor who fears that what he diagnoses as mumps may turn out to be measles, trundled out a few ponderous phrases well sprinkled with whereases to prove that Prof. Wilson's heads and tails theory was entirely erroneous.

"The trouble with professors like Fisher, Warren, Rogers, and Pearson, and other quantitative theorists," said one La Salle street anti-Fisher economist yesterday, "is that they try to cover up human nature with a lot of mathematical assumptions.

"Economics isn't a science and probably never will be because it is based upon psychology and the psychologists haven't yet made psychology an exact science. They can't tell us what makes one human being behave the way he does much less what makes him behave as he does in groups.

"To understand economics you've got to study the endocranes rather than complex mathematical assumptions.

"Economists are guessers, as Dr. Wilson says, but there must be guesses because the very nature of business demands preparations for the future. Production must be carried on in anticipation of demand and plans must always be made ahead. Every business man, therefore, is somewhat of an economist."

A second La Salle street economist was inclined to resent the mathematician's slur on his profession. He had this to say:

"When Mathematician Wilson goes to the extreme of saying that there was nothing in business indices prior to 1930 from which we could predict the downtrend he makes himself just as extreme and unscientific as was Prof. Fisher when he insisted that the market crash of 1929 was a mere incident or breathing spell in the new era.

"If neither Prof. Wilson nor Prof. Fisher could see a warning of what was to come later I suspect it is because they permit themselves to let mathematical refinement of their statistical researches blind them to really conspicuous developments."

A banker said he had never heard of a rich economist. And an amused economist said, "Since when have the mathematicians forgotten that Einstein showed that they didn't even know what a straight line was—and that it wasn't the shortest distance between two points as they have told us for generations.

And so it went. What the goateed professor of mathematics from Harvard said about the goateed professor of economics from Yale threatened to start an argument that would compare favorably with the controversy over the famed "fourteen count" in the Dempsey-Tunney fight.

CANADA FORBIDS WHEAT, FLOUR FROM AUSTRALIA

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

OTTAWA, Ont., June 22.—Acting on a provision of the Canadian-Australian trade pact, Canada has notified the commonwealth to cease sending wheat and flour to Canada. Australia will comply, according to announcement by Trade Minister Harry Stevens to parliament today.

Protests as to imports of Australian wheat and flour were originally launched by Ontario millers and soft wheat growers. Stevens said that not wishing to be "rude" to Australia Canada would not turn back shipments already on their way to the dominion.

Milwaukee Road's June Trafic Above Year Ago

Revenue freight trafic of the Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul and Pacific railroad in the first three weeks of June amounted to 70,451 cars against 68,571 in the corresponding period last year and 71,988 in the similar May period.

Nash Export Sales Already Exceed All of Last Year

Kenosha, Wis., June 22.—(AP)—Foreign exports of Nash and Lafayette cars buying the first five months of 1934 were larger than the entire year of 1933, the Nash company reported today.

Find Illinois Firms Absorb Tax on Sales

Resentment of customers, competition, low dollar value of goods sold, and widely advertised prices were named yesterday as the biggest obstacles in the way of shifting the 2 per cent retailers' occupational tax in Illinois to consumers. Little businesses and small merchants find it more difficult to recapture their sales tax payments than do their larger competitors.

These findings were made in a survey of 6,701 business establishments in Chicago and 201 in Rock Island and Moline. The study was directed by R. M. Haig, professor of political economy at Columbia university, and was made by a staf working with Prof. Carl Shoup of the Columbia school of business. Both the present tax and the 3 per cent levy, which was declared unconstitutional, were considered.

Big Firms Less Hostile.

"The pressure upon the little trader," the report said, "is said to be considered a compensation by big business to the point of offsetting somewhat its otherwise hostile position toward the tax."

The policy of shifting the tax, usually by adding it to the price, was found much less prevalent now than under the former 3 per cent burden. Sixty-nine per cent of Chicago retailers reporting and 71 per cent of the manufacturers and wholesalers shifted the 3 per cent levy, while these figures now are shown at 47 and 65 per cent. The proportion of Rock Island-Moline retailers shifting the burden dropped from 62 to 18 per cent.

A policy of shifting part of the tax, adopted widely in the border cities, does not seem to have met with favor elsewhere, the survey found. Three-fourths of the establishments answering the query estimated their shift at 70 per cent or more.

Few Retailers Seek Offset.

Only 76 of 4,906 retailers said they have attempted to better their position under the sales tax by reducing wages, obtaining lower rents, changing the quality of goods, or shifting the tax backward to sources of supply. Nearly twice as many retailers ascribed business losses to the 3 per cent levy as to the present 2 per cent tax. Two exceptions are the automobile and fur dealers.

"Most of the losses attributed to out-of-state competition are concentrated in the automobile group," the survey said. "In general, the shift of trade across the borders took in the high dollar value line, such as automobile, furniture, and women's apparel trades."

Mail order houses and out of state concerns were not considered serious menaces because of the tax, although highly competitive businesses such as drugs, grocery, hardware, and shoe groups were said to suffer from inconvenience of losing old contacts and making new ones with customers.

FEDERAL SAVING LOAN FIRM HERE GETS U. S. FUNDS

First results in the Illinois-Wisconsin district from the program for federalizing some existing building and loan associations were obtained yesterday in Chicago when the Second Federal Savings and Loan association received a check for $50,000 from the United States treasury to use in loans to homeowners.

A loan demand of $40,000, mostly in one neighborhood, will be met at once with the government investment in the Second Federal association, which up until recently was a state chartered institution known as the Good Shepherd Building and Loan association.

John A. Sierocinski, manager of the Second Federal association, reported that a large percentage of the loans to be closed at once is for modernization and repairs.

U. S. PUSHING CATTLE SLAUGHTER, BUYING OF BEDDING, STUDENT AID

Washington, D. C., June 22.—(AP)—Harry L. Hopkins, federal emergency relief administrator, said today his organization had contracted for handling 70,000 head of cattle a week in plants inspected by the bureau of animal industry. Various states have contracted for about 30,000 more to be packed in state inspected plants. This, he added, is the full capacity that all of the plants could allow for packing relief cattle.

The relief administration this fall will push its plan for making bedding for the needy. Hopkins said today that during the last two or three years quilts and mattresses owned by the destitute have deteriorated. The administration will purchase at least 250,000 bales of cotton to be made into quilts and mattresses in relief workrooms.

In connection with general grants of relief funds, Hopkins also announced 75,000 men and women students in universities and colleges throughout the country were helped to complete their courses during the semester just ended. A total of $4,500,000 of federal funds went for this purpose.

STATE ORDERS REVAMPING OF INSURANCE FIRM

Director of Insurance Ernest Palmer, in his report on the Abraham Lincoln Life Insurance company, Springfield, Ill., dated June 13 and released yesterday, ordered the management to take steps to place the company in condition to meet the requirements of the new insurance law, which becomes effective on July 1, 1935.

The document criticized the payment of $37,500 attorney fees and $60,000 salaries in reinsuring the Springfield Life Insurance company in 1931 and ordered directors and officers to attempt to regain these fees.

The report further ordered the management to continue to make every effort to take advantage of facilities offered by the Home Owners' Loan corporation in converting mortgages into bonds. It brought out the fact that losses will be incurred in liquidating assets and that no contingency reserve had been set up for them.

The report said that an examination of the company's records indicated that "the company is prompt in payment of policy claims upon proper proof, and settlements are made in accordance with the various contracts."

PROCESS TAXES COLLECTED FALL BELOW PAYMENTS

Washington, D. C., June 22.—(AP)—Comparisons of processing tax collections with expenditures by the farm administration showed today that revenue during the current fiscal year will be about the figure expected, but will probably fall short of total expenditures.

Collections to June 1 totaled $328,379,506, or about 83.65 per cent of the estimated collections to the beginning of the next fiscal year on July 1. Latest reports on disbursements show a total of $345,207,000 for benefit payments, surplus purchases, and administrative expenses. This was approximately $16,000,000 in excess of revenue.

Southern Pacific May Net Double That of Year Ago

Southern Pacific railroad yesterday reported May net operating income of $1,925,727, the second largest total since October, 1931, and double last year's aggregate of $979,463. For the first five months of the year the carrier had operating net of $3,370,581, against an operating loss of $2,193,397 in the corresponding 1933 period.

Trade Decline Minor, Says Bradstreet

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, June 22.—Both from an industrial and commercial standpoint, the business situation continues favorable, with only minor seasonal declines noticable, Dun & Bradstreet report in their week-end review issued today. The summary declares that improvement would be more general if it were not for labor difficulties both actual and threatening in a number of districts.

The slow broadening process in evidence since the beginning of the year has removed the isolated peaks that outlined progress a year ago, the review says, "but has left the general level higher than it was at that time despite the weight which the great mass of unemployment throws heavily upon it."

Spectacular Gains Absent.

There has been a marked absence of spectacular gains in any one division of business. On this point, the review feels that the narrower gains revealed in comparisons with a year ago are not indicative of a general let-down, for it was in June, 1933, that the impetus of the New Deal and rising prices pushed activity in many branches to within striking distance of the 1931 level.

"Early estimates on fall distribution are running 15 to 25 per cent above the 1933 figures, as the government seems determined to permit no relapse in trade movements, and the plans which are to be disclosed shortly may result in a more liberal upward revision of this percentage," the report declares.

Sounder Gains Expected.

"There is a gradual breaking down of the restrains which have been making headway difficult, and as soon as bearings will have been taken of the changed situation an upswing based on a more solid foundation than that which developed a year ago is in prospect.

"Fewer complexities are noted and the present is being viewed as a resting period before the March forward is resumed."

BANK ORDERED TO PAY HOLDERS OF STRAUS BONDS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, June 22.—The Appellate division today upheld two decision requiring the Continental Bank and Trust company to distribute among bondholders the income it collected as fiscal agent for two properties financed by S. W. Straus & Co.

One decision ordered the distribution of $37,500 which the bank has held since June, 1932, to bondholders of the Fifth Avenue and 43d Street building, with interest. The second required the payment of $111,000, held since June, 1931, to bondholders of the Barclay Holding corporation.

Last Wednesday twenty-one additional suits were started against the Continental Bank and Trust company to force an accounting and distributions of funds collected from as many other Straus issues.

SEARS-ROEBUCK SALES RUN FAR ABOVE YEAR AGO

Sears, Roebuck & Co. yesterday reported that net sales for the period from May 22 to June 18 showed an increase of 25.5 per cent over the corresponding 1933 period. From Jan. 30 to June 18 there was an increase of 32.9 per cent over the corresponding period of 1933.

Total sales for the former period were $25,023,393, compared with $19,935,951 in the May-June period of 1933. Sales for the longer period amounted to $118,997,988 this year and $89,548,538 in 1933.

Eastern Air Transport Sells N. Y. Airways Interest

New York, June 22.—(AP)—E. R. Breech, president of North American Aviation, Inc., stated today that the company's subsidiary, Eastern Air Transport, Inc., had disposed of its entire interest in New York Airways, which formerly operated a line between Atlantic City, New York, and Washington.

Sheet Steel Sales in May Nearly Equal to Output

Sales of sheet steel for May totaled 246,315 tons as against a total production of 256,537, according to figures compiled by the National Association of Flat Rolled Steel Manufacturers. Total shipments for the month were 240,730 tons and unfilled tonnage as of June 1 amounted to 257,845 tons.

JOBS AND WAGES SHOW FURTHER GAINS IN MAY

Illinois Employment 25.9% Above 1933.

Employment in Illinois showed the fourth consecutive monthly gain during May, increasing 2.1 over April, the Illinois department of labor reported yesterday. Pay rolls continued to rise with a gain of 4.5 per cent, the summary said. The figures were based on reports of 3,835 concerns which employed 417,709 workers and paid out $9,172,208 in wages.

The rise brought the employment level 25.9 per cent above that of May, 1933, and 19.9 per cent above the 1932 figure. It was only 6.8 per cent below May, 1931. Pay rolls were 37.6 and 22.9 above the levels of the two previous May figures, but were still 19.5 less than in May, 1931, the department said.

Not Seasonal Change.

Figures for the last 11 years show practically no changes in employment or wage payments between April and May, leading the state labor department to conclude the increases resulted from other than seasonal factors. The only exceptions to the contra-seasonal nature of the gains were in foods, printing and paper goods, chemicals, oils and paints.

Manufacturing plants reported slightly sharper gains than did nonmanufacturing industries, while firms reporting employment by sexes showed a much more pronounced gain for men, both as to numbers and wages. The average man-hours worked per week was up fractionally from 37.2 to 37.5 hours.

Exceptions to the general rise were marked by the textile and clothing and millinery groups. The stone, clay, and glass industries increased employment of 1.2 per cent, but pay rolls declined 3.2 per cent. Textile and clothing employment drops ranged from 1 to 3.3 per cent, while wages fell 4 to 5 per cent, both contrary to the usual seasonal upturn.

Mines Report Decrease.

Among nonmanufacturing industries exceptions were recorded by the coal mines, where both employment and wages were off 19.8 and 14.2 per cent, respectively. Service groups showed fractional employment gains, but slight wage decreases.

The most pronounced gain registered in nonmanufacturing industries was reported by the building and contracting firms. Aided by PWA construction, they showed gains of 44.4 per cent in employment and 60.5 per cent in pay rolls.

While metals reported a 3.3 per cent gain in employment and twice that amount in wages, the important steel and iron industry advanced its pay roll 14.9 per cent and its manpower 3.9 per cent.

Wood products industries employment averaged approximately 9 per cent higher, while the furniture group had gains of 15.8 per cent in employment and 12 per cent in pay rolls.

Packers Lead Food Groups.

The packers, with increases of 6.8 and 11 per cent in workers and wages, led the foods group which reported over all rises of 3.2 and 7.9 per cent, respectively.

Every industry among the furs, lether, printing, and paper goods manufacturing groups showed gains over April. The leaders were bookbinders, with disproportionate rises of 39.4 per cent in employment and 29.7 per cent in pay rolls.

Average weekly earnings for May were $21.96, men receiving $24.06 and women, $14.58.

CLARK-GRANT CORNER GIVEN PARKER SCHOOL

Mrs. Emmons Blaine, who has given approximately $2,000,000 toward the maintenance of the Francis W. Parker school since it was organized in 1901, yesterday deeded the northeast corner of Clark street and Grant place and another parcel on Grant place, 237x121, to the school.

The property given the school adjoins it and has been used by it without rental for three decades as a playground. According to Richard Bentley, president of the board of directors, the conveyance was made in accordance with the recently announced plans to make the school self-supporting.

Extend Ban Until Sept. 30 on Non-Blue Eagle Copper

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, June 22.—The ban on the sale of non-Blue Eagle copper has been extended to Sept. 30, according to an announcement today by H. O. King, executive director of the copper code authority. Only a few days ago the ban was extended by the code authority to Aug. 1. Soon after the code authority was formed a ban on the sale of non-Blue Eagle copper was ordered and has been extended from time to time.

Plans to Aid Homeowners Formulated

[Copyright: 1934: By the Associated Press.]

Washington, D. C., June 22. — A three point official program has been formulated to make bargains in housing for the nation's home owners.

They include:

1. Use by the interstate commerce commission of power bestowed by the new housing bill to reduce freight rates on construction materials with or without a hearing.

2. A cut by the construction industry in prices of building materials of 10 to 15 per cent within a fortnight.

3. Secretary Perkins was conducting negotiations whereby labor costs would be reduced on the basis of giving workmen continuous employment, rather than employment of the sporadic type now current.

Report Hopkins Won't Take Job.

Meanwhile there were reports that Harry L. Hopkins, federal emergency relief director, scheduled to direct the housing program, would not undertake the new assignment. Associates said, however, they still felt certain Hopkins would be called by the President to serve.

Authority for the interstate commerce commission to reduce freight rates on building materials was contained in an amendment to the commission's enabling act. With the other two points of cutting material and labor costs, this phase was described by authoritative spokesmen as a basic point and the probabilities are it will be fully developed before the housing drive itself begins.

Costs Regarded as Too High.

These said that an incentive for the act was the fact building costs were unduly high and would-be home owners could not be expected to take advantage of it unless costs were reduced.

The tentative plans to reduce labor costs depend on local agreements among unions, contractors, and officials, whereby labor might be assured of continuous work at a lower hourly rate but a larger return per week and year. Present hourly rates for construction workmen were said to be high due to their irregular employment.

DOLLAR MAKES MODERATE GAINS ON POUND, FRANC

New York, June 22.—(AP)—Foreign currencies were irregular against the dollar today in dull trading.

The pound sterling slipped ¼ of a cent, to $5.03½. French francs declined 0.00⅛ of a cent, to 6.59⅝ cents. At the closing price for francs, the dollar was valued at a premium of 0.56 of a cent over par, compared with 0.54 of a cent yesterday and 0.20 of a cent a month ago.

German marks advanced 0.05 of a cent, to 38.17 cents. Dutch guulders were 0.02 of a cent higher, at 67.82 cents. Canadian dollars recovered ¼ of a cent, to ¾ of a cent premium over par.

Today's gold statement of the New York Federal Reserve bank showed no imports, no exports, and no change in the stocks held under earmark for foreign account. The price of gold in London moved up a halfpenny to 138 shillings 1 penny a fine ounce [equivalent to $34.77]. An amount valued at $805,800 was sold.

Liquidation in Auto Group Spreads Over List.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, June 22.—Selling of somewhat heavy proportions hit the stock market in the late trading today and leading shares were nipped for losses ranging to 3 points. Activity picked up on the down tone enough to boost the turnover almost to the million share mark. After moving at a snail's pace throughout the earlier part of the session the ticker was forced three minutes behind floor transactions.

Late liquidation was heaviest in the motor shares and it spread on a smaller scale to other sections of the list. Hudson and Auburn were given a rough bit of handling, the former closing off more than 2 points and the latter 3.

Report Pool Liquidation.

Board room gossip was that a pool in Hudson stock had suddenly decided to clear out after holding on against hope. The reason for the pool debacle was said to have been the fact that the company, after boosting its sales through price reductions, has run into unsatisfactory profit margins. Chrysler and Nash finished down a little more than a point, and General Motors was depressed fractionally.

Prime industrial shares showed unimpressive resistance to the trend. U. S. Steel changed hands through most of the session at a level fractionally below the previous close, and lurched heavily near the close for a loss of almost a point net. Bethlehem looked better on reports that the company in the second quarter would show net earnings on the common, the first in more than two years. Du Pont was out of favor and finished down more than a point.

Silver Group Firm.

The silver group again stood out for firmness in the face of selling in the general market. Such leaders as American Smelting, Cerro de Pasco, and United States Smelting refused to budge far from their previous finals. Gold shares maintained steadiness.

There were fresh declines in the farm stocks, such as J. I. Case and International Harvester. Montgomery Ward and Sears-Roebuck were offered freely for declines of more than a point, the latter hitting a new low for the current movement.

Dropping a point on the day, Standard Oil of New Jersey stretched its retreat for the last three days to around 3 points. Other petroleum shares were dull but not especially bearish in appearance.

The rail group had a bearish cast, with Santa Fé, Lackawanna, New York Central, and Baltimore and Ohio settling back as much as a point.

Communications offered little opposition to the drop.

U. S. Rubber retreated without much warning and the preferred slipped in unison.

Fractional losses ruled among coppers, foods, tobaccos, and utilities. Aviation and liquor stocks were only slightly depressed.

REORGANIZATION OF ALLERTON CO., UTILITY ASKED

Both List Liabilities of About $3,000,000.

Petitions for reorganization of properties loaded with more than $8,000,000 in debts and represented to be insolvent were filed in federal court here yesterday under provisions of the amended bankruptcy act.

In addition, creditors' petitions asking that the Peoria Life Insurance company and three Chicago building corporations be placed in federal trusteeship were filed in Springfield, Ill. The building corporations were the Jackson Park hospital, Inc., 167 West Washington building, and Triton, Inc.

The Allerton Company of Chicago, owner of the Allerton hotel, with debts of $3,000,000, and the Mid-West States Utilities company, a holding corporation with liabilities listed at approximately $3,000,000, were the largest concerns named here.

Allerton company foreclosure proceedings have been pending since Nov. 19, 1931, and a tax receivership request is before the state courts, the petition said. The law firm of Shulman, Shulman & Abrams filed the suit of behalf of three creditors.

Funded Debt Is $2,407,700.

A funded debt of $2,407,700 and current liabilities of $440,247 are listed against Mid-West States Utilities in the petition filed by the firm of Chapman & Cutler. The concern has been in equity receivership since Nov. 9, 1931.

Reorganization of the Diversey Building corporation was asked in a bill filed by Attorney Maurice L. Davis. Assets, including the Diversey Arms hotel at the northwest corner of Clark street and Diversey parkway, are listed at $1,250,000. Debts are estimated at $1,000,000. Foreclosure is pending in state courts and the company is insolvent, the petition added.

American Union Telephone company, owner of several utilities, was declared bankrupt in a petition filed by Attorney Max F. Goldberg. It has been in receivership since Feb. 24, 1932, and the book value of assets is given as $627,590. Against these the bill declares a funded debt of $403,500 and current liabilities of $426,981.

Building Corporation Named.

Another proceeding was directed in the 6300 West 22d Street Building corporation, said to have liabilities of $194,500 and assets of $150,000. This was filed by the firm of Shulman, Shulman & Abrams.

The Chatham Fields Building corporation at the northeast corner of 81st street and St. Lawrence avenue, presented a voluntary petition through the firm of Sabath, Perlman, Goodman & Rein. Liabilities are $175,000.

Burns & Grassie, owners of three loop haberdasheries, were named in a bill filed by the firm of Sims, Stransky & Brewer. Assets of $46,454 are listed against $27,000 in notes due and $31,259 in other liabilities.

Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson yesterday made the first appointment of a bankruptcy trustees under the amended law. He named the State Bank and Trust company of Evanston and Perkins B. Bass, pending formation of reorganization plans for five Evanston properties—the Library Plaza hotel, the Rockwood building, the 636 Church Street building, 1600 Hinman avenue building, and 1017 Grove building.

Pacific Lighting.

Investors' Guide: Will you kindly furnish me with information on Pacific Lighting?—T. W. J.

Answer: Pacific Lighting corporation is a holding company whose subsidiaries furnish natural gas to about 260 communities in southern California, including Los Angeles, to which city the company also supplies electricity. All gas used is purchased from independent operators.

Chief source of revenues is sale of gas for domestic purposes, although volume is about equally divided between domestic and commercial users. Residents of southern California almost universally use gas for heating purposes.

Increased gas consumption by wholesale and industrial users helped increase earnings, overcoming the increased tax burden. In 1933 taxes reached the highest point in the company's history, amounting to 13 per cent of gross revenues.

Operating revenues of $43,470,000 in the 12 months to March 31, 1934, were slightly under the $43,935,000 reported for the preceding 12 months, but reductions in operating expenses, depreciation and bond interest enabled the company to report net of $5,370,000, or $2.64 per common share, against $5,098,000, or $2.58 per common share, for the 12 months to March 31, 1933.

The four year record of earnings follows:

| | Gross Revenues. | Net Income. | Inc. per com. shr. |
|---|---|---|---|
| 1933 | $44,864,000 | $6,338,000 | $3.28 |
| 1932 | 44,758,000 | 5,793,000 | 3.03 |
| 1931 | 46,528,000 | 6,596,000 | 3.57 |
| 1930 | 48,838,000 | 7,969,000 | 4.45 |

The sharp decline in gross from 1931 and 1930 levels has been partly due to rate reductions.

Current position at the close of 1933 was strong. Current asscts were $12,140,000, about 1½ times current liabilities of $8,365,000.

The parent company has no funded debt. Long term debt of subsidiaries amounts to $98,527,000, down $5,400,000 from Dec. 31, 1932, and preferred stock of subsidiaries totals $25,856,000. There are outstanding 196,665 shares of $6 dividend no par preferred and 1,608,631 shares of no par common. The common pays 75 cents a quarter. Both the preferred and common are high grade.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, June 22.—United States government bonds rallied briskly on the stock exchange today as domestic corporation issues weakened and foreign loans moved irregularly lower. The trading pace was somewhat slower than on the day before, the turnover for the listed market amounting to $10,869,000, compared with $13,609,000 yesterday.

Dealings in government bonds accounted for $3,307,500. Final quotations for the long term issues of the government group were up 6-32ds to off 3-32ds point.

The setbacks in the domestic corporation bonds generally ranged from small fractions to 2½ points, with a few issues showing greater losses.

Many Sizeable Losses.

Among the heaviest losers of the more active issues were the obligations of Chicago and North Western, Great Northern, International Telephone and Telegraph, New York, Chicago and St. Louis, New York, New Haven and Hartford, Wabash, Allegheny corporation, Boston and Maine, Canadian Pacific, St. Paul, Rock Island, General Cable, Interborough Rapid Transit, Missouri-Kansas-Texas, New Orleans Public Service, Pan-American Petroleum, Pittsburgh and West Virginia, Postal Telegraph, Richfield Oil, Southern railway, Western Pacific, and Warner Bros.

A handful of issues like Chesapeake and Ohio 4½s, Santa Fe 4s, American Telephone sinking fund 5s, Consolidated Gas 5½s, Brooklyn Edison 5s, Detroit Edison 5s, Cleveland Union Terminal 5½s, New England Telephone 5s, Pacific Telephone refunding 5s, Pennsylvania railroad 5s, United Biscuit 6s, and West Penn Power 5s, equaled or came within fractions of their highs of the year before yielding.

Australian Bonds Decline.

In the foreign group Australian government loans declined 1½ to 2¾ points and most of the state and municipal issues were down fractionally to 2¼ points. Irregularly lower prices characterized trading in German bonds, the Dawes plan 7s losing 1⅜ points, touching a new low, and the Young plan 5½s declining fractionally. Bonds of the Japanese group were generally lower. Latin-American loans closed steady.

On the curb exchange domestic bonds were generally lower as foreign loans gained slightly.

MUNICIPAL BOND NOTES

High bidder yesterday for the new issue of $1,128,000 city of Seattle, Wash., highway bonds, due in two to thirty years, was a syndicate headed by Halsey, Stuart & Co., Inc., and Bancamerica-Blair corporation. The bid was 100.05 for the bonds as 5½s.

Offering is expected to be made to investors on Monday of a new issue of $1,000,000 state of Louisiana 5 per cent highway bonds, due from 1936 to 1957. The issue was purchased yesterday by a syndicate headed by Blyth & Co., Inc.

A new issue of $250,000 city of Passaic, N. J., improvement 6 per cent bonds, will be placed on the market today by the syndicate. The bonds, due June 1, 1935 to 1946, will be priced to yield 5 to 5.60 per cent.

Award of a new issue of $200,000 city of Erie, Pa., school district bonds, dated July 15, 1934, and due from 1944 to 1953, has been made to the Union Trust company of Pittsburgh. The price paid was 100.62 for the bonds as 3¾s. Halsey, Stuart & Co., Inc., made the second highest tender, that of 100.729 for the bonds as 4s.

A new issue of $175,000 city of Des Moines, Ia., Armory and Memorial building bonds, due Nov. 1, 1936 to 1953, has been awarded to Carleton D. Beh & Co. of Des Moines. The issue brought a price of 100.114 as 4¼s.

Sale of several large municipal bond issues is scheduled for next week, biggest of which is a 30 million dollar state of New York relief issue. The bonds mature from July 1, 1935 to 1944, and will carry an interest rate not exceeding 4 per cent.

Other offerings scheduled, together with their purpose, interest rate and maturity, include:

Buffalo, N. Y., $8,000,000, refunding and relief, interest rate to be bid, $2,000,000 maturing July 1, 1944, and the balance from 1 to 20 years.

When Did You Graduate?

Possibly a year ago—maybe two years. Perhaps you have found the field in which you are at present best adapted does not offer opportunities for a larger income or steady employment. The Beauty profession offers untold possibilities. Well trained beauticians are in great demand everywhere. Marinello graduates rapidly step into these better positions, replacing less capable and mistrained operators. Thousands of better beauty shops throughout the country demand their personnel to be 100% Marinello graduates.

VISIT OUR SCHOOL.

Marinello training means thorough training in every branch of the profession, including the uses of all electrical appliances, salesmanship and shop management. Marinello covers every phase of beauty culture and the proficiency of their graduates is known and recognized by higher class beauty shops everywhere.

NOW!—Marinello Offers New Easy Payment Plan

Free employment service—or we will help you establish your own business. Complete set of instruments, textbooks and all cosmetics furnished without charge to all students enrolling for day and evening classes now forming. Mail the coupon for full information and FREE illustrated Booklet T including set of eight photographs showing various Marinello classes at work.

BURNHAM
School of Beauty Culture

OFFERS OPPORTUNITIES FOUND ONLY AT BURNHAM'S.

FOR 63 YEARS THE WORLD'S LARGEST BEAUTY SCHOOL.

When you visit Burnham's you'll understand why more girls enroll in this school than in any other and you'll be amazed at the unexpected and exclusive advantages which our 63 year record of turning out the best operators enables us to pass on to you —such as positions on ocean liners, positions with the best shops which DEMAND Burnham graduates, the opportunity of earning while learning, free tools, unlimited practice on living models, easy terms, and many other advantages.

Once explained you'll see how Burnham teaching methods will enable you to master Beauty Culture quicker, easier and better—why these methods develop the type of operator shop owners want.

Tuition increases this month. If you ACT NOW you can arrange to pay for most of your tuition after you graduate. Call, phone, or write for FREE BEAUTY BOOK.
